Thorough the woods they searched until late morning when Frank McInteer discovered the scene of the fatality and its victim. There were evidences that Mr. Abel in landing had reached back into the boat for the gun and that the firearm caught in some manner, the accidental discharge resulting in instant death. He was the eldest son of the Rev. and Mrs. R.J. Adamson, of Manassas. He was 26 years old, and leaves his parents and brother, Robert.

Death had been expected since Christmas eve when Mr. Adamson was stricken by a recurrence of hemorrhages. The malady was the result of injury sustained by a fall from a horse, fracturing a rib which pierced his lung. A succession of accidents aggravated the injury until tuberculosis developed to an incurable stage, hope lately having been abandoned.

Mr. Adamson first was injured by falling with a horse near Baltimore. Again he was injured in the same way at Richmond. Later at Norfolk while riding in a class of hunters he was hurt in a collision of horses. It was in that accident that Charles Smith, manager of the Norfolk club had his back broken. He died shortly afterward.

Mr. Adamson was born in Washington D.C., July 9 1885. He had lived in Manassas the greater part of his life. His friends were legion and there was no young man in this community held in higher respect. In Warrenton, too, where he recently resided, he won the esteem of all with whom he came in contact. An example of deep friendship for Mr. Adamson was shown in the loving ministration of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Johnson, with whom he made his home, of Miss Mabel Flynn, and of the residents of Warrenton and New Baltimore.

For the past several years Mr. Akers had been a victim of tuberculosis, although it has only been within the past two years that the disease reached the advanced stages, and each severe spell became worse. During a recent spell some time ago, it was found necessary to prolong his life that an operation would have to be performed. This was done and the patient at once began to improve for a short time but the ravages of the terrible disease became more apparent, and daily he grew worse and for the last several days death was momentarily expected although it was a great shock to his many friends in Manassas and Vicinity.

The deceased was a young man of good standing and character, and his death removed one of Manassas’ best liked young members.

Surviving him is his mother, Mrs. M.E. Akers; three brothers Howard, Walter and Paul, and four sisters, Mrs. D.B. Muddiman, Mrs. W.H. Gulick and Misses Lena and Mary Akers.

The deceased was a most remarkable woman for one of her years, and retained her mental faculties until the last. Her health had been good and she had dined as usual and seemed in the best of health on the evening before her death. When her daughter, as was her custom, went to see how her mother had rested during the night, she found her seated in her easy chair, dead. She had truly “fallen asleep.”
Her remains were laid to rest on Tuesday afternoon in the family lot in the old Scotch-English burying ground at Dumfries, the services being conducted by Rev. Norman Luck, husband of one of her granddaughters.

The deceased was a widower and is survived by five children; Mrs. Walker, of Harve De Gras, Md.; Mrs. John R. Selecman, of Occoquan; Miss Carrie and Edna, and Walter Allen, of Woodbridge Va. With the loss of Mr. Allen, Woodbridge will miss him as a citizen, a church worker, and as an adviser. The deceased was a man who possessed a broad view on matters, and could exercise keen judgment, on the most difficult problems. No one knew him only to love him, and his fine traits of noble character.

Unlike most men he possessed those qualities which always had a tendency to draw men into his association. He leaves behind him a record that will always be a pleasure to his survivors to cherish, to meditate, to think of.

He was for many years connected with the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad as foreman, in which capacity he served most faithfully to discharge the duties entrusted to his care. Owing to his failing in health he resigned with regret expressed by the officials, who fully realized and who expressed their sentiments accordingly that to fill the vacancy made by him would be rather difficult. Deceased was in his 68th year, and was a member of several secret organizations.

Interment was in the family burying ground on Monday, at Woodbridge. The writer and his host of friends extend to the family their heart-felt sympathy, in this quiet hour of their sad bereavement.

John and Richard Allen, of Occoquan, and by numerous grandchildren. “Aunt Kitty,” as she was familiarly known in Occoquan, was a lady of the old Virginia type; kind and sympathetic and possessed of that charming personality and hospitality that won for her the friendship of all who knew her. Her vivid recollection of interesting ancient history in connection with her native county, Prince William, which made her a most delightful entertainer. One peculiarity of “Aunt Kitty” was her personal custody of a small bag of gold which she carried upon a concealed belt around her waist. Some of these coins dated as far back as the seventeenth century.

Allen, William T. - 22 Apr 1921 M. J. - William T. Allen, seventy-three years old, a prominent resident of the Nokesville neighborhood who died last Friday after a protracted illness was buried here on Saturday with brief services in the Manassas cemetery. Mr. Allison was one of a crew of three men engaged in tightening wires on the poles and it is thought that in reaching over for a slack wire he came in contact with one or more of the live wires. The unfortunate man was prevented from falling to the ground by straps fastened to his body and to the pole. As soon as his assistants saw the accident they summoned help and succeeded in getting their helper to the ground by means of a block and tackle.

Dr. W. B. Carr responded with ambulance from the emergency hospital and applied the pumotor, but it was found impossible to restore respiration, and the body was taken to the morgue. An inquest was held next morning which resulted in the jury reaching a verdict of accidental death.

Bailey, Louise Fletcher - 11 Apr 1913 M. J. - I bring to-day a wreath of white roses entwined with laurels and lay them as the last tribute of respect to the memory of Mrs. Louise Fletcher Bailey, who departed this life on the evening of March 4, 1913, at her home, near Auburn, Fauquier County, Va., in the 70th year of her age. No flower other than the rose could so speak the gentle characteristics of this noble-hearted lady and surely none more worthy to wear the laurel.

She was a kind and affectionate mother, good neighbor and true friend and noted for true old Virginia hospitality.

Mrs. Bailey, before her marriage, was Miss Louise Fletcher, daughter of James and Amy Fletcher, of Fauquier County, Va., sister of Moses and Lemuel Fletcher, of Elk Run, Va., and first cousin of Messrs. T. N. and Albert Fletcher, of Warrenton, Va. After the close of the Civil War, she united in marriage to William Hirner Bailey, who was a descendant from one of the oldest families of Virginia, being a nephew of William Horner, who before the Civil War, was one of the most famous lawyers of Warrenton, Va., and grandson of Dr. Claggett, who was a surgeon in the war of 1812.

To this union five children were born, four sons and one daughter, the four surviving her, James, of Nokesville, Va.; William, of Washington, D. C., and George and John, of Auburn, Va. Cora, the daughter, passed over the “great beyond in her childhood.

About twenty-five years ago Mrs. Bailey was baptized and received in the Oak Dale Baptist Church by the Rev. B. T. Dulin, where, on the 7th of March her funeral was preached and interment made in the Oak Dale Cemetery. “I am going at sundown” were nearly her last words and as the sun sank low in the horizon on that bright spring evening a beautiful life was ended.

Mrs. Bailey was an aunt of Mrs. Anderson Manuel and Mrs. A. N. King, of Nokesville, Va., and also of Messrs. Wellington and Samuel Bailey, of Woodlawn.

Baldwin, Isaac Palmer - One time largest individual property owner in Manassas, a man of deep religious conviction and wide charity. Isaac Palmer Baldwin, one of the early residents of Manassas, died of pneumonia last Monday in Battle Creek, Mich., where he moved from Manassas about seven years ago. He was 93 years old. Mr. Baldwin is survived by his widow and two sons, Milton M., of Manassas, and Julian P., of Alexandria. Funeral and interment were in Battle Creek today. Mr. Baldwin was born in New York. He came to Manassas shortly after the close of the Civil War. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. Baldwin at one time was the largest individual real estate owner in Manassas, his extensive holdings consisting of the most prominent sites in the commercial and residential districts. The present site of Eastern College was formerly owned by Mr. Baldwin. He deeded the property to educational purposes for considerations of a small annuity. Baldwin Hall was formerly his residence.

Mr. Baldwin formerly owned the site of the Manassas hotel, scene of the recent great fire. He had also owned the sites now occupied by the M.I.C. building, the Masonic temple, the edifice of Asbury M.E. Church, North, and other valuable property. He substantially assisted in the building of the church edifice.

In recent years Mr. Baldwin had disposed of the greater part of his property interests.

Mr. Baldwin was postmaster during Harrison’s administration. Mr. Baldwin was a man of deep religious convictions and wide charity - a Christian in the truest sense of the term. He styled himself a “trustee of the Lord” - a fitting title.

Baldwin, Wilma E. - 10 Jul 1913 M.D. - Mrs. Wilma E. Baldwin who passed away June 29 at Battle Creek Mich. was well known in this vicinity. Her father, John Greene was owner of “Birmingham” farm, near Manassas, where he died in 1874, and where the family continued to reside until the death of Mrs. Greene in 1900. Mrs. Baldwin, nee Wilma Greene passed her girlhood days at the family home.

In 1892 she became the wife of Isaac P. Baldwin and resided with her husband for several years in their lovely home now used as a college building.

Later, Mrs. Baldwin’s health failing, they went to the sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich., in which town they practically made their home thereafter.

Mr. Baldwin passed away in February 1912 and the devoted wife, fourteen months afterwards.

Mrs. Baldwin was in precarious health for many years, suffering from constitutional trouble that finally caused her death.

She was a woman of remarkable attainment. She possessed a fine mind, capable of enjoying to the uttermost all that was beautiful in literature and poetry. Her memory was phenomenal, being able to quote poem after poem from memory. It was her custom to seat herself at the piano at twilight when she would sit and sing hymn after hymn, ranging from those of her childhood’s days to those of the latest composition. Her love for nature was a passion. She had made a study of trees and birds and could tell each variety of either, quickly recognizing an unseen bird by his song note. Her happiest days were those spent out under the trees with the song birds and the green, growing things that she so much loved around her. She was deeply interested in the great forward movement of the day. The temperance cause and the woman suffrage cause were very dear to her and she ever stood ready to contribute labor and money toward their success. The donation of her lovely home jointly with her husband to the town of Manassas for a college will ever stand as a monument to her generosity.
But it was in the family and social relations of her life that her character shone brightest. Her care of her husband in his failing years was untiring and contributed in no small degree to her own physical condition.

She had no fear of death, she longed to escape from the tenement of flesh that had become for her a prison cell into the house not made with hands eternal in the heavens. Her faith in the risen Lord was triumphant and she passed away with the expectant hope of a reunion in the blessed land where there shall be no more death, “neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain.”

In compliance with her wishes her body was cremated and the ashes placed on her mother's grave in the cemetery in Alexandria. Three sisters and several nieces and nephews are left to mourn her loss, to whom the memory of her gracious life will be an inspiration and the hope of a reunion a blessed consolation.

Mr. Beachley's death was very sudden, resultant of a fall from a tree. He had gone to the home of a nearby friend, and with a companion was gathering shell bark, when young Beachley lost his footing in the tree and fell to the ground fracturing his skull. He was removed to his home, but lived only a few hours. His death was a stunning blow to his many friends in the community in which he lived, as he was a young man of prominence and highly esteemed by every one. Last spring he completed a course of study at Blue Ridge College.

The funeral services, held last Sunday afternoon at the U.B. Church of Myersville, were attended by several hundred people, and was one of the largest ever held in that place. Interment was made in the cemetery there.

Mr. E.E. Beachley, father of the deceased, was former resident of Manassas and many here remember Leonard Beachley, who then was only a small boy. Surviving him are his parents, two sisters, and three brothers. Friends here deeply sympathize with the grief-stricken family.

C., following an operation for appendicitis. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday morning at St. Paul’s Church, Haymarket, of which he was a member and vestryman.

After the church service the Masonic ritual was completed at the grave. The church was full to overflowing with friends and relatives from Prince William and other counties, for he was a man widely known and respected.

Beavers, Albert - 13 Jun 1913 M. J. - Albert Beavers, who shot himself with a single barrel gun near his home, two miles south of Brentsville, with suicidal intent, on Wednesday morning of last week, an account of which appeared in our last issue, died Sunday afternoon, after surviving for three days and nights a crushed skull.

Beavers left his home on the morning of the tragedy, ostensibly for the purpose of hunting squirrels and when the report of a gun was heard on the premises at about 11 o’clock, no attention was paid to the matter until Beavers failed to return to the house at bedtime when a search for him was made which proved futile that night. The next morning the search was renewed and the wounded man was found reclining on his elbow conscious, and his gun lying within five feet of him. He refused to give any explanation of his rash act, in reply to enquiries from the party who found him.

Beavers according to his friends, has acted queerly for the past five or six months, and for a few days prior to the tragedy he appeared to be in a melancholy mood and it is thought that when he left his home on the day of the shooting he did so with the intention of ending his life.

Beavers, J. Morgan - 05 Jul 1912 M. J. - Mr. J. Morgan Beavers, an old Confederate soldier, died at his home near Token, on Sunday last, at the age of seventy-six.

The deceased was a good soldier and carried three wounds from battle. His remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground, near his home, on Monday evening.

One by one the old soldiers are passing away and the real meaning of that terrible conflict in a large measure, passes away with them. Surely all men realize that no matter what was or what might have been, it was a terrible price to pay in human suffering and death.

Beavers, James M. - 04 Jul 1912 M.D. - James M. Beavers, 75 years old, died in his home near Token, Sunday evening, of a complication of disease. Beavers, Maggie Priscilla - Typhoid fever claimed its second victim here last Friday when Mrs. Maggie Priscilla Beavers, wife of Levi Beavers, died at her home on East street.

For several weeks she had been very ill with the fever and the contributory cause of her death, tuberculosis, so weakened her condition as to make impossible her recovery. Mrs. Beavers was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas, of this county, and was thirty-three years old. She is survived by her husband and four children. The funeral was held last Sunday afternoon at Woodbine church, a few miles from Manassas, and the remains were interred in the cemetery at that place. Beckham, five sisters and one brother, Professor R.V.Ritenour, of OhioGyle, Pa. besides a host of loving friends to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Beckham was a woman of exceptionally loving disposition, and modest and retiring by nature. It was said of her by one who knew her well that she made friends without any effort on her part. She was never known to speak an unkind word of a human being in her life. With a heart overflowing with charity for all and enmity to none, she freely gave up her life at the call of her Master, and as the fatal hour approached, fully realized her condition, and willing, even joyfully, waited for the summons. She was a faithful wife and devoted mother, a consistent member of the Catholic church, and was beloved and esteemed by all who knew her. She freely sacrificed herself for others, without counting the cost.

Mrs. Beckham was the mother of three children, two of whom preceded her to the grave, and by the side of one of whom her body was laid in the cemetery at Manassas. It was with sorrow that could not find expression that her people committed her body to the tomb, and her soul to the keeping of the loving God, whom she strove to serve faithfully in life.

Her last request on earth was to “give her love to everybody.”

Miss Lillie, as she was always called by her many friends, was from childhood a member of the Methodist church at Gainesville, from which church after the funeral services conducted by her pastor, Rev. W. P. C. Coe, assisted by the pastor of the Baptist Church at Haymarket, in the midst of many sorrowing friends, her body was quietly laid to rest in the cemetery nearby to await the Resurrection of the just. She has gone from us, but she is not dead, only departed to a brighter world than this.

May her parents and loved ones be comforted by the God of Comfort. And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God.

Miss Lillie was the oldest of a large family of children and the one to whom all the others looked up. How touching the words from mother. “We had hoped to have her with us all the way through life,” but God has ordered it otherwise. Their loss is her gain, The home, the church and the world is poorer because of the loss of such a character. If we are faithful we shall see her again.

May God’s richest blessing rest upon the home from which she has been taken and at last may this be an unbroken circle in heaven. She was always a welcome visitor to our home and I am glad it was my privilege to be her pastor for four years.

Berkeley, Edmund - 03 Dec 1915 M. J. - One of Prince William’s oldest citizens in the person of Colonel Edmund Berkeley, ranking survivor of Pickett’s famous charge at Gettysburg, passed away at his home, “Evergreen,” near Haymarket, on Wednesday morning after suffering a stroke of paralysis. Born on February 29, 1824, at Aldie, Loudoun County, Colonel Berkeley was 91 years of age at the time of his death. He has only been able to celebrate twenty-one birthdays, however. Had he lived to February 29th of next year he would have celebrated his twenty-second birthday.

When six months’ old Colonel Berkeley was taken up in the arms of Marquis de Lafayette, who was then on his last visit to America. Later he was a playmate in the White House of Mary Donelson, a relative of President Andrew Jackson. Colonel Berkeley was perhaps the oldest living person bearing the distinction of having been entertained at the White House.

Colonel Berkeley attended William and Mary College and graduated with a degree of A. B. At the opening of the Civil War, he raised a company for the Eighth Virginia Regiment, of which General Eppa Hunton was then colonel. Gallant service was seen at the battle of Ball’s Bluff where the regiment was sent into the woods as a cat’s paw to locate the Union forces under Colonel Baker, a U. S. senator from Oregon, who organized what was then known as the California Regiment, and who was killed in this skirmish with about 1500 Union men. Major Berkeley, as he then was, was wounded at Gettysburg near the stone wall where at the reunion fifty years later he shook hands with his Union comrades in perhaps the most striking feature of the Gettysburg celebration.

After Gettysburg, when Colonel Hunton was advanced to brigadier general, Major Berkeley became a lieutenant colonel. The Eighth Virginia Regiment then became known as the Berkeley Regiment for its ranking officers were Col. Edmund Berkeley and his three brothers, Colonel Norbourne Berkeley, Major William Berkeley, and Capt. Charles Berkeley.

Colonel Berkeley was of the sixth generation of Berkeleys of Middlesex county. The custom of naming the eldest son Edmund was kept up in the family for nine generations, with the exception of Rev. Alfred Rives Berkeley, of Philadelphia, who attended the funeral of the deceased.

Colonel Berkeley was the ranking Confederate veteran of Prince William. On all occasions when a representative of the “Lost Cause” was wanted Col. Berkeley was the one of all others to be desired. He took a great interest in the promotion of peace and most graciously and gladly participated in the Manassas National Jubilee of Peace in 1911 and also in the dedication of a tablet commemorating this event in September of this year. Only recently Colonel Berkeley wrote a letter to the Times-Dispatch heartily endorsing the Peace Jubilee and what it stood for. The Journal copied this letter in its issue of November 5.

Surviving members of the family are his five daughters, Miss Lucy Berkeley, of “Evergreen;” Mrs. Richard Belches, of Haymarket; Mrs. A. B. Nance, Mrs. John McNeilly and Mrs. Feltus, all of Miss., and two sons - Lanier Berkeley, of “Evergreen,” and Capt. Douglas Berkeley, U. S. A., and several grandchildren.

The funeral services of the deceased were held at St. Paul’s Episcopal Church, Haymarket, of which he was a member, yesterday morning about 11:30 o’clock, the Rev. Robb White officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the family plat in the church yard.

The pallbearers at the funeral were Messrs. John Hutchison, Geo. C. Round, Carl Clarkson, George Tyler, H. C. Dodge and William Berkeley. Among the Confederate veterans attending were Comrades Westwood Hutchison, A. H. Compton, Geo. H. Smith, John Hall, Jas. F. Gulick, Jno. White, Jas. Pickett, J. P. Smith, Robt. Cushing, Jas E. Herrell, Edwin Carter and A. F. Rose, the last two named of Warrenton, and Louis Shumate, of Leesburg. Others attending the funeral from a distance, in addition to those named previously, were Mr. Francis F. Berkeley, were Francis F. Berkeley of Red Hill, and Mrs. H. H. Williams, of Charlottesville, nephew and nieces respectively of the deceased.

Berkeley, Edmund - 1906 M.J. - Edmund Berkeley, who died in Philadelphia Thursday, Nov. 29, was the son of Colonel Edmund Berkeley of this country. He was born about 1846. He entered the Virginia Military Institute in 1863, where he remained until 1865, when the corps was disbanded on the evacuation of Richmond. He was in the battle of New Market, May 15, 1864, with the corps of cadets, where he was wounded in advance of the line of battle.

After the war he went to Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. After graduation there he was appointed an assistant professor in one of the scientific departments. He then went to Texas as a civil engineer. Later he became connected with the Southern Railway, and for about three years he was the division superintendent of the Richmond and Danville branch of the Southern Railway, during which time he resided in Richmond.

Afterwards he left the Southern Railway and became superintendent of the Atlantic division of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, which position he filled for some years, and up to last summer, when he was promoted to the position of general agent of the Seaboard Railroad.

Mr. Berkeley is survived by his widow, one daughter and two sons, Rev, Alfred R. Berkeley, who was the assistant of D. Landon R. Mason at Grace Episcopal Church, Richmond in 1905 and Dr. Green Berkeley of Philadelphia, Pa. The funeral took place Saturday last near Haymarket, where his father, Colonel Edmund Berkeley, now resides.

Berkeley, General Norman - 19 Jan 1911 M.D. - General Norman Berkeley died of paralysis at the home of his brother, Colonel Edmund Berkeley, near Haymarket, last Thursday evening. The funeral was held Friday from Haymarket Episcopal Church, the Rev. Grinnan officiating. Interment was in the Episcopal churchyard. General Berkeley was 82 years old, and is survived by one brother, Colonel Edmund Berkeley, 86 years old.

General Berkeley was one of the four Berkeley brothers, who were field officers in the Eighth Virginia regiment. When Colonel Hunton was promoted Norborne Berkeley succeeded him as colonel of regiment, and commanded it until the close of the war. He was commissioned brigadier-general, but as the war came to a close before he commanded a brigade he was too modest to allow his friends to address him otherwise than as colonel.

Berry, John H. - 29 Sep 1911 M. J. - Mr. John H. Berry, a widely known traveling salesman, died of paralysis at his home in Harrisonburg on Friday night last, aged 49 years.

Mr. Berry, who represented a Richmond hardware firm, was stricken while at Orange about two weeks ago. He was subsequently moved to his home, where a second and third stroke followed in rapid succession, quickly resulting in death.

The deceased was born in Stafford County over 68 years ago. During the war between the states he was a member of Hart’s South Carolina battery. At the close of hostilities he moved to Alexandria, where he since resided.

Early in the seventies, after the formation of the uniformed police of Alexandria, he became a member of that organization. After many years of service he was made lieutenant of the force and upon its reorganization several years ago he became first sergeant, which position he held until declining health forced him to relinquish the position. He, however, remained a member of the force, and was for some in charge of the desk at police headquarters. He later found himself unable to perform his duties in that capacity and for some time had been confined to his home.

Besides his widow he is survived by a son, Julian F. Bettis. The deceased was a member of Osceola Tribe of Red Men and Alexandria Council, No. 5, Order Fraternal Americans. - Alexandria Gazette, Tuesday

F. Bettis, of Alexandria; Mitchell Bettis, of Forestburg; James L. Bettis, of Nokesville; Cumberland Bettis, of Washington; David Bettis, of Bristersburg, and M. D. Bettis, of Culpeper.

Bettis, William T. - 02 Feb 1923 M. J. - Mr. William T. Bettis died at his home on Maple Street on Tuesday morning, in the sixth-seventh year of his age, after an illness of ten days, following a stroke of paralysis.

He was the son of Thomas and Sara Bettis of Stafford county, where he was born February 23, 1856, afterwards moving to Culpeper.

The deceased died on the anniversary of his wedding, having married Annetta Payne, of Culpeper January 30 1901, by whom he is survived. He also leaves three sisters and six brothers.

Funeral services were held at the Manassas Baptist Church yesterday morning, at 10:30 a. m., after which the body was taken to Culpeper on the 12:10 train, and laid to rest in the family burying ground at that place.

Mr. Bettis made many friends here during the eighteen years of his residence in the town by whom he will be greatly missed.

Bishop, Linwood - 01 Aug 1912 M.D. - With a 38 caliber bullet hole through his head from which the blood was flowing freely, Linwood Bishop, the sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bishop of Warrenton, was found in his bedroom Monday morning, soon after the family had finished breakfast.

When a member of the family went to call the young man to his morning meal he was found lying on the floor with a revolver clasped in his hand, and still breathing. He was hurried off at once to Providence Hospital, Washington for treatment but died before reaching the institution.

It is alleged that on the day previous to the tragedy the father took occasion to administer needed correction to his son, which it is thought, prompted the young man to take his life. Another report is to the effect that young Bishop was repeatedly called to his breakfast at about seven o’clock and failing to respond, the door of his room was forced and the mortally wounded victim of the tragedy found lying on the floor of his bed chamber, as the result of an accident.

Young Bishop, who is a nephew of Mrs. Sarah Keys and of Mrs. O.E.Newman of Manassas, is said to have been a young man of excellent habits and quite popular with his associates, and his violent death is the subject of much regret by his numerous friends.

Mr. W.E.Bishop, who was formerly engaged in the butcher and green grocer business in Manassas, is a prominent merchant of Warrenton and one of the directors of the Peoples National Bank of that town.

Blackwell, James - 16 Apr 1915 M. J. - James Blackwell, a colored man of about eighty years of age, was found at his home near Wellington on Monday morning. When neighbors went to the house they found the stiffened corpse partly fallen over on the table before which Blackwell had seated himself for a meal. On the nearby stove meat was found in the frying pan long grown cold. The cats and dogs were nearly starved, which indicated that he probably died on Saturday.

No marks of any sort were found on the body, and it is supposed that death was due to some organic trouble. Burial took place Wednesday, at which two of his relatives from Washington were present. Blackwell bought the Redmond place a short while ago, and has lived there alone. He was much feared by all his neighbors, against whom he made many threats. He was to have been tried in the circuit court this week for a criminal offense. It has been reported that he was worth considerable money but such reports have not been verified to date.

Blackwell, Thomas H. - 11 Aug 1922 M. J. - Thos. H. Blackwell, a colored man of 26 years of age, whose home was near Brentsville, was instantly killed on Saturday morning at the railroad crossing at Bristow when a fast train No. 138 collided with a truck that he was driving. Howard Johnson, a Negro boy 13 years of age, whose home is in Washington and who was in the truck with Blackwell when it was hit, escaped with injuries that will not prove fatal, according to latest reports received. The Johnson boy was taken to the Alexandria hospital for treatment, and it is said he was able to walk from the train to the hospital.

Blackwell and Johnson were on a truck loaded with pulp wood. Upon approaching the crossing at Bristow Station from the west side Blackwell stopped his truck and directed the boy to ascertain whether a train was approaching. Johnson went to the crossing and signaled to Blackwell to come on. The truck was set in motion and progressed to the switch or spur track when the motor stalled. Apparently neither Blackwell nor Johnson paid any further attention to trains, but busied themselves in getting the motor started. The truck was again gotten under way and had gotten fairly between the railways on the north-bound track when it was hit by the on-coming train. Upon seeing the truck on the track the engineer of the train applied the brakes, but it was then too late to avoid the accidents. Indeed, such was the train’s momentum that it was not brought to a full stop until the bridge over Broad Run, approximately one half mile from Bristow, had been crossed.

The bodies of both Blackwell and Johnson were hurled some distance from the crossing. Blackwell’s body was mashed as if he had received the full force of the collision. Blackwell is survived by his wife.

County Coroner Dr. W. F. Merchant was called to the scene of the accident and immediately summoned a jury of inquest.

The jury’s verdict was that Blackwell came to his death from injuries received when hit by the train.

Bland, Mary C. - 20 Feb 1914 M. J. - Mrs. Mary C. Bland, wife of Mr. Edward Bland, passed away at her home near Minnieville about 3 p. m. Thursday, Feb. 12, after an illness of several weeks. Bleight, John - 15 Nov 1918 M. J. - The funeral of Mr. John Bleight, who died on Sunday at his home in Fredericksburg, took place from St. Paul’s Church on Tuesday afternoon. The service was read by his son-in-law, Rev. William Elmer, of near Baltimore. The pallbearers were Messrs. C. C. Dulaney, Marion White, Alec Hamilton, Ashton Bleight, George Bleight, and Samuel Bleight, the last named three being nephews of the deceased. Mr. Bleight was a native, and almost a life long resident of this section, where he had a large family connection and many friends.

He was a devoted member of St. Paul’s Church, which, with his family, he attended regularly for a number of years. He was laid to rest in the family lot in the churchyard by the side of his daughter, Nannie Hamilton Bleight, who died eighteen years ago. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Fannie Carter, of Haymarket, two sons, John and Carter, who are in France; two daughters, Mrs. William Elmer, of near Baltimore, and Miss Mary Bleight, of Fredericksburg; also two brothers, Mr. S. R. Bleight, of Haymarket, and Mr. George Bleight, of Philadelphia.

Blume, Charles W. - 08 Mar 1912 M. J. - This community was painfully shocked on Tuesday evening to learn of the death of Mr. Charles W. Blume, of the firm of Bennett and Blume, of this town, which occurred at his country residence, near Buckhall at about 6 o’clock on that day, in about the 72nd year of his age.

Mr. Blume had been in declining health for some years, but, while frail, he had neglected none of his business, church or social affairs and was regarded as a man of more than ordinary intelligence and business energy. his death, therefore, came as a surprise to the town.

We do not know the cause of death, but from what we can gather it was due to a clot of blood forming on the brain as the result of an injury some time ago. It seems that while rising from a crouching position in his stable his head came in contact with a protruding nail. Subsequently, in leading a horse he slipped and fell, the animal trampling over his body. While these injuries appeared to be of a local nature at the time of their infliction, they doubtless were contributory to his death. He was confined to his bed only a few days.

Mr. Blume was a man of character and force and will be generally missed. He was a devoted member of the M. E. Church and his death will be regarded as a distinct loss to that branch of religious denominations.

He was a native of Luray, Virginia, but had been connected with business enterprises here for a number of years. During the Civil War he served gallantly in the Union Army, but he was a gentleman charitably inclined and when the war was over he settled down as an American citizen, forgetting all of the bitter feuds of that unfortunate epoch in our country’s history. He had the esteem of all who knew him.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Mr. George Blume, who is studying for the Baptist ministry at Fork Union Academy, near Richmond.

His funeral took place at 2:30 o’clock yesterday afternoon, his pastor, Rev. J. E. Slick, assisted by Rev. Dr. H. L. Quarles, and Rev. T. D. D. Clark, officiating. The burial was in Manassas Cemetery.

Her home was the centre from which radiated love, cheerfulness and peace. Surely all who knew her shall “Rise up and call her blessed.”

She has left a precious memory to her sorrowing husband and daughter.

He came to Occoquan about 5 years ago, where he resided until shortly before his death.

By his personal integrity Mr. Boorman won for himself many friends. He was a young man of singular piety, distinguished for his faithful labor in the church and its institutions. He was a member of M.E. Church of Occoquan.

From his early boyhood, he resolved to so live that after his death no reproach could be cast upon his character. His irreproachable life fully confirmed his resolution.

His former home was in Edinburgh, Va. where his remains were taken for interment. His funeral services were conducted at the M.E. Church at that place.

Breeden, Joseph - 11 Sep 1913 M.D. - Frantic from noise and the rumble of passing cars on the H street line, Joseph Breeden, sixty years old, owner of a little grocery shop at 41 H street northeast, borrowed a gas tube from his landlady’s kitchen early this morning and ended his life while stretched across a little cot in the back room of his store.

Mrs. Bettie Sachase, who rented the shop adjoining her house to Breeden, arose about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning and found the place reeking with the fumes of illuminating gas. The door between the back room of Breeden’s store and her kitchen was closed, and Mrs. Sachase was unable to find the tube to her gas stove.
She walked into the shop and found the aged man stretched out across a cot with the gas tube dangling from a fixture near the ceiling. The room was heavy with gas and Mrs. Sachase saw at a glance that Breeden was unconscious. She notified the sixth precinct police and officer Montgomery investigated and found Breeden dead.

Everything about the case points to suicide, as the gas tube found hanging near Breeden’s head showed evidences of having been used to inhale gas. It had been taken from a stove in Mrs. Sachase’s kitchen and affixed to the gas jet.

Breeden came from Remington, Va., a short time ago and rented the little shop at 41 H street. He was in poor health, and several times complained to Mrs. Sachase that the noise of passing cars nearly set him crazy. Breeden was extremely nervous, his landlady said, and was able to do but little work around the store. The shop was run as a light grocery and was stocked with probably $200 dollars worth of goods.

Breeden lived with his wife and several children at Benning, D.C. He left the grocery shop at 8 o’clock Monday night and at that time he had a satchel. He told Mrs. Sachase that he was going to sell out because the cars annoyed him so badly he would have to give up his business - Washington Times

Buckley, William A. - 2 Apr 1914 M.D. - Death removed an honored and prominent citizen of Prince William County last Saturday, when Mr. W.A. Buckley passed away at his home near Gainesville, after a short illness of only a few days. Contracting pneumonia, Mr. Buckley grew rapidly worse from its first stages, and his death was sudden and a severe shock to the entire surrounding country.

Mr. Buckley had been a life long resident of this county. In the community of Gainesville and neighboring towns he was a spirited citizen, and took active part in all public affairs and undertakings. Probably no gentleman in upper Prince William was held with higher respect and esteem than Mr. Buckley, and his demise removes from that section a man whose value as a friend, citizen and neighbor will be greatly missed. For many years he has been engaged in the work of farming and his home near Gainesville was widely known for its hospitality, kindness and welcome.

Mr. Buckley was a great admirer of horse flesh, and took keen interest in the raising of stock of this description. He was the promoter, a charter member and director of the Prince William Horseshow Association, and had many friends and acquaintances in this section.

Surviving him is his widow and seven children, four sons, W. Malcolm, Simpson, Norman and Harry, and three daughters, Misses, Marion, Sallie and Ella. Bundy, Clarence - 15 Mar 1912 M. J. - Clarence Bundy (colored) an employee of the Southern Railway Company, sustained injuries here on Sunday which resulted in his death on Tuesday at the Alexandria Hospital to which he was carried immediately after the singular accident.

The rather remarkable fatality occurred just opposite the residence of Mr. W. R. Myers, who resides in the eastern suburbs of our town, and was witnessed by an employee of that gentleman.

At first it was thought that Bundy was a hobo, stealing a ride, and that he jumped from the train, but this is exploded by the fact that he was, or had been a trusted employee of the company. It is still not known however, whether he attempted to jump or whether, from exposure, fell from the freight train. He was seen to lift his body and try to spring from beneath the moving wheels, but he was too late, being caught by both limbs, which were literally crushed.

Physicians were summoned and the wounded man was hurried to a hospital on No. 16, and died on Tuesday. He was a man of middle age and of splendid physique.

A shotgun lay beside the body of Dobson and it is supposed that he committed the crime. Mr. Burkle was shot in the back of the head.

There were no witnesses.------- Several stories have come from the neighborhood. Some say that trouble had been brewing between Dobson and his employer for several weeks. Another report states that a strange man visited Mr. Burkle earlier in the day and that the conversation between the two had not been carried on in friendly tones.

Dobson is said to have gone to the house for his gun about 9 o’clock, telling his wife that he wanted to kill a black snake.

Mr. Burkle was about fifty-five years old. He came to this county a number of years ago from Winchester and is said to have been a native of Pennsylvania. Dobson was about fifty years old.

Butler, Mrs. James Moore - 07 Nov 1929 M. J. - A gloom was cast over our community on the morning of October 30, when the report came of the passing of Mrs. James Moore Butler, in Alexandria, where she had gone on the preceding Sunday in about her usual health.

Mrs. Butler had been a patient sufferer for several years. Her cheerful smile and wonderful energy helped many on life’s journey. A devoted church worker, her greatest pleasure on earth was in duty well done. She is survived by her aged father and two devoted daughters.

Her death was caused by a wound having been made on her foot by a small nail in the sole of one of her shoes and which terminated in blood poison. At first the wound was not looked upon as being anything to cause fear, but as it became inflamed and continued to grow worse Dr. H.A. Spitler, of Middleburg, was called in who pronounced it of a more serious nature than was supposed.

After several weeks’ treatment without any satisfactory results it was thought advisable that she should go to a hospital for treatment, whereupon she was sent to the Sibley Hospital, of Washington D.C., where she remained for six weeks. There, at one time, the wound on her foot seemed almost completely to heal, and it was thought that in a short time she would be entirely well, but suddenly a change for the worse took place and all hopes for her recovery were given up. At her request she was sent back to her daughter’s where, after lingering for twelve days she passed into the world beyond.

Mrs. Butler was a lady who was loved and respected by all who knew her, but best of all she was a Christian. Just before she died she expressed a hope that she would not linger long as she was ready to go.

Funeral services were held at Antioch Baptist Church on Saturday, November 4, being conducted by the Rev. T.D.D. Clark, pastor, assisted by the Rev. J. J. Norwood, of The Plains, after which her remains were laid to rest in the little churchyard cemetery by the side of her husband.

The deceased is survived by his widow, father, Mr. Peyton Calvert, and sister, Mrs. John Fair.

Mr. Calvert passed from the scene of his earthly labors as unostentatiously as he had lived. Everyone who knew him esteemed him for his charitable characteristics and other amiable qualities. The constant flow of good deeds was the greatest advertisement of his honorable life. Many hearts were pained when the sad news went forth that the deceased had closed his earthly career and gone to his Heavenly reward. In the stillness of the hour came the remark from many: “His place can never again be filled in the heart of his devoted wife, who was always ready to administer to his every wish and his greatest desire was to fulfill her every wish.”

Mr. Calvert was fully conscious of the nature of his illness and that it was rapidly placing him in the hands of the grim destroyer. Notwithstanding this he faced death calmly and bid adieu to his loved ones with that assurance of future happiness and peace that is born of a firm Christian belief.

Thirty minutes later Carter died. Thorpe made no attempt to escape.

This is the dread story that is related in the Haymarket neighborhood, the denouement of a tragedy enacted on the N.T. Depauw farm. Thorpe now is in the county jail awaiting appearance before the grand jury. His preliminary hearing Sunday night before Justice Stephen Smith, was followed Monday by a coroner’s inquest, both investigations disclosing the principal features of the tragedy.

The fatal quarrel was precipitated, it is said, when Carter became angry because Thorpe was teasing one of Isaac Garrett’s children. Carter, Thorpe and Garrett are related by marriage. According to testimony, Carter ask Thorpe to desist, emphasizing his demand by attempting to deal a heavy blow with a steel hook suspended from the elbow in place of a severed forearm. Thorpe fled with Carter in pursuit.

He stumbled and fell, it is said, and as Carter stood over him menacingly he grasped a knife and dealt the fatal blow sinking the tiny blade into the thigh, just deep enough to sever an artery. It was then, that in his dying struggles, that Carter is said to have expressed a desire to shoot down Thorpe. Carter died before a physician, who had been summoned, arrived upon the scene. The active pallbearers are Messrs. C. R. McDonald, Thomas Boswell, Chas. Keyser, C. C. Dulaney, J. E. Beale and Charles Gillis. Ewell Camp of Confederate Veterans. of which Dr. Clarkson was a member, will attend the funeral in a body.

Dr. Clarkson was born in Charleston, S. C., on November 6, 1835. He was the son of Thomas Boston Clarkson, a large Southern planter, through whom his ancestry can be traced back to men of England and Scotland, especially notable among these being Thomas Boston, a distinguished Scotch divine, who was an ecclesiastical writer of much note in his day. Young Clarkson attended school in Charleston, S. C. until 1850, when he went to Columbia, S. C., in order to prepare for college. Two years later he took up work at South Carolina College, graduating from this college in 1855, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts and the following year taking the Master of Arts degree. After this he studied medicine and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1859.

Now it was that he returned to South Carolina. Those were exciting times when secession was brought up and Dr. Clarkson soon followed his state into the war. He first saw service in the Confederacy as a private, later in 1862 as assistant surgeon and the following year he was promoted to full rank of surgeon. He was one of the three men who fired on the Star of the West and the only shot from Fort Moultrie was fired by him, he being the gunner. He later served as gunner at the battle of Fort Sumter.

During the war Dr. Clarkson was in Virginia a great deal and while in Alexandria he met Miss Jennie Irvin Sayrs, to whom he was married in 1863. At the close of the war, he went to South Carolina where he took up the practice of medicine. Later in 1870, he came to Prince William County, Va., and here he resided for the remainder of his life.

Up until about ten years ago Dr. Clarkson had a very wide practice in the vicinity of Haymarket. In the medical profession he ranked very high, being a member of the Medical Societies of Virginia, and contributing several notable papers on professional subjects to the periodicals of the societies and the profession. Feeling the weight of years, however and the duties of superintendent of schools for Prince William County, which office he held from 1892 to 1909, he gradually retired from the active practice of his profession, and since 1909 he has not been actively engaged in any special work.

Dr. Clarkson is better known as a poet than as a physician, for his poems have been widely read throughout the Southland and very favorable criticism has been made both by the press and by individuals who know good poetry when they see it. The first poems which Dr. Clarkson was willing to publish were written in the year 1859. Intermittently from this time up to his death he has been a most ardent patron of the muse.

Two editions of his poems have been gotten out by The Manassas Journal Publishing Company, the last one of which was published in 1910 and contains all of his published poems up to that time. Since 1910 Dr. Clarkson has written a few poems but the second and enlarged edition of his “Songs of Love and War” contains the major portion of his poetic endeavors and in this edition will be found the best and most representative poems of the “Poet Laureate of the South.”

Dr. Clarkson was a highly respected and much beloved citizen of Prince William. A Quiet, unassuming man, he was liked by all, and especially admired by those who can appreciate the true inner worth of a man. He was a true Christian gentleman, the senior warden of St. Paul’s Episcopal Church, Haymarket, and allied with all that was best and most uplifting in community life.

The Journal, in common with the citizens of Prince William, extends its most heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of the deceased. We feel that a good friend of ours has laid down his earthly burden to enter upon that greater glory that God has in store for all who live as his faithful servants. May his noble life be set up as an example to those whom are to follow.

Coombs, Stoney - 05 Oct 1911 M.D. - Struck by a fast northbound Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train, Stoney Coombs, 50 years old, was instantly killed at the grade crossing in Catletts Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o’clock in full view of a crowd of horror-stricken spectators. Coombs was attempting to drive across the track with a load of guano when the train speeded down upon him.

The body was hurled from the wagon and crashed with terrific force against the porch of the postoffice, close by the track. The head was crushed and almost every bone in his body was broken. Both horses were injured, one so severely that it was put to death to end its suffering. The wagon was torn into splinters.

The fast through Chesapeake and Ohio train does not stop at Catletts. The line enters the village on a straight track, and Coombs, unconscious of peril, neither heard nor saw the approach of the swiftly-moving train. In a glance the horrified engineer saw death fleeting before his train. Quickly he applied the air-brakes in a desperate effort to stop the train, but the big locomotive slid down the track, as though destined to a mission of death. There was a sickening crash. Then the train came to a stop.

When the fatality occurred Mr. Combs was on his way home with the load of fertilizer which he had just purchased. He had lived within one-half mile of Davis’ store, near Tackett’s Mill, in Stafford county, and it was there the body was taken. Mr. Coombs is survived by his widow and two small children.

Cornwell, Nimrod - 26 Jan 1912 M. J. - Mr. Nimrod Cornwell, a prominent and widely known citizen of this county, was stricken with paralysis at his home, near Token, shortly after retiring on Sunday evening, which resulted in his death at about 11 o’clock on Monday morning.

Mr. Cornwell retired at a rather early hour on Sunday evening, in apparently the best of health and spirits, jocularly remarking to the members of his household that he would expect them to rise early on Monday, inasmuch as he had planned a heavy day’s work for them. Between 8 and 9 o’clock the fatal stroke seized him and he gradually sank until the death summons came. He was 68 years of age.

The deceased was a man of good business qualifications, of character. For a number of years he had conducted a general store and a large lumber business in his section, and was known as a sympathetic neighbor, who was ever a friend to the needy and distressed, and who wielded an influence for good over the community, where he leaves many sincere friends who have been saddened by his death. soldier’s death; “Hugh was a man whom everyone liked, and who to me was a brother. I have been with this company but three months and in that time took a great interest in Hugh. He was one in whom I could place confidence, to whom I could give an order and know it would be carried out. He was very quiet and reserved. When others were out from their billets, not always in the most desirable places, I knew where Hugh was and could get him when I wished to see him.

“He has often spoken to me of his home life, of his mother, sisters and brothers, and I know he loved his home, and it was in defense of his home that he gave his life.”

“Hugh had no bad habits and his speech and mind were free from the taints which so many of us have. I only hope all of us may live as Hugh did; that in the end we may meet in a land where parting and sorrow are not known.”

We have not learned the cause, but we presume it was heart trouble.

Mrs. Costello is survived by her husband and ten trusting children, some of whom reside in the county, but they are scattered, not only through this state and Maryland, but as far as the Golden Gate.

Cummings, Howard - 10 Dec 1925 M. J. - Albert I. Chessher, charged with the murder of Howard Cummings at The Triangle about 11 o’clock Saturday night, was brought from the guard house at Quantico yesterday afternoon by Special County Officer John Adams and lodged in the county jail here to await trial. It is expected that the case will go over until the February term of the Circuit court, which is now in session. Chessher, it is said, will plead self defense.

Robert A. Hutchison has been retained as counsel for Chessher. The attorney is said to have been retained through friends of Chessher in the Marine Corps, of which he was a member.

Within a few minutes after departing from a dance hall, owned by John Liming, together and while standing in the road at the junction of Joplin road and the Richmond-Washington Highway at The Triangle, Howard Cummings, 25 years old, proprietor of a taxicab company at Quantico, was shot and instantly killed by Albert I. Chessher, 27 years old, a member of the Marine Corps, Quantico, about 11 o’clock Saturday night.

Special County officer John Adams and Magistrate W. E. Lloyd, of Quantico, were standing about sixty feet away from Chessher and Cummings when the shot was fired that resulted in the death of Cummings and immediately placed Chessher, who is said to have been standing with gun in hand over the prostrate form of Cummings, under arrest. Chessher was taken to the Marine Post at Quantico and turned over to the officer of the day at the guardhouse for safekeeping. Cummings is said to have lived only about two minutes. His body was removed to the base hospital Quantico, and later turned over to his family for burial.

The bullet from a forty-five calibre pistol struck Cummings in the left chest passing through his lungs and out of the right side.

According to reports current in Quantico, Chessher and Cummings had a personal difficulty during the morning of the day on which the shooting occurred. This difficulty is said to have taken place in Quantico.

In describing the incidents leading up to the shooting, Officer Adams and Magistrate Lloyd said that they received a telephone call from The Triangle about 10 o’clock asking that they come there and quiet a disturbance that is alleged to have been taking place at the public dance hall operated by John Liming. There were no signs of a disturbance when the officers arrived, and they said that while standing near the door to the dance hall talking to some men that Chessher, Cummings and another man named JIM Dent came out of the dance hall and started walking up the Richmond-Washington highway. The officers said they suspected that the three men probably had a quantity of liquor secreted along the road and following them. Chessher, Cummings and their companion were talking in an ordinary tone of voice, according to the officers, when they came out of the dance hall, and as they passed on down the road. After the three men had reached the junction of the Joplin Road, about one hundred yards away from the dance hall, and while the officers were standing about sixty feet away, a shot was fired. The officers ran forward to determine the cause of the shooting and found Cummings lying on the ground and Chessher standing a few feet away brandishing a service automatic. Officer Adams said he asked Chessher why he (Chessher) shot the man, and in the meantime circled around Chessher as he approached. Chessher kept Officer Adams covered by turning around as the Officer circled, but Magistrate Lloyd, watching an opportunity, and while Chessher was facing Adams, grabbed Chessher from behind, pinning the latter’s arms to his side. It was hard to give up this dear little boy so full of promise and so dear to all who knew and loved him for his many amiable qualities of mind and heart, but his memory will live in the hearts of all and loving hands will keep green the grave which shuts out his dear little form from those who mourn his untimely death.

Davis, John Morgan - 04 Jul 1912  M.D. - John Morgan Davis, thirteen years old, son of Henry Davis, of Marshall, Fauquier county, committed suicide at his home, Sunday morning, while the rest of the family were at Children’s day services in the M.E. Church, South, in Marshall. It is reported that the youth left a note to each member of the family explaining the cause of his rash act. It is also reported that, owing to the straightened circumstances of the boy’s father, the youth had not suitable clothing in which to make his appearance with the other school children in the services and this so depressed him as to induce him to take his life. The notes, written on the eve of his sending a bullet into his temple, were full of tender affection for those he was leaving behind, but were, it is said also, expressive of the great mortification he felt on not being able to appear in company and to also take part in the sabbath school exercises on the day of his tragic death.

Davis, Joseph Madison - 23 Apr 1915 M. J. - On Monday, April 5, following a long illness. Mr. Joseph Madison Davis died at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Clinton Warner, near Paeonian Springs.

Mr. Davis was born August 10, 1842, in Prince William County. At the early age of 18 he enlisted in the Confederate Army and served nearly four years as a member of the 4th Virginia Cavalry, Company A., under the command of General J. E. B. Stuart. He took in many noted battles among them, the first battle of Bull Run, Seven Pines, the Wilderness, and was captured near Fredericksburg. An exchange of prisoners made his term of imprisonment only a few months.

He was soon at the front again and in the battle of Trevilian’s Station received a wound which rendered him unfit for active duty during the remainder of the war.

At the battle of Bull Run his cavalry distinguished itself by making the famous raid that resulted in the capture of General Pope’s headquarters, securing papers which showed the plan of maneuvers of his division of the Northern army.

Shortly after the close of the war, in May 1867, he married Miss Sallie E. Glasscock, also of Prince William County. A few months thereafter they moved to this county and settled near Middleburg where they continued to reside and reared a family of six children, all of whom, with his wife, survive.

As a husband, he was devotion pure and simple; as a father, he was indulgent to the last degree always having in mind the welfare of those whom he loved; as a man, he was slow in choosing intimate friends, but when the tender chords of his nature were touched by the true and genuine sincerity, you could count him a friend in the highest sense.

He was a consistent member of the Methodist Church from his early manhood, and numbered among his many friends a score or more of the ministers of the Baltimore conference.

Bettie Davison - 02 May 1912 M.D. - after leaving the train at eight o’clock on Sunday of last week, at Buckton, Warren county, and depositing her suit case in the near-by door yard of Jacob Crabill, Miss Bettie Davison, fifty-five years old, drowned herself in Passage Creek, near Middletown, her body being recovered on a small island, the following Monday morning.

Attached to Miss Davison’s suit case was her bank book showing a small balance and a note giving directions as to the disposition of her effects. No cause was assigned for her tragic act.

Miss Davison was a daughter of the late Hon. Smith Davison who represented Warren county in the Legislature before the civil war, and who was

Dean, Jennie Seriepta - 09 May 1913 M. J. - Jennie Dean, founder of the Manassas Industrial School for Colored Youth, died from paralysis in her home near Catharpin this county, Saturday morning. The funeral took place from Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, colored, near Catharpin, Monday afternoon, Rev. Marshall D. Williams, pastor of the Manassas Baptist Church., colored, officiating, and interment was made in the family lot in the Mt. Calvary Baptist Church Cemetery near the late home of the deceased. Only one brother and one sister survive: Robert Dean, who lives in the West, and the wife of Rev. L.
H. Bailey, of Occoquan.

In the death of Jennie Dean the world has lost one of its most enthusiastic yet unostentatious benefactors who never permitted obstacles nor personal discomfort to bar her efforts toward the uplift and general welfare of her race.

Born in slavery on the historic plains of Manassas near the place where the lamp of her useful life went out, a few years before the great civil war, she heard the roar of musketry and the booming of cannon in the first great battle of that war, and when peace was declared and the public free schools inaugurated she obtained her limited education in the first school house built for colored children in Prince William County, and known as Mandley, No. 5.
From her early youth she manifested a deep interest in religious affairs and organized her first Sunday School in her humble home in the early eighties, from which developed her first mission church, Mt. Calvary Chapel, nearby, and from which edifice her lifeless body was taken to its last resting place.

Three other Baptist churches were organized and put on a firm basis through her efforts, namely, Wellington Mission, Pilgrims’ Rest, in Prince William County, and Conklin, in Loudoun County.

All these churches are now in a prosperous condition. Her great work, which will ever live in the hearts of her people, was the founding of the Manassas Industrial School for Colored Youth. Her conception of this work was the offspring of her love-labor in her Sunday School work. Her heart ached, as she often expressed it, for the poorly fed and poorly clad children who came to her Sunday Schools, and she organized industrial classes in cooking and sewing and taught them on Saturday afternoons. Realizing the inadequacy of these to meet the crying needs of the children, she conceived the thought of an industrial school where they would be afforded the opportunity of being taught the ordinary manual pursuits, and from this thought the institutions, which will stand as a monument to her memory, was established.

It was the energy and acumen of Jennie Dean and those whom she fired with her own zeal that made the Manassas Industrial School possible.

This worthy woman spent her declining years in the neighborhood in which she was born and enjoyed the fullest respect of her white neighbors. Her work will live after her and make her name for many generations an inspiration to those of her race who would emulate her difficult achievements.

Jennie Dean had an abiding faith in the Christian religion and to that fact is largely due, her friends maintain, the accomplishment of her meritorious objects under adverse conditions. Numbered among those who were her numerous friends and supporters of her work, outside the county were: the late Crosby S. Noyes, Revs. Edward Everett Hale, S. M. Newman, Percy S. Grant, U. G. B. Pierce, Mrs. Burton Harrison, Representative Francis Burton Harrison, Bishops Potter and Greer, Mrs. M. C. Whitman, Miss Emily Howland, and Mrs. C. B. Hackley. Among those within the county, white, were: Dr. H. M. Clarkson, the late Capt. R. H. Tyler, Geo. C. Round, the late Henry J. Ayres, the late Representative E. E. Meredith, who was attorney for the school; Judge C. E. Nicol, the late W. H. W. Moran, Rev. Abram Conner, the late Mrs. Howard P. Dodge and Mr. Dodge, F. H. Sanders, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Hundley.

State Supts. of Education Massey and Eggleston gave substantial encouragement to the institution by being present upon numerous occasions and delivering interesting and instructive addresses.

The large concourse of both white and colored people who were present at the obsequious was mute testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Many prominent white people of the Catharpin neighborhood made brief addresses in commendation of the life and character of the deceased benefactress.

Plans are being formulated by the faculty of the Manassas Industrial School for Colored Youth to erect upon the school grounds a small beautiful, permanent chapel in memory of Jennie Seriepta Dean, the founder of the institution.
These plans will take more definite shape and the object given fresh impetus at the Commencement exercises of the school on May 30, when committees will be appointed to carry the plans into effect.

This chapel will be used for religious services of the school and in this will be embodied one of oft-repeated desires of the school’s benefactress, and in direct line with her devotional characteristic.

It was her life-long desire to have such chapel erected, and no more fitting testimonial of her devotion to religious matters could be conceived than the one now in contemplation.

Efforts were made by the school faculty to have the remains of Jennie Dean interred in the school grounds where her great life work was really achieved but the family at the time felt that the body should rest in the cemetery of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church which she founded. It is still the hope of the school that the family will later yield not only to the wishes of the school but of the whole community in the desire to have the remains rest in the shadow of the proposed chapel.

The death of Jennie Dean brings to mind the devotion of her life work towards the betterment of the spiritual and temporal condition of her race, and emphasizes anew the well-established fact that much good may be accomplished through the medium of humble instruments. That a colored woman born in slavery and subject to the vicissitudes of poverty could have founded churches, Sunday schools and established an institution for training the youth of her people is the strongest evidence of what may be achieved through sincerity of purpose and good work, inspired by faith even under the most adverse conditions.

Deats, Caleb S. - 21 May 1915 M. J. - Caleb S. Deats, a well known Prince William citizen, met death at his own hands on Sunday. Mr. Deats, who lived with his son, W. P. Deats, who lived with his son, W. P. Deats, at Orlando, was an ex-Confederate and was 77 years old. He was a native of New Jersey, from which state he moved to Virginia many years ago. His death was a great shock to the Orlando neighborhood where he has lived for a long time. The cause of his committing suicide will never be known, but it is thought that it was due to a little spell of despondency.

His son had just left the house and had gotten a short distance away when he heard the report of a gun. He thought little of the sound because the report of a gun is a frequent occurrence in the neighborhood. On returning home the corpse was found with the whole upper part of the head blown off. Clasped in one hand was a single barrel shot gun and the other hand held to one end of a cane the other end of which was resting on the trigger of the gun. Death was evidently instantaneous from the position in which he was found. The coroner’s jury returned a verdict of premeditated suicide.

Surviving Mr. Deats are three brothers, three sisters and one son. The brothers are John and Frank, of Tiffin, Ohio, and L. M., of Somerville, N. J. The sisters were Miss Leveria Deats, of Manassas; Mrs. C. L. Elliott, of Orlando,

Mr. Delaney’s many amiable characteristics endeared him to the hearts of a host of friends and the chair made vacant in his home can be filled by a more devoted and affectionate husband and father. As a citizen and neighbor none stood higher in the community than he. His many acts of kindness and benevolence will live in the affections of all with whom he came in business and social contact.

Depauw, N. T. - 19 Sep 1913 M. J. - No sad message from a house of mourning could have fallen more heavily on the hearts of a community, than when early on the morning of Monday last, the people of Haymarket and vicinity were startled by the sorrowful news, that the popular and honored master of Waverly had, but a few moments before, fallen gently asleep in the arms of death.

The news was as swift and unexpected as it was sad; and in a little while every resident of the neighborhood was a lamenting mourner. Just ten years previously. Col. N. T. DePauw had become a dweller among us, and purchasing the beautiful homestead, Waverly, was contributing much to the business and social attractiveness of the community, when came the sudden going out of his useful life.

Newland Talbot DePauw, son of Washington William, and Katherine Newland Depauw, of New Albany, Indiana, was fifty-seven years old at the time of his death. In January, 1911, he was married to his second wife, one of the loveliest of the young women of Haymarket, Miss Hallie Meade, who with his two daughters, Mrs. Vernon Knight of New Albany, Ind. and Mrs. Harold T. Gates of Louisville, Ky., children of his former marriage, yet survive him.

Col. DePauw was borne to his final place of rest in a lovely spot in the cemetery of St. Paul’s Church, Haymarket, in which old sanctuary he had been a faithful and constant worshiper, the rector Rev. Morris S. Eagle officiating and the following friends acting as pallbearers: Active, Messrs. George G. Tyler, Carl D. S. Clarkson, Jas E. Beale, William M. Jordan, Charles E. Keyser, and Drayton E. Meade; and honorary: Messrs. C. A. Heineken, Wm. L. Heuser, William H. Brown, W. M. C. Dodge, Andrew Low, Franz Peters, Edmond Berkeley and Dr. H. M. Clarkson.

Detwiler, E. L. - 03 Mar 1916 M. J. - Dr. E. L. Detwiler, a practicing physician of Herndon, was shot dead Tuesday morning by Carl Rosier, a farmer living about three miles from Herndon. Rosier fired a load of buckshot into Dr. Detwiler’s abdomen, killing him instantly. Rosier, who is thought to be insane, was arrested and brought to the Fairfax County jail.

According to sheriff Allison, of Fairfax County, who investigated the shooting. Dr. Detwiler was called to the Rosier farmhouse Tuesday morning about 10 o’clock to attend Mrs. Rosier, the aged mother of the accused.

Dr. Detwiler recommended that the patient be sent to a hospital, and in a conversation which followed Rosier objected to the manner in which the doctor addressed his mother.

Before the doctor left the house, Rosier went upstairs and returned with a shot gun which he pointed at Dr. Detwiler and fired. The full charge entered the victim’s abdomen.

After firing the shot, Rosier rushed from the house and went to Dransville, a small town about three and one half miles from Herndon, and gave himself up to Constable Dave Mahoney, who later turned the prisoner over to Sheriff Allison.

Rosier, who is about 30 years old, was adjudged insane about three or four years ago, the officials say, but he was later released and allowed to return home, where he has since lived with his mother.

Dr. Detwiler was well known in Fairfax County. He leaves a wife and five children, the oldest 22 years of age.

Washington on Tuesday morning at 10 o’clock, after an illness of six weeks. She was thirty-three years old.

Interment was made in the Manassas cemetery amid a profusion of flowers which were the last tribute of many friends. The pallbearers were Dr. W. Fewell Merchant, Dr. C. R. C. Johnson, Mr. C. J. Meetze, Mr. J. L. Harrell, Mr. Robert A. Hutchison and Mr. M. M. Ellis.

Mrs. Didlake was the only daughter of James Leon and Mamie Taylor Luxford. She was born at Staunton and was graduated from the Blackstone Female College and the University of Virginia normal school, after which she made her home in Washington until her marriage to Mr. Thomas Elvin Didlake on September 5, 1917. In November of the following year, after living in Charlotte and Chapel Hill, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. Didlake came to Manassas, Mr. Didlake establishing a law partnership with Mr. C. J. Meetze.

Mrs. Didlake was of revolutionary stock. Her uncle, Capt. Dodd, Lavania C. - 25 Oct 1912 M. J. - Died on Tuesday evening, October 15th, after a short illness, at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. G. W. Shirley, near Waterfall, Mrs. Lavania C. Dodd, in the 75th year of her age.

Mrs. Dodd, who was the eldest daughter of the late James Smith, and widow of Jas. H. Dodd, was born and reared in this county, but for many years has resided in Washington. She annually visited her old home and relatives here, where she had a host of friends. But death, the reaper, claimed her for his own, “ere” her visit was over.

Two sisters and one brother survive her in this county, Mrs. James Hulfish and Mrs. Jas. W. Bell, of Haymarket, and Mr. J. P. Smith, of Waterfall, who accompanied her remains to Washington on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Dodd is survived by four daughters and one son, Mrs. R. L. Vanhooon, Mrs. C. C. Guliford, Mrs. P. C. Bowen and Mrs. Frederick Lepper, all of Washington, and Mrs. Frank Dodd, of Colonial Beach.

Too much cannot be said of this excellent woman. She was true to every relation of life. A faithful wife, a devoted mother, and a devout Christian, who knew no law, but kindness and duty. Her price was far above rubies and her children will arise up and call her blessed.

The funeral was from Epworth M. E. Church, South, of which she was a charter member, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Fultz. The pall-bearers were her grandsons, Messrs. Lee Vanhooon, Norman Dodd, Arthur and Carlton Guilford, Russell Lepper and W. H. Dodge. The interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery, that beautiful “City of the Dead,” where she rests under a mound of flowers.

Dodge, Garfield Arthur - 20 Jul 1911 M.D. - Tuesday morning, Postmaster H.P. Dodge received a telegram announcing the death of his son, Garfield Arthur Dodge at Denver, Colorado. He was in the 32nd year of his age, having been born at Unionville, Ohio, September 9, 1879.

He was reared at Manassas Va., and received his preparatory education at the Manassas Institute, conducted at that time by the Misses Osborne. The 1897 he entered the sophomore class at the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg, spending three years in the collegiate and one year in the post-graduate courses at the institution, graduating with the degrees of A.B. and A.M. He then entered John Hopkins University, at Baltimore, Md., where he made a special study of the languages of Latin. Greek and Sanscrit, graduating from the university with the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1905. That fall, he accepted the Chair of Greek in King’s College, Bristol, Tenn. He was stricken with tuberculosis in December of that year, since then he has made a heroic but vain fight for the regaining of his health at various sanitariums and health resorts.

Doctor Dodge was a member of the Manassas Presbyterian Church. The remains will be sent home for burial in the Manassas cemetery beside those of his brother, Robert Percival Dodge, who died five years ago last June.

The funeral will be held from the Presbyterian Church next Sunday afternoon at 2 o’clock, Dr. H.U. Roop officiating. Interment will be in Manassas cemetery.

Dodge, postmaster at Manassas for many years preceding the Wilson administration, chairman of the Prince William County republican committee and prominent elder in the Presbyterian Church, died suddenly Tuesday at his home near Manassas. Dodge, Henry W. - 11 Aug 1910 M.D. - Henry W. Dodge, an old resident of Fauquier and Prince William counties, died of cerebral hemorrhage this morning at 6 o’clock at his home in Haymarket. Shortly after noon Tuesday he complained of fatigue and laid down to rest, lapsing into a state of coma. He died without regaining consciousness. The funeral under auspices of the Masonic fraternity probably will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from Antioch, with the Rev. T. D.D.Clark, pastor of the Baptist church, Manassas, officiating.

News of the death of Henry W. Dodge has shocked the entire community, for apparently he had been in excellent health Monday when in Manassas on business. The stroke which fell without warning, may have been superinduced, it is believed, by a sunstroke he suffered in New York City in 1898. The hemorrhage followed a violent attack of nausea.

Henry W. Dodge was widely known throughout Prince William and surrounding counties and held in the highest respect by all with whom he came in contact. He was born 58 years ago near Upperville in Fauquier county and was the son of the Rev. Henry W. Dodge, who for many years pastor of the Upperville Baptist church. Mr. Dodge lived a number of years in Texas, and his wife died there in 1895 and is buried in Austin.

He returned to Haymarket in 1905 and recently had been representative of the insurance department of the state of Texas in the capacity of examiner of business transacted by Texas companies in Virginia. For about a year he was assistant secretary of the Penn-Vir Coal, Oil and Gas Company.

Dodson, Alton - 11 Aug 1910 M.D. - Caught in a whirlpool while swimming in the Potomac river off Quantico last Friday afternoon, Alton Dodson, aged 23, a resident of Shackletts, Stafford county, was drawn to the bottom of the stream, disappearing in view of his companions, two brothers named Pabscot, who were powerless to rescue him. Men in boats dragged the steam for the body, and although they grappled the body with hooks, they were unable to bring it to the surface. After they had given up the search the body drifted into the shore.

An expert swimmer, Dodson struggled desperately for his life, but could not extricate himself from the grasp of the whirlpool. He had entered the river about three o'clock in the afternoon, after he had finished loading some cars at the Kephart sawmill where he was employed. He swam farther out than his companions and before realizing his danger he plunged into the whirlpool.

The funeral was held Sunday from the home at Shackletts. Mr. Dodson is survived by his widow and a child.

On April 29, 1896, he was married to Miss Edith May Leachman, daughter of Mr. J. T. Leachman, who together with their one daughter, Mrs. C. C. Lynn, survive him. He also leaves three grandchildren besides other relatives.
The funeral was held at Sudley on Monday afternoon under the direction of Mr. W. H. Demaine, of Alexandria. The ministers officiating were Rev. C. L. Beard, pastor of Sudley Church, assisted by Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Manassas.

Dogan, Lucinda Mitchell - 21 Jul 1910 M.D. - “The Belle of the Manassas Battlefield” is dead.

Upon the eve of the anniversary of the famous conflict between the Gray and the blue, who together honored her with title of appreciation of her loving ministrations upon that stricken field, Mrs. Lucinda Mitchell Dogan breathed her last on Sunday afternoon at her home in Paradise, three miles from town, ere reunion camp-fires had been kindled for the commemoration next Thursday. Until the last three years she had been a central figure at the reunions, but even when failing health detained her at home. “The Belle of the Battlefield,” and the veterans communed in memory. Now her death has cast a shadow over the reunion and veterans assembled on Manassas battlefield today feel deeply their loss of a friend, whom they know was true.

So far as can be learned, Mrs Dogan who had attained the age of 93 years, was the oldest woman in Prince William County. Despite her age, her mind was clear and her memory almost perfect, and she related in detail many interesting incidents of the war. Throughout this entire community there is a sorrow over the death of this noble Christian woman.

The funeral was held Monday from the old home at Groveton Where Mrs. Dogan’s married life was spent, and interment was in the family burying ground there. The Rev. Homer Welch conducted the services.

Wounded and dying soldiers some wearing uniforms of gray, others clad in blue, but all alike to her as human being in distress involved blessings upon her, as she pressed a cup of cold water to their fevered lips and soothed their agony. Through the two battles of Manassas she went about like a ministering angel.

Dogan, Mary E. - 07 Jan 1921 M. J. - Mrs. Mary E. Dogan, widow of William H. Dogan, died after a brief illness at her home at Groveton on Friday last in the seventy-second year of her age.

The deceased was a daughter of Thomas and Susan Benson. When a child, after the death of her mother, she was adopted by her uncle, Mr. Amos Benson, and the remaining years of her life were spent in the neighborhood of Groveton.

During the war between the states, Mollie Benson, as she was then familiarly known, rendered yeoman service nursing and ministering to the needs of wounded and suffering soldiers of both sides after the great battles fought near her home in that bloody conflict, and many beautiful tributes have been paid to her by soldiers who were fortunate enough to fall under her tender ministrations.
Some years after the war, she became the bride of William H. Dogan and the children who survive this union are Mrs. Esther Terrell, of Groveton; Mrs. C. B. Roland, of Haymarket; Mrs. Philip Senseney, of Washington, and Mr. Harry Dogan, of Groveton.

The funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Homer Welch, pastor of Sudley Church, were held Sunday afternoon and the remains were interred in Sudley churchyard.

Donlan, Rev. Father Patrick - 27 Mar 1913 M.D. - Rev. Father Patrick Donlan, pastor of All Saints Catholic church of Manassas, died Tuesday afternoon about 5 o’clock at Providence Hospital, Washington, D.C. The deceased had been in failing health for the past year and his death was not wholly unexpected. Father Patrick went abroad three years ago and visited several European countries. While in Rome he had the misfortune to fall and fracture his knee cap. This, in a way, was the cause of his death, being unable to take proper exercise thereafter the loss of which caused indigestion and heart trouble, from which he died.

Father Patrick was a man whose intelligence was of a high order, and during his pastorate of fifteen years at All Saints he endeared himself not only to his members but to the community at large. He also had charge of St. John’s Church, Warrenton, where he was well and favorably known.

He is not dead; he is but sleeping; and has merely stepped from the darkness of this world into the light of the eternal where the morning has broken clear for him.

Edmonds, Douglas P. - 05 May 1910 M.D. - Douglas P. Edmonds, 52 years old, one of the best known business men of Prince William county, was stricken with apoplexy, as a result of acute indigestion, at his home, near Greenwich, at an early hour on Saturday morning, and died two hours later without regaining consciousness.

Dr. J.C. Meredith, coroner, viewed the body and without an inquest gave a certificate of death in accordance with the facts stated. Mr. Edmonds was in Gainesville on business in the afternoon, preceding his death, and expressed himself to friends as feeling in his usual good health.

He arose Saturday morning at his usual hour and after partaking of an unusually hearty breakfast, went to the barn to care for his stock and was found unconscious a short time later. His tragic death came as a shock to his sisters, who shared his home, and to his two brothers, one in West Virginia and the other in Missouri, whom he has not seen for years, as well as his neighbors and his many warm friends throughout the county.

Mr. Edmonds was in Manassas a few days before his death and was elected a member of the board of trustees of the Prince William Hospital Corporation. He was regarded as a man of sound business judgment and his hearty co-operation in the hospital movement was looked upon with marked favor by the proposed association. He was a director of the Prince William Horse Show association.

Mr. Edmonds was a widower, his wife, who was a Miss Fitzhugh, of Baltimore, having died some years since. His funeral took place from his late residence on Sunday afternoon, Rev. M. Meredith, of Manassas, and Messrs. James Dulin, John Reid, M.M. Washington, and Bert and Oscar Ellis, of near Greenwich. The three sorrowing sisters, Miss Hattie Edmonds, of Washington, and Misses Annie and Ella Edmonds, of near Greenwich, have the deepest sympathy of all in their sad and sudden bereavement of a brother’s love.

When the last sad rites of placing the floral tributes upon the grave had been preformed by those who laid the remains of Douglass Edmonds to rest in the quiet cemetery, of the church in which he had worshiped for many years, the thoughts uppermost in their minds were that they had lost a noble hearted and genial friend, his heart broken sisters an affectionate and devoted brother and the community a worthy and valued citizen.

Edmonds, I. Keith - 08 Feb 1907 M.J. - Mr. I. Keith Edmonds, lately engaged in business in Washington, and a former citizen of this country, was found dead in his brothers barn at Greenwich on Friday morning last, having taken his own life.

Mr. Edmonds had been in bad health for several months, a sufferer from rheumatism, and it is also believed that his brain must have been impaired. Mr. Edmonds was in his fifty-fourth year and unmarried. He was a man of splendid physique and attractive personality. Warm hearted, liberal and generous and without vice or bad habits it is not easy to understand so sad an ending of life. And those who knew him best realize that only an unbalanced brain from physical derangement could have led to his untimely death. He was laid to rest in the cemetery at Greenwich. (not copied in whole)

Cooke, Presbyterian pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the church cemetery. The decedent’s five nephews and a cousin, Messrs. M. M., J. W. and R. L. Ellis, D. H. and J. F. Cockerille and J. L. Mayhugh, were the pallbearers.

Ellis, Mrs. J. B. - 25 Dec 1914 M. J. - In loving remembrance of our dear friend, Mrs. J. B. Miss Embrey had been ill of pneumonia for about a week prior to her death which occurred about 8 o’clock Tuesday evening at her parents home. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in the Baptist church, Rev. T. D. D. Clark conducting the services. Miss Embrey leaves her parents and two brothers, all of Manassas. The community extends its sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Ennis, George - 07 Feb 1913 M. J. - One of the most tragic deaths that has ever occurred in Prince William County was met by Mrs. George Ennis, fifty two years old, in her home near Orlando, at an early hour last Sunday morning. Mrs. Ennis, after being up for several nights with a sick child sat down before an open grate and fell asleep. Her clothing took fire and when she awoke she was enveloped in flames and suffering in agony from severe burns.
She rushed into an adjoining room where her husband and other members of the family were sleeping and screamed frantically for help, but the deadly flames had already placed her beyond all earthly aid. Dr. B. F. Iden, of Manassas, was summoned by phone but upon his arrival at the Ennis home he found that nothing could be done except to mitigate the sufferings of his patient, notwithstanding her pitiful appeals to save her life. After lingering in agony until two o’clock in the afternoon death relieved her of her earthly sufferings. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon, Rev. J. W. Brill, of the United Brethren Church, officiating, and interment was made in the family burying ground on the home premises. Besides her husband, the deceased is survived by three children.

Eskridge, Hammen - 28 Dec 1923 M. J. - Hammen Eskridge, fifty-four years old, brother of Mrs. George Bryant, of Manassas, and John J. Craven, aged fifty-five, were killed in Washington Wednesday when the automobile of Robert McLennan, blocked from turning into the narrow bridge over the Tidal Basin inlet by the sudden appearance of another car, plunged from the speedway into the basin. Mr. McLennan, the only occupant of the car to escape death, is under treatment at Emergency Hospital, where a policeman is on guard. An inquest is to be held today.

Mr. Eskridge, whose identity was not known to the survivor, was not identified for some time after the accident occurred. Mr. Bryant, his brother-in-law, went to Washington to verify the identification. The deceased, who had been living in Washington for thirty years, was a native of Virginia. Interment was at Merrifield, Fairfax County.

Evans, Delilah Anne - 01 Aug 1929 M. J. - Mrs. Delilah Anne Evans, wife of W. A. Evans, died on Wednesday night July 24, at Buckhall, following an illness of several years.

Mr. Evans was one of the best known residents of Prince William County, reached her seventy-first birthday three days before her death, having been born in Fairfax County on July 21, 1856.

The deceased, who came to Buckhall as a bride about 48 years ago was greatly beloved throughout the community and up to the time of her illness had been active in church work and community affairs.

Funeral services were held on Friday afternoon at Buckhall, prayer being said at the house by Rev. George Hasel, minister of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, South, after which the remains were carried to the Methodist Church, Buckhall, where the rites were held, followed by burial in the cemetery there. The esteem in which the deceased was held was attested by the number of people of the county attending the funeral, one of the largest ever held in the Buckhall church, while the numerous and beautiful floral pieces gave further evidence of her wide popularity.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Jack Stauf, Wood Jasper, Robert Young, Paul Irwin, John Colbert and David Colbert.
Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Eva Pruitt, of Alexandria and Mrs. Annie Weaver, of Buckhall; three sons, Messrs. Grover, William and Ernest Evans, of Manassas; one sister, Mrs. Martha Crosen and a half sister, Mrs. Ada Rollins, two brothers, Messrs. Davis and Jack Gheen, and a half brother, Mr. P. S. Pettitt, and eleven grandchildren.

Evans, Mary - 24 Feb 1911 M. J. - Mrs. Mary Evans, 81 years old, widow of the late William Evans, died at the home of her youngest son, Mr. Chas. B. Evans, near Buckhall, Saturday, of the infirmities of age.

The funeral took place from Buckhall church, Monday, Rev. H. S. Willey officiating, and interment was in Buckhall cemetery.

Death came to the Evans home so silently and without warning that the spirit of the aged woman took its flight while she, apparently, was in peaceful sleep. Her son, Mr. Jas. R. Evans, had bid her good-bye and received her invitation to come again, but not make it too long, scarcely a half hour before she died.

In the death of Mrs. Evans the family has lost a kind, indulgent mother, whose vacant chair will be a constant reminder of her many amiable characteristics and humble Christian faith, and the community in which she resided, a congenial and hospitable neighbor.

Evans, Nellie - 19 Apr 1928 M. J. - Information has been received at Manassas by Commonwealth’s Attorney Thomas H. H. Lion that “Aunt” Nellie Evans, a well known old colored woman of Buckhall vicinity was found dead at Burke on the Southern Railway.

Coroner C. A. Ranson, of East Falls Church, said her death was caused from “injuries sustained from fall from trestle on Southern Railway (accidental), three miles north of Burke, Va.”

He body was found Tuesday. Both arms and legs had been broken. Her birthplace is not known therefore it can only be assumed that she may have been about seventy years of age. The body was removed to Fairfax and from there it was brought to the undertaking rooms of R. L. Dellinger. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon. There are no known relatives.

Nellie Evans had a bank account at Alexandria. She went there and drew out money, probably between $65 and $70. The money was found on her body. It is only conjecture that she may have started to walk to her home here where she lived alone. Or she may have ridden part of the way and started to walk the balance. Or she may have started to walk part of the way expecting to ride part of the remaining distance.
Evans, Orlando H. - 03 Mar 1921 M.D. - Mr. Orlando H. Evans, highly esteemed citizen of Manassas, was stricken with paralysis last Saturday night, from which he did not rally, but remained in a semi-conscious state until about 8 o'clock Sunday night, when he became unconscious and died Monday noon, Feb 28. Several months prior to that time he had suffered from heart trouble, and was quite ill from last November until January.

Mr. Evans, who was a native of this county, and all lived in Manassas and vicinity all his long and useful life, was born near Buckhall, October 24, 1854, being 67 years, 4 months and 4 days old. He was the son of the late William and Mary Evans. He came to Manassas from Buckhall about thirteen years ago, and built his home on Prescott avenue where he lived until his death. He was engaged in the contracting and building business until failing health forced him to retire.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at Buckhall M.E.Church, of which he was a member, conducted by his pastor, Rev. Wm. Stevens, and interment was made in the family lot in the Buckhall cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, who was Miss Hester Ann Payne, and one son, Mr. Ewell K. Evans, of Manassas; three brothers, Messrs. W.A. and C.B. Evans, of Buckhall, and J.R. Evans, of Manassas, and three sisters, Mrs. Bertie Pearson, of Lorton, Va. and Mrs. J.S. Evans and Mrs. J.L. Payne, both of Buckhall.

His pallbearers were Messrs. C.J. Meetze, A.A. Hooff, G.G. Allen, O.O. Hollar, H.F. Robinson, and A.F. Raymond.

Evans, Robert Hilton - 01 Nov 1918 M.J. - Our community has suffered the loss of another well known young man, who though not a resident in late years, was remembered favorably. Mr. Robert Hilton Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Evans and brother of Mrs. Edgar Z. Pence, born at Buckhall, passed away on Sunday, October 27, at 9:30 a.m., at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Winifred Milnes in Center street, aged 28 years, of typhoid pneumonia.

Mr. Evans was married on October 27, 1914, to Miss Theresa Winifred Milnes, who with a thirteen-months, old daughter survive him. His death occurred on the fourth anniversary of his wedding.

At one time Mr. Evans had been employed here in the law office of Mr. H. Thornton Davies. During the past six years he had been engaged with the American Express Company, running between Baltimore and Pittsburgh. He was regarded as a hard working, industrious boy and was highly esteemed by his employers.

Mr. C. E. Shackford, superintendent of the Express Company, has written to Mr. Evans’ father as follows:

I was deeply grieved and shocked to receive telegram from you late Sunday evening, advising of the death of your son Robert. It came as a shock; having known him so well and when we last saw him in the office a week ago, he seemed to be in good health and we had every reason to expect him to return to our ranks. I personally thought a great deal of Robert and aside from business relations, feel a personal loss.

Assuring you of my deepest sympathy in your trouble and if there is anything that I can do, wish you would call upon me.

As an indication of the esteem in which he was held generally in his social life, Mrs. John Cain, the lady from whom he rested, when she learned of his death, came to Manassas, accompanied by her sister-in-law, to attend the funeral.

Indeed he came here about the middle of the month, with his wife and daughter, to help care for the family of Mrs. Evans’ mother, who were ill with influenza and pneumonia. In thus assisting others he contracted the same disease that caused his death.

He was a member of Manasseh Lodge, No. 182, A. F. and A. M. A happy coincidence in this connection is the fact that the degrees, which he received, were conferred by his father, when he was Worshipful Master. The burial was in the Manassas Cemetery, with Masonic honors, on Monday afternoon. The religious services were conducted by Rev. H. Q. Burr and Rev. Alex. Stuart Gibson.

The pallbearers were Messrs. A. F. Raymond, G. G. Allen, W. B. Bullock, R. E. Wine, Geo. L. Rosenberger and R. M. Jenkins.

Ewell, Eleanor Mildred Beale - 21 Apr 1916 M. J. - Miss Eleanor Mildred Beale Ewell, daughter of the late Dr. Jesse Ewell, of “Dumblane,” near Hickory Grove, this county, passed away at her home in the early morning of Friday, April 14th. She was buried on Saturday afternoon at “Edge Hill,” the residence of her brother, Mr. John S. Ewell.

Miss Ewell was a person of unusual elevation of character, being indeed to all who knew her the embodiment of those Christian graces, faith, hope and charity. Her disposition was singularly unassuming and free from undue pride. She had grown up under the ante-bellum regime and after more than fifty years of trying change still continued to exemplify it.

Her “War-Time Memories,” printed last summer in the Manassas Journal, are doubtless remembered by its readers. They were a source of much interest to her. She seemed to recall with a clearness, remarkable at her age, the people and scenes described, and it was fortunate that the writing was not delayed.

She was a charter member of the Eighth Virginia Regiment Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and of the American Clan Gregor Society, founded largely through her efforts and influence. She was also a devoted member of the Episcopal Church.

Death came to Miss Ewell gently after a short illness. Her passing was very peaceful, and such as became the close of a remarkably blameless life. “May she rest in peace!”

Ewell, James B. - 28 Apr 1911 M. J. - Col. James B. Ewell, one of the best known citizens of Prince William County, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. B. Carrington in Greenwich, Sunday night after an illness of about four hours, in the eighty-eighth year of his age.

The funeral took place Tuesday, Rev. J. Royal Cook, officiating, and interment was made in the Greenwich cemetery. The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. B. Carrington, with whom he made his home during the last twelve years of his life.

Col. Ewell was born at “Greenville,” the old Meredith place in this county which was owned at that time by his father to Memphis, Tennessee, and later, at the age of twenty years, he moved to Texas where he engaged in the cotton brokerage business.

Prior to leaving Memphis he married a daughter of General Edmondson, of Nashville, Tenn., and was, in two years, left a widower. He afterwards married Mrs. Lehr, a niece of the late General Sam Houston, the noted war veteran of Texas.

Mrs. A. B. Carrington, of Greenwich, who was the fruit of his first marriage, is his only living child.

During the civil war among the states, Col. Ewell served with distinction in the Confederate service in Texas.

He was a gentleman of scholarly attainments, and a kind and genial neighbor, whose presence in the community will be missed by his many warm friends.

Ewell, Mrs. John S. - 11 Aug 1910 M.D. - Mrs. John S. Ewell died Friday, July 29, at her home in Hickory Grove. The funeral was held the following Sunday with interment in the Ewell family burial ground. She was a daughter of the late Edwin Tyler, of Loudoun county, was related to President John Tyler, and was the mother of Alice Maude Ewell, the novelist. Mrs. Ewell is survived by her husband, John S. Ewell; daughter, Misses Mary, Alice, Maude, Charlotte, Nellie, Jennie and Mildred; and sons, Albert, John S. Jr., and Tyler.

Fair, Randolph Whitmer - 06 Dec 1918 M. J. - A telegram has just been received, telling of the death of Randolph Whitmer Fair, who died in France November 10th. He was killed in battle the day the armistice was signed.

His death was a great shock to his many friends. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, who was anxiously awaiting his early return home from far across the water. Also his wife and two little girls, the oldest six years of age, and the youngest a little over a year old.

Only a few days ago the oldest one, little Hazel, said I want to see my papa. And while this is their loss, we hope it will be his eternal gain. And now he has gone from this earth. He will nevermore know sorrow or pain.

Mr. Fair was born in Prince William County, Va., in February 10, 1886, and had made this his home until Uncle Sam sent him away Nov. 6, 1917, to fight for his country.

Mr. Fair had been road superintendent for Mr. T. M. Russell, in the county, for four years and was liked by all his friends.
Farquhar, Charles - 23 Nov 1917 M. J. - Mr. Charles Farquhar, one of the county’s oldest citizens, living in the vicinity of Buckhall, died last night, after a short illness, aged 79 years.

Mr. Farquhar was a native of England, but came o this country at about the age of 19 years. Subsequently he served in the army until the close of the war and after that upon the force of the Metropolitan Police of Washington. The deceased is survived by a wife and four children. Funeral arrangements have not been perfected, but the remains will be interred at Arlington.

Farquhar, Lawrence - 22 Mar 1918 M. J. - Lawrence Farquhar, a member of the Washington, D. C., police force, and a son of the late Charles Farquhar, of this county, committed suicide in Washington on Tuesday night of this week, after he had shot and killed his wife and Mrs. Harry White, in whose home Mrs. Farquhar was staying and wounding Mr. White and Clarence W. Triplett.

According to his friends, Fauquhar had been brooding over the action of his wife in filing recent divorce proceedings against him in the District of Columbia courts.

Mrs. Farquhar had left her husband and had gone to live at the White home, in Georgetown. About midnight Tuesday, Farquhar went to the White residence and effected an entrance, by means of a ladder, to the second story of the house, entering through a window into the room in which Mrs. Farquhar and Mrs. White were sleeping. Mrs. White, who was aroused by the noise made by Farquhar, sat up in bed and was immediately shot by the policeman. Farquhar then turned the revolver upon his sleeping wife and fired two bullets into her body, one bullet taking effect in her breast and the other in her stomach.

Awakened by the shots, Mr. White started for the room occupied by the two women and met Farquhar just emerging from the room into the hallway. The two men grappled, and White succeeded in getting a hold on the pistol, but with the muzzle pointing towards him. Before White could obtain possession of the weapon, Farquhar fired two shots, one of the bullets tearing away one of White’s fingers and the other hitting him in the side.

Triplett, a boarder in the White home, appeared in the hallway about the time and was felled by Farquhar by a blow on the head with the butt end of the revolver.

Escaping from the White house, Farquhar ran into the house of a friend living near by the scene of the double killing, and fired a bullet into his own brain. He died immediately from the self inflicted wound.

Farquhar served in the United States army during the Spanish American war, and upon his honorable discharge from the service in 1903 he was appointed a member of the Washington police force. He had a splendid record both as a soldier and as a police officer.

Several members of the Farquhar family are now living on the Farquhar homestead, near Buckhall.
Farquhar, William C. - 23 Oct 1913 M.D. - Policeman William C. Farquhar, of the seventh precinct, in Washington D.C., died yesterday afternoon, from a stroke of paralysis, following the bite of a rabid dog. Mr. Farquhar was bitten several weeks ago, when he was attempting to shoot the animal, at Potomac Street, N.W., Washington. Shortly after he was attacked he was treated by the Pasteur method at the hygienic laboratory of the Marine Hospital. The preventive treatment availed him nothing, and in a few days the stroke of paralysis followed.

Mr. Farquhar was forty-three years old, and for the past fifteen years has been a member of the Washington police force. He is survived by a widow and two sons; Arthur and Frank.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at nine o’clock, from the home of the deceased, thence to Holy Trinity Church, at Thirty-six and O Streets, where the services will be conducted. Interment will be made at Mt. Olivet, D.C.

Mr. Farquhar was the son of Capt. and Mrs. Chas. B. Fauquhar, who reside a few miles from Manassas, and who are well known in this locality.

Fately, Earl - 21 Dec 1911 M.D. - After a lingering illness, Earl Fately, 12 years old, died of a complication of diseases, yesterday morning at 5 o’clock in the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Fately. He had been stricken with typhoid fever six months ago. The funeral was held this afternoon at 3 o’clock. Interment was in Manassas cemetery.

Earl Fately was a pupil in the fifth grade of the Manassas public schools and a particularly bright and promising child. He leaves his parents; two sisters, Mrs. Edward Longerbeam of The Plains, and Miss Ann Fately of Manassas; and two brothers, David Fately and Thomas Fately.

Fately, Joseph - 22 Dec 1911 M. J. - Joseph Fately, aged 12 years, a son of Mr. C. D. Fately, foreman of the Stove factory at this place, died of a complication of diseases at the home of his parents in this town at about five o’clock Wednesday morning. He had been ill for about six weeks, and from the information which we have received he must have suffered intensely. When death occurred, one limb, we are told, had contracted until it was several inches shorter than the other, and even several of his teeth had fallen from their sockets, which would seem to indicate a most unusual case.

The lad was an intelligent and industrious boy, one who gave promise to develop into a man of usefulness. He was bright in his studies, being in the fifth grade at school. He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Edward Longbeam, of The Plains, and Miss Anna Fately, of Manassas, and two brothers, David and Thomas Fately, of this town.

His funeral took place at 3 o’clock yesterday afternoon. The burial was in the family lot in Manassas Cemetery.
Fewell, infant - 07 May 1914 M.D. Matches caused the death of the eighteen months old baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fewell at their home near Buckland last Sunday. Mrs Fewell, on last Saturday evening, went out of the house to attend to the milking, leaving the little girl in the house alone. Before going out Mrs. Fewell placed several matches near a lamp on a table so that she might make a light upon her return. Soon after leaving the house she heard agonized cries coming from that direction and she hurriedly returned to find the body of her little daughter lying on the floor horribly burned. Medical aid was summoned but death came early Sunday morning. It is thought that the child seeing the matches placed on the table took them and while playing they became ignited and soon her clothing was in flames. The funeral was held last Monday afternoon in the Baptist Church at New Baltimore.

Fewell, Laura - 17 Feb 1911 M. J. - Miss Laura Fewell, a native of this county and who is so widely and favorably known here, died in her home in Jackson, Miss., on Saturday last, of apoplexy. Her illness was of only a few hours duration and her dissolution was in accordance with her oft-repeated desire to be spared a long continued suffering in her last illness.

The funeral took place and the interment was in the cemetery at Meridian, Miss. The deceased was a daughter of the late Thos. T. Fewell, who was a brother of the late Col. W. S. Fewell, former freight agent and mayor of Manassas, and a niece of Col. John T. Leachman, of this county.

She was engaged in educational work the greater portion of her life and taught several sessions in the public and private schools of this county. She spent last winter here visiting her friends and relations, and her talents, as an interesting conversationalist, together with her charming personality and congenial characteristics made her extremely popular with those she came in social contact.

Fewell, Osborne - 23 Mar 1911 M.D. - Beneath the wheels of a Chesapeake and Ohio freight train Osborne Fewell 21 years old, met death at Catletts shortly afternoon Tuesday. He was crossing the track to deliver some merchandise when struck by the train. The body was taken to the home of the parents at Marshall for interment.

Mr. Fewell worked in the candy factory in Manassas about a year ago, and was a cousin of A.H. Harrell. He was last here in January on his way home for a visit. He was employed as a clerk in the store of L. Trennis, at Catletts.

Feydelum, Mrs. Andrew - 26 Mar 1915 M. J. - The little eight year old daughter of Mrs. Andrew Feydelum was playing around some burning brush at her home near Independent Hill on Wednesday afternoon about five o’clock when her dress caught on fire. It was only a few seconds before the child’s clothing was entirely consumed by the fire. Medical attention was summoned but death came to the little sufferer at 10 o’clock that night. Mrs. Feydelum and children moved into this community a few weeks ago from Alabama. The funeral was held in the Catholic Church at noon today, and interment was made in Manassas cemetery.

Fisher, Mary - 30 Mar 1910 or 1911 M.D. - While playing dominoes with her husband in their home near Hoadley last Tuesday evening, Mrs. Mary Fisher, 60 years old, was stricken with heart failure, and died ten minutes later. She was subject to heart trouble, and her husband fearing that the excitement of the close contest might prove fatal advised her to cease playing. Without warning she fell to the floor. Mrs. Fisher is survived by her husband, Conrad Fisher, four sons and a daughter. The body probably will be taken to Baltimore today for interment.

Fisher, Mary - 31 Mar 1911 M. J. - Mrs. Mary Fisher, 64 years old, wife of Mr. Conrad Fisher, died suddenly in her home on “Star Hill” farm, near Token, in Coles district, Tuesday night, of heart failure.

The evening meal had just been finished and Mrs. Fisher was engaged in playing dominoes with her husband when the death summons came. Mr. Fisher had left the game to answer a call at the door and upon his return to his wife he discovered that she was unconscious and breathing heavily. He at once conveyed her to her bed chamber and applied restoratives but she failed to rally and soon breathed her last.

The body was taken to Baltimore yesterday on train No. 10, leaving here at 1:10 p.m. The funeral took place from St. Benedict Catholic Church, of which the deceased was a member, and the interment was in Barneybrae Cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband and four sons, Messrs. Jno. A. Zeno and Pious A. Fisher, of Baltimore, and Evan A. Fisher, of this county, and by one daughter, Mrs. Mamie Boettinger, of Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Fisher was a devoted wife, an affectionate and indulgent mother and a kind neighbor, always ready to minister to the afflicted and needy even to the sacrifice of her own convenience and comfort, and she will be sadly missed in the community in which she has resided for over six years since coming to this county from her former home in Baltimore.

Fitzwater, Clarendra - 1910-1914 M.D. - Mrs. Clarendra Fitzwater, 68 years old, died of dropsy Sunday night at 9 o’clock in her home near Nokesville. Funeral services were conducted in Valley Church Monday afternoon by the Rev. I.A. Miller and the Rev. Samuel Flory. Interment was in Valley churchyard. Mrs. Fitzwater had been ill five weeks.

Mrs. Fitzwater is survived by her husband; four sons, S.W. Fitzwater and Elmer S. Fitzwater of Nokesville; P.B. Fitzwater, of Princeton N.J., P.C. Fitzwater, of Broadway; two daughters, Mrs. Samuel Baker, Miss Viola Fitzwater, Nokesville.

Mrs. Fitzwater and her husband came to Nokesville last March from Hardy county, West Virginia, the old family home. During her brief residence in Nokesville Mrs. Fitzwater formed many friendships. She was a member of the Brethren Church.

Fitzwater, S. W. - 16 Aug 1912 M. J. - Mr. S. W. Fitzwater, of Nokesville, this county, a member of the real estate firm of Fitzwater, Earhart and Co., was found dead in a room in the Lawrence hotel on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, Friday afternoon. It is believed he committed suicide by taking poison.

The proprietor of the hotel found Fitzwater dead in his bed about 2 o’clock in the afternoon. He said Mr. Fitzwater looked ill when he entered the hotel and he was solicitous about him, and for that reason entered the man’s room.

The police were notified, and the body was removed to the morgue. An autopsy, performed by Assistant Coroner White, showed that Fitzwater had died of poison, it is said. It is believed Fitzwater took the drug with suicidal intent.

Mr. Fitzwater had several slips, showing he had deposited money in a Nokesville bank, and a railroad ticket and a small amount of cash in his pocket.

The police communicated with his friends in Nokesville and Mr. Baker, an undertaker from this place, went down and prepared the body for burial. His remains were taken to Valley View Cemetery, Sunday, for interment.

Mr. Fitzwater was about fifty years of age and was a native of West Virginia, but he removed to the Valley of Virginia when a young man, where he married a Miss Anderson. He moved to this county five years ago.

His widow, father, a brother and sister- all residents of the county, survive him.

We learn that this was not Mr. Fitzwater’s first attempt at self-destruction but over the man’s frailties, for the sake of the family and friends, let us draw the veil of charity. He had his weaknesses and some of them may have been even greater than the weaknesses shown in the morbid appetites that revel and feast on others’ misdeeds.

Flaherty, Annanias - 14 Mar 1912 M.D. - Mr. Annanias Flaherty, 58 years old, was stricken with hemorrhage of the brain at his place of business on West Center Street Sunday morning, and died without regaining consciousness, at the home of his brother, Levi Flaherty, at 9:30 o’clock Sunday night. When found by Mr. Barney Bryant, who conducts a tin shop in the rear of Mr. Flaherty was lying unconscious with one of his shoulders resting against a hot stove which had ignited his clothing and inflicted a severe burn,

But for Mr. Bryant’s timely discovery nothing but the charred remains of the unfortunate victim, in all probability, would have been found.

The funeral took place from Grace M.E. Church, South, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Chas. L. DeLong, pastor of the church, officiating and interment was in the Manassas cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Capt. J.E.

The deceased is survived by one son, Walter, of Manassas; one daughter, Mrs. Bernard Cleveland, of Mt. Rainer, Md., and by three brothers, Messrs. Levi and Robert Flaherty, of Manassas, and James E. Flaherty, of Round Hill, Loudoun County.

She had followed the scriptural precept by remembering her Creator in the days of her youth, and was a faithful little member of the Baptist Church.

News of her death came as a distinct shock to her many friends here, as she had been apparently in her usual health until the day of her death, and had planned to return shortly to Manassas, where since the death of her husband, Mr. William Foote, she had made her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Lewis.

Upon being notified of her death by telegram on Tuesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left on an early train Wednesday morning for Alexandria and accompanied the remains to Manassas on an evening train.

Mrs. Foote was the daughter of George and Mary Clothier and was born in Dorchester, England, in 1840, being eighty-three years old at the time of her death. She was married to the late William Marsden Foote, of London, England, July 5, 1863.

Mr. and Mrs. Foote came to this country about fifty-six years ago. After residing in Maine for two years, then came to Prince William County, Va.

Foote, William - 05 Jul 1918 M. J. - Mr. William Foote, a prominent and highly respected citizen of Manassas, died at his home Wednesday evening in the 76th year of his age. His death was due to complications appearing after a fracture of the thigh about three weeks ago, as chronicled in the Journal.

Mr. Foote, was born in London, England, December 4, 1842. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Clothier of London, July 5, 1863, and had he lived until today would have celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of his wedding.

Landing in Canada fifty-one years ago, Mr. Foote went at once to Bethel, Maine, where he resided two years, from which place he came to Prince William County, Virginia, locating first on the farm near town recently owned by Mr. Walter N. Merchant. After a short stay on the farm near Minnieville and at Elliotts, near Richmond, where he was engaged in business, he returned to Manassas on poor health and has been a resident of the town more than forty years, until his death.

William Foote was highly thought of in this section; coming in contact frequently with many of our citizens, his genial manner and unquestioned integrity won for him many friends who found pleasure in his association. His religion was stern like that of the puritan, which could brook no innovations from modern “higher criticism”- “the old time religion was good enough for him.”

Born and reared in a foreign land, Mr. Foote was thoroughly American in though and deed; he was a naturalized citizen, and loved his adopted country as thought native to its soil.

The deceased was a life long member of the Presbyterian church he was an elder and trustee in the church and superintendent of the Sunday School for many years.

He is survived by his wife, four daughters and one son. His children are: Mrs. H. C. Linn, of Alexandria; Mrs. D. H. Prescott, of Medford, Mass.; Mrs. D. R. Lewis, of Manassas; Mrs. C. G. Griffith, of Washington, D. C. and Mr. Wm. H. Foote, of Washington.

The funeral services will be held from the Presbyterian church Sunday at 3 o’clock p. m., the pastor, Rev. Alford Kelley, officiating; the burial will be in the cemetery near town.

Manassas has lost a good citizen, whose death will be mourned by the community at large.
Ford, E. R. - 20 Sep 1912 M. J. - The body of Mr. E. R. Ford, a resident of Washington, was found Wednesday morning near the tracks of the Great Falls Railway, in the vicinity of Mackey station. He had committed suicide some time during the night by shooting himself in the head. He had on his person a considerable sum of money, a gold watch and other articles,

Mr. Ford was lying on his left side with his hands folded across the chest. The revolver was about two feet away, indicating that he had rolled down the hill after firing the fatal shot.

Mr. Ford was fifty-four years old, and for many years was engaged in the lunch room business at Seventh and F streets, northwest. About a year ago he sold out his lunch room and three months ago he opened a grocery store at Twenty-first and M streets, northwest. The venture is said to have proved unsuccessful, and Ford, according to relatives, was in financial difficulties.

Mr. Ford was in business here about twenty years ago, and is widely known in Northern Virginia. He was a kinsman of Colonel Willard and Mr. C. Vernon Ford, commonwealth’s attorney of Fairfax.

Ford, William F. Jr. - 20 Dec 1918 M. J. - Wm. F. Ford jr., died last Sunday about 5:30 p. m. Mr. Ford had only been confined to his bed since Wednesday, Dec. 11, but had been ill for several days before going to bed.

He was born in this vicinity and has lived here all his life. He married Miss Lota Buckley about three years ago, by whom he is survived with a little son about two years of age. He is survived by his parents, three sisters and one brother. Mr. Ford had been a member of Clifton Baptist Church for several years.

He was also a member of the Masonic order. His father, Wm. Ford, Sr., is said to be in a very serious condition, at this writing, from an affection of the heart, which has been very much aggravated by his grief over the loss of this, his eldest child.

Mr. T. A. Ayre is also in a very critical condition. Dr. Iden, of Manassas, was called into consolation with Dr. Ferguson Monday afternoon.

Foster, Redmond - 27 Dec 1912 M. J. - Mr. Redmond Foster, who would have been eighty-nine years old next month, died after a brief illness, Wednesday night, at the home of Mr. S. C. Southard, near Bristow. The funeral will take place at one o’clock this afternoon and the interment will be made in the burial ground at Moregreen farm, near Brentsville.

There are few people in Prince William County who are more extensively and favorably known than was Mr. Foster. His uniform kindness and courtesy endeared him to all who were intimately associated with him and his honesty and true sense of justice gained for him the highest confidence of a host of friends.

About the year 1845, Mr. Foster married the widow of James Reid, who was a daughter of the late Howson Hooe, of this county, and the owner of the farm upon which Mr. Foster was laid to rest. His wife preceded him to the grave several years ago.

In the death of Mr. Foster one more link in the chain that binds together the true Southern manhood of his native county has been severed and no language is too exalted in which to praise him; no praise too eloquent to apply to a life devoted to the service of his State and people. He was the very soul of kindly courtesy, and high and low, rich and poor, have found comfort and hospitality at his fireside. A long and useful life has ended, may he rest in peace.

Gardner, Ada - 14 Jul 1910 M.D. - During the terrible thunder storm that swept over Hickory Grove in the upper part of this county, on Friday Miss Ada Gardner, a most estimable young lady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gardner, was struck and instantly killed by lightning. The family resided at Ewell’s chapel, near Hickory Grove, and was one of the most hospitable and esteemed in the neighborhood.

The vivid glare of lightning and thunder roll of the fearful storm had partially subsided when Miss Gardner ventured to a nearby spring for a pitcher of water. As she turned from the spring to the house there came a glare of lightning and terrific crash of thunder, and the young lady lay dead, within a short distance and in sight of her bewildered and heart-broken mother.

When kind and sympathetic neighbors bore the lifeless form of the young girl to the home she had so recently left in all the beauty and animation of young womanhood, a more pathetic scene could not be imagined. With the mother wringing her hands in bitterest anguish while friends and neighbors sought to quiet her, the grief on all sides was a test of stoutest hearts.

Within a brief period, the voice which rang through the home in joyful glee was hushed in death and the form which glided from room to room in ministering to her mother’s comfort, reposed in the last long sleep in the parlor in which the unfortunate young lady had entertained in social converse the sorrowing witnesses of the tragic incident.

Gardner, Dr. John Flagg - 17 Nov 1910 M.D. - Dr. John Flagg Gardner, soldier, scholar, physician, died of old age early Saturday morning in his home on East street. He was 86 years old, and had been in feeble health for the last ten years. The funeral was held Monday morning from Trinity Episcopal church, the Rev. Grinnen, of Haymarket, officiating. Interment was in Manassas cemetery.
Dr. Gardner came to Manassas in April 1909, from Nelson county, the family home for almost thirty years. About a year ago despite extreme age and feeble health, he successfully underwent an operation on his eyes.

Dr. Gardner was a man of wide learning and high ideals. He attained eminence as a physician early in his career, during the epidemic of cholera in Richmond in 1852, when he made cures that attracted attention of medical scientists throughout the entire country. But he healed others at the sacrifice of his own health, and after a few years of medical service he was compelled to abandon a practice promising a most brilliant future and move to the country in hopes of recuperating.

Dr. Gardner was graduated from Harvard with a A.M. degree in the class of 1847. He also was graduated from Richmond College and from the Homeopathic College in Philadelphia. He became interested in homeopathy in Paris, during a tour abroad.

Dr. Gardner was a Confederate veteran. During the last two years of the civil War he fought with Hanover troop, Fourth Virginia Cavalry, enlisting as a private, but being detailed to duty as surgeon before the close of the war.

In 1857 he married Miss Isabella Nelson, of Albemarle, who died in 1863. Their children still living are Mrs. Nina Walpole, of Charlottesville, widow of the Hon. Clare Walpole, of England; and Frank N. Gardner of Covington.

In January, 1867, Dr. Gardner married Miss Alice Mosby, of Nelson county, who survives him with their children, Miss Virginia Cavill Gardner, of Manassas; Mrs. W.K. Moss, of Markham, Fauquier county, and J.C. Gardner, of Valdesta, Ga. All the surviving children were here for the funeral.

He was born in Ipswich, Mass., Oct. 12 1825, and spent his childhood in Lynn, Mass. He was a model citizen, held in the highest esteem by all with whom he came in contact and his death is widely mourned.

Gaskins, Lake - 27 Aug 1915 M. J. - Lake Gaskins, colored, 21 years old, son of Ben and Susanna Gaskins, was killed instantly Sunday afternoon about 12:30 as he was working on a freight car near the coal bin. Young Gaskins, who was frequently employed by Mr. E. R. Conner, was given employment on Sunday by Mr. J. B. Trimmer, who carried him to some coal cars near the coal bin upon which work was to be done.
From accounts of the accident he was working beneath one of the cars when a backing freight bumped into the idle cars. It is supposed that he attempted to crawl out and in doing so met his death.

A coroner’s jury, which met upon the scene of the accident immediately after it happened, heard what evidence could be obtained and adjourned until tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon before rendering a verdict. It seems, however, that no flag was out as we understand is the rule among the employees of the railroads when work is being done on idle cars. It was claimed that Gaskins was told to look out as the backing train was seen to be approaching, but whether this warning was given soon enough is not known.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon and interment was in the colored cemetery. Besides his parents the deceased is survived by three sisters and two brothers.

Goode, John - 29 Dec 1922 M. J. - A heavy toll of human life was taken by the Southern railroad Saturday night when four youths were instantly killed at the Grant Avenue crossing by a shifting freight train. The dead are Taylor Weir, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Weir; John Goode, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Goode; of Manassas, and George Spencer and Edwin Freeman, of the Plains.

The four young men were riding in an automobile driven by Spencer when they were run down by the freight train at about 11:30 o’clock Saturday night. Southbound train No. 41 was standing at the station and was blocking the crossing at Main, Battle and West Streets. The four boys drove to the Grant avenue crossing to pass, it is supposed, from the north to the south side of the railway tracks. In their endeavor to cross they were caught by the freight, which was backing west on the northbound passenger track to take a siding in order that a northbound passenger train could have the right of way. The automobile was apparently caught fairly in the center of the rails on which the freight was moving. It was carried an approximate distance of three hundred feet and was completely demolished, except that its motor appears to be intact. The bodies of all four boys were found near the crossing and in a lifeless condition. Death was more than likely instantaneous in each case.

The bodies were carried to the undertaking establishment of Mr. Geo. D. Baker and there prepared for burial. The two Manassas youths were buried on the afternoon of Christmas day from Trinity Episcopal Church, Rev. A. Stuart Gibson conducting a joint funeral service. The bodies of Spencer and Freeman were conveyed to The Plains Monday morning and interment was made at that place the afternoon of the same day. The two Manassas boys were each nineteen years of age. Spencer and Freeman were a year or two older.

The untimely and tragic death of the four boys cast a pall of gloom over the Christian holidays here. Both Taylor Weir and John Goode had many friends among both the older and younger people of the town and community.

The beautiful floral tributes bore silent but beautiful testimony of the respect and esteem in which they both were held. Among the floral offerings was a Hugh bouquet of mistletoe sent by friends from Brentsville.

Young Freeman was a kinsman of T. J. Broaddus, and he and Spencer, who had been visiting at the Broaddus home Saturday night had left there but an half hour before the accident.

In an effort to fix responsibility for the accident, Dr. W. Fewell Merchant, county coroner, convened a jury Tuesday morning. After hearing the account of the accident from E. S. Baber, brakeman on the freight train, and such other witnesses as were produced, the coroner’s jury returned a verdict that the accident was caused by the joint negligence of the railway company and the driver of the automobile.

The Witness Baber testified that he was standing on the rear car of the backing freight and that he saw the automobile approaching and endeavored to warn the occupants of their danger, but was not successful in attracting their attention. He said he then signaled to the engineer but that the freight car was then within five feet of the automobile. According to the testimony of the freight crew the train was not moving at a greater rate of speed than four miles an hour when the accident occurred.

The drowned man was a carpenter at the marine camp at Quantico, Va., and the day he left home Mrs. Gooding implored him not to go, but get work in Washington, where he could be near her.

Gooding was with three other men, bathing. When “Harry” found that his own life was in danger he released hold of Gooding and the latter sank. His body was recovered an hour later.

Their sorrow is softened their joy for her, their dear __ and aunt, who has so sweet__”entered into the inheritance of God’s children.”

Unobtrusive and unexacting she lived day by day a consistent life, shedding around her the sweet perfume of a perfect faith in her Savior and Redeemer. An intimate friend often going into that pleasant home, unannounced, frequently found her sitting with her open Bible before her. God’s word, from which she received comfort and joy and peace. There is the vacant chair, and no more can we receive from her the kindly greeting and loving word., but with the pleasant recollections that will ever cluster around her memory and the joyous anticipations of the meeting by and by in the heavenly home, we must not mourn. For us who wait there is work yet to be done, there is firmer faith to cultivate there are yet opportunities of usefulness, kind words to be spoken and deeds to be done in our own homes first, and in the world around us. Let us learn more perfectly these great lessons, and so many the memory of God’s saints woo us to a higher and nobler Christian life. “Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.”

Hedrick, Charles Edward - 16 Jul 1914 M.D. - Died at Catlett, Jun 24, Chas. Edward, infant son of Lottie and Oren Hedrick, aged four months, two weeks and two days. He was such a jolly and good natured little baby before he was taken with whooping cough, just brimming over with laughter and joy. How glad we were that he did not have to linger long in pain, but that when Jesus called the little sufferer to come to him, his little life went out without a struggle. It was a relief to see his lovely little face in such smiling, Heavenly peace, instead of wearing the drawn look of agony it had worn for the past few days. No sin will ever blacken his white soul, but his parents can know that they will always have a little baby in Paradise, forever pure and sweet, shinning among the brightest of His jewels. I, two, loved that little baby, and if ever I reach the Better Land, I hope his arms will reach out a tiny welcome to me.

Kasehagen passed through Manassas last week en route to Washington, having been called recently to Montvale by the sudden death of her mother. Mrs. Higginbotham will be remembered by a number of people, having visited Manassas quite frequently during her daughter’s residence here.

The following is printed from the Bedford Democrat: Mrs. Althea Jane Higginbotham, who was taken home on the 13th instant, was born a Montvale October 7, 1852, and married October 21, 1874, to Mr. Cyrus A. Higginbotham, of Arrington, Nelson county. She was the great-grandmother of Col. James Higginbotham, of Revolutionary fame, and a granddaughter of Colonel Jos. Cabell Higginbotham, Sr., who received a grant of land in Goose Creek Valley for services in the war of 1812, and the daughter of Joseph Cabell Higginbotham, Jr., and Angeline Plunkett. She was a student of Hollins Institute and afterwards a school teacher. She was always interested in education as a means of attaining the essential benefits of life, and after her husband’s death in 1896, she struggled through many difficulties to rear her children to be Christians. She was a noble woman, loved by all who knew her, and was energetic and patient, bearing her sufferings patiently, and trusting always in her Savior, and the writer trusts that the ones left to mourn her will feel that she has gained Life Eternal and wants her loved ones to guide their footsteps so they will go “Over there” where she waits to greet her children.

She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Leo W. Kasehagen, Mrs. Clarence Berger, all of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Royston St. Noble, of Barcelona, Spain; Mrs. Howard W. Johnson, of Roanoke, and Raymond Higginbotham, of Montvale; and five grandchildren. All of her children were present at the funeral with the exception of Mrs. St. Noble, and her eldest grandson, Leo W. Kasehagen, who was ill.

He is survived by sixty-three descendants, seven of whom are sons and daughters. Here are fifty living grandchildren and six of the fourth generation.

Hillerbrand, Henry - 30 Jun 1911 M. J. - Henry Hillerbrand who, on June 26, 1910, was seriously injured in an accident which occurred at the incinerating plant of the Washington Fertilizer Company, at Cherry Hill, this county, and who was awarded $2,750 damages by the circuit court of Alexandria City in his suit against said company, in March last, died suddenly in Baltimore, on June 13th, under very suspicious circumstances.

When Mr. Hillerbrand was able to leave the hospital where he was confined for some length of time on account of the injuries he sustained in Cherry Hill plant, he went to live with Mr. L. B. Oertley, near Dumfries, with whom he had lived for a period of several years prior to his death.

He left the Oertley home, a few days ago, and went to Alexandria where he called on his attorney, Judge C. E. Nicol, on business, and afterwards called at the Alexandria National Bank in which he had substantial deposits. From Alexandria he went to Baltimore for the purpose of settling some business in connection with a recent inheritance from a friend in that city.

It is said, upon good authority, that Mr. Hillerbrand was in the habit of carrying a large sum of money upon his person and when he died the only money found upon him was fifty cents.

Before his funeral took place letters of administration were taken out in Baltimore, by a party unknown to his friends in Virginia, and a week later checks were presented to the Alexandria National Bank covering the entire sum of Mr. Hillerbrand’s balance on deposit. Judge Nicol, president of the bank, instructed the cashier to refuse payment on the checks on the ground that the law permits banks to pay checks drawn by the deceased if presented within two weeks after his death.

Mr. Oertley, who has, for some time, been closely associated with Mr. Hillerbrand, stoutly asserts that the deceased had no relatives or other persons in Baltimore rightfully entitled to any portion of the deceased’s estate.

An investigation of the circumstances surrounding Mr. Hillerbrand’s death is being made which may result in startling disclosures.

Hite, William Fowler - 13 Mar 1914 M.J. - Again has our district of Gainesville been visited by the heavy hand of death, this time removing from our midst one of our most useful and valued citizens; one whose place it will be difficult to fill. There was no man in our community who will more be missed, an official who in the discharge of his arduous duties measured up fully to all requirements. Unimpeachable in every relation of life, socially he was one of the most perfect of gentlemen. Often before and since his death it has been said of him that he was never known to be unkind in act or speech. His life and his character will long remain amongst us an example and heritage.

William Fowler Hite was born in 1847 in Frederick County, Virginia, one of the twelve children of Hugh Holmes Hite and his wife, Ann Randolph Meade, two of whom survive him, Mrs. C. Shirley Carter, of Thoroughfare, and Rev. Lewis Field Hite, D.D., Ph.D., of Cambridge, Massachusetts.

At eight years of age, Mr. Hite with his parents moved to “Buckland Farm,” in this county, where he was carefully educated by private tutors. After the Civil War he was sent to Rappahannock County and lived there on a large estate with his father and brothers, and moved to the village of Gainesville in 1872, where he established a large store house and for several years was postmaster of the village.

In the same year he was appointed to the position of depot agent, which office he held for forty-two years, serving continuously until the day before his death, on the first day of March, 1914.

Mr. Hite was married on the 9th of June, 1892, to Miss Bella F. Love, of the Fairfax bar.

As evidence of his remarkable faithfulness and efficiency in office, the subject of his sketch, on the eve of the day on which death released him from his labors, turned over to his successor the books of his business correct and complete.

Hixson, Felix - 11 Jan 1907 M.J. - Mr. Felix Hixson, son of Mr. Leland Hixson, died at his home in Washington last Monday night of consumption in about his 30th year. His remains were brought here yesterday and taken to the old family burying-ground, near Buckhall for interment.

Shortly before death she was stricken by paralysis.
Miss Harriet Hickerson was born in Rappahannock county in 1844, and moved with her parents to Greenwich, Prince William county. In 1867 she married George Hixson, of Manassas, and since has made this town her home. She is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. Mollie Larkin, widow of Lucien Larkin, Mrs. Lucy Arrington, and Miss Lillian Hixson.

Mrs. Hixson was prominent in activities of the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Memorial Association, and the beautiful Confederate monument is an evidence of her efforts with others in the societies to mark the resting place of Southern heroes.

Eloquent, indeed, is the tribute to her memory by a friend, who says; “Mrs. Hixson is too well known to require any detailed account of her life. A help meet to family and friends, she recognized her first duty to those whom God had committed to her care. Charity characterized her life.”

Hixson, Leonard E. - 30 Aug 1918 M. J. - Mr. Leonard E. Hixson, who had for a long time been a sufferer from heart trouble, died at his home on Fairview avenue, on Saturday, August 24, aged forty-four years.

He was a member of M. E. Church, South, and continued as such until his demise.

Surviving him are his wife, two daughters and one brother, Byron F. Hixson, of Washington.

Funeral services were held at Grace Methodist Church Sunday afternoon, at 4 o’clock, Rev. H. Q. Burr, pastor of the church, officiating, and burial was made in the Manassas cemetery.

Hodge, Clyde - 18 Jul 1912 M.D. - Clyde Hodge, the fifteen-year old son of John Milton Hodge, of Washington, and a nephew of Prof. B. T. Hodge, of Manassas, was drowned in the Potomac river just below the Highway Bridge, while in the act of going in bathing with a companion named Melcher, Sunday afternoon.

The two boys hired a boat at French’s boathouse, near Twining City Sunday morning, and started up the river. They were clad in bathing suits and when they came opposite the river wall prepared to enter the water.

According to young Hodge’s companion, the drowned boy asked him to sound the depth of the water and Melcher let himself in the water and sank over his head. It is supposed that young Hodge seeing his companion sink beneath the surface jumped in to rescue him from drowning and thus lost his life.

Young Hodge was of an amiable disposition and thoroughly devoted to his parents. His knowledge was far beyond his years, he having been in the civil service for some year or more and commanding a good salary for one of his age. His parents are prostrated over the tragic death of their boy.

Pro. Hodge received a telegram Sunday night announcing the sad occurrence and boarded the first train for Washington.

While discharging the duties of that difficult position to the satisfaction of everyone, he greatly enlarged the circle of his acquaintance in the county, and at the time of his death was not only one of the most widely known but one of the most respected and best liked.

It is no idle praise to say that his word was his bond, nor is it a vain eulogium to say that his death leaves a gap in his community and county which cannot be filled.

Hundreds can say of their departed friend with truth and emphasis: “He was my friend, faithful and just to me.”

Hooe, Robert Howson - 02 May 1913 M. J. - Mr. Robert Howson Hooe, after several months illness of a complication of diseases, died in his home near New Baltimore, Fauquier County, Sunday night, in the seventy-seventh year of his age.

Hooe, of near New Baltimore, and by four sisters: Mrs. Whitfield Nutt and Mrs. B. F. Iden, of Manassas, and Mrs. Thomas J. Smith and Mrs. W. G. Iden, of Washington, and by two brothers: Messrs. Howson Hooe, of near Nokesville, and Peter Hooe, of Buckingham County, this State.

Besides his efficient services as Commissioner of the Revenue for upper Prince William County for a number of years. Mr. Hooe filled many other offices of public trust with marked ability, untiring energy and courtesy.

His uniform kindness and personal magnetism placed him in the position of a most formidable competitor for any office within the gift of the voters of his native county, for everyone liked, and spoke in the highest commendation of “Bob” Hooe.

The Manassas Chapter, U. D. C., and Ewell Camp, Confederate Veterans, attended the obsequies in a body, and among the floral tributes laid upon the grave was a handsome wreath of Magnolio leaves, tied with ribbons of the Confederate colors-- the tribute adopted by the Virginia Division of the U. D. C. -- was tenderly placed thereon by the hands of Mrs. A. W. Sinclair, president of the Manassas Chapter of the first named society.

When Company A., (Ewell Guards) commanded by Capt. J. B. Norville, was organized in Brentsville, in June, 1861, Mr. Hooe joined that company as a private for one year, as the expiration of which time he re-enlisted at Yorktown in the spring of 1862 for the remainder of the war and served with distinction in many bloody conflicts until he lost his left arm in the second battle of Cold Harbor, where his company lost heavily in killed and wounded, on May 30, 1864.

After spending three months in Winder hospital, in Richmond, he was detailed as quartermaster Sergeant of his regiment serving in that capacity until honorably discharged for disability, February 1, 1865. When his company went to the front it was assigned to the “bloody” 49th Virginia Regiment, Pegram’s Brigade and “Stonewall” Jackson’s Corps. Besides numerous minor engagement he participated in the famous battles of First and Second Manassas, Williamsburg, Seven-days-fight around Richmond, Cedar Mountain, Antietam or Sharpsburg, the bloody engagement at Marye’s Heights at Fredericksburg and the bloody conflict at Cold Harbor.

Soon after the close of the war Mr. Hooe married Miss Bettie Meredith, one of Prince William’s most accomplished and popular young ladies, who was a daughter of the late Thos. S. Meredith and a sister of the late Congressman E. E. Meredith and of Dr. J. Cabell Meredith, of Manassas, Thos S. Meredith, of near Gainesville, and Richard Meredith, of Texas.

In the death of R. H. Hooe his sons have lost a kind, sympathetic and indulgent father, whose counsel was their guide: the community in which he resided a warm-hearted and faithful friend and neighbor, and the county a useful citizen who was alive to every important issue affecting public interest for weal or for woe. When the large concourse of admiring friends and relatives stood, with bared heads, around the open sepulcher and saw all that was mortal of their faithful friend and companion lowered to its last resting place, the thought was uppermost in the minds of all that a good man had gone to his last reward. May he rest in peace.

Funeral services were held at the old homestead and were conducted by the Rev. O. A. Donal, pastor of Mount Zion Church, of which the deceased had been a consistent member for forty-five years. He was laid to rest in the family burying ground on the home place. A large concourse of sympathizing friends, both white and colored, followed him to the grave. He leaves a wife and 7 children and 28 grand children. Uncle Jim, as he was more familiarly known, had been confined to the house for the past nine months. He bore his suffering with patience, meekness and humility, leaning upon the promise of the future state.

Howdershell, Armenia - 01 Aug 1910 M.D. - Mrs. Humphrey Howdershell, 60 years old, a resident of Prince William county for many years, died Saturday at her home near Waterfall, after a long illness. She had been an invalid for several years. The funeral and interment were at the former home at Hopewell, Fauquier county, Sunday.

Mrs. Howdershell was a sister-in-law of Penn Chapman, of Manassas. She is survived by her husband, a son, Lee, and a daughter, Mrs. Howard Bell.

Howdershell, Humphrey - 20 Nov 1914 M. J. - Humphrey Howdershell died November 7 at his home near Waterfall, at the age of seventy years. He was a soldier of the Confederacy, having served through the civil war in the Sixth Virginia Cavalry.

He was married in 1869 to Miss Armenia Peake, who died four years ago. Their two children, Mr. Lee Howdershell, of The Plains, and Mrs. Edith Bell, of Waterfall, survive. He also leaves two brothers, Messrs. Scott and William Howdershell, both of Loudoun County, and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Sinclair, of Hopewell, and Mrs. Cora Dawson, of Alexandria.

Howe, W.H. - 5 Mar 1914 M.D. - Mr. W.H. Howe, a young man connected with the signal corps of the Southern Railway, was struck by train No. 35 yesterday and received injuries from which he died shortly after. The injured man was operating a steam drill two miles this side of Catlett, when the fast southbound train approached unheeded and before he could move had struck him about the upper part of the body. He was slightly cut and bruised, and his skull was fractured. No. 35 was stopped and the injured man carried to Catlett and upon the arrival of No. 10 was returned to Manassas, where for several weeks he had been living. The remains were removed to the undertaking establishment of G.D. Baker and will later be shipped to his home in Indianapolis.

Hughes, Benjamin F. - 30 Dec 1921 M. J. - The funeral services of the late B. F. Hughes were held at the Lutheran Church in Manassas on Wednesday at 11:30 o'clock. The deceased was well known in town, having moved here when quite a young man, and having lived here for twenty-five years.

Mr. Hughes was born in New Tripoli, Pa., in 1859 and had he lived, would have been sixty-three on March 4th.

Injuries which he received about two months ago resulted in his death, which occurred at Allentown, Pa., on Christmas eve. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. L. M. Carroll, of Washington; Mrs. Edwin Griffin, of New York, and Miss Susie Hughes, of Allentown, Pa., and two sons, Mr. J. B. Hughes, of Topeka, Kans., and George Hughes, of Washington, all of whom were present at the funeral.

The fact that the report of Mr. Hughes' death had not reached the majority of his friends in Manassas accounted for the small attendance at the funeral.

Hulfish, Jas. P. - Mr. Jas. P. Hulfish, a life-long resident of Haymarket, died at his home on the morning of June 23, aged sixty-eight years.

He had been a great sufferer for the last twelve years with a peculiar nervous affection, often racked with pain such as no one knew except himself and his Maker. Long and weary were the nights and morning brought no relief. Only those who were familiar with his suffering can know that death to him was a welcome messenger, and felt that his oft-repeated desire that his soul be released from this tenement of clay had indeed been granted and he was with Him he had humbly and truly served from his early youth.

The funeral service was held in the Baptist church of which he was a consistent member, the Rev. T. D. D. Clark, pastor, officiating. Interment was at Antioch by the side of a beloved daughter who preceded him to the better land some years ago in the morning of her life.

Mr. Hulfish was one of the first to respond to his country’s call when the clarion note of war was sounded. He joined the Prince William Cavalry in a company conspicuous for gallantry and daring, and served through the war.

Although nearly half a century has passed away since those stirring times and few of his old comrades are left to answer the roll call, yet it was the men who wore Gray who bore him to his last resting place. The pallbearers were Dr. H. M. Clarkson, Capt. Jas. E. Herrell, Henry F. Lynn, John W. Hall, J.
P. Smith and Jas. W. Bell.

Mr. Hulfish is survived by his widow, who was Miss Mary Virginia Smith, three sons, Randolph, of Latrobe, Pa.; Jas. A., and Lawrence A., of Alexandria; one grand daughter, Miss Irene Demory.

A large concourse of friends and relatives followed his remains to the quiet cemetery beneath the shadow of the mountains, and beautiful floral tributes bore testimony to the love and sympathy of his many friends.

Hulfish, Mary Virginia - 04 sep 1914 M. J. - On Tuesday Aug. 18, when it became known that death, the insatiate gleaner, had taken from us in the still hours of the night Mrs. Mary Virginia Hulfish, widow of the late Jas. P.
Hulfish, a feeling of profound sorrow swept over this entire community. Few if any of the residents of the village were more beloved.

Mrs. Hulfish was born in this county Feb. 22, 1842, and had lived in Haymarket all of her married life, a period of nearly forty-eight years. Although she had passed the allotted time of man, “three score and ten,” with her kindly acts, genial ways and cheery face, she seemed everyoung to us who knew and loved her. Ever ready to do a kindness, she greeted many a little stranger who came to tread life’s way and smoothed many a dying pillow when life’s journey was over. In her home, her church, the Sabbath school and in all good works she always held out a helping hand, ever willing to take the bitter that others might have the sweet. It can truly be said her price was far above rubies “and her children will rise up and call her blessed.”

Mr. Hulfish is survived by three sons, and one daughter: Messrs. Jas. A.
Hulfish, of Alexandria, Randolph and Lawrence Hulfish and Miss Ruth Hulfish, of Haymarket; also four grandchildren and two brothers, J. P. Smith, of Waterfall, and Jos. B. Smith, of Colorado, and one sister, Mrs. Jas. W. Bell, of this county.

The funeral service was at her home church, conducted by her former pastor Rev. T. D. D. Clark.

Interment was at Antioch, the church of her early years. There in the quiet cemetery, where sleep father and mother, husband and child, covered with a canopy of beautiful flowers which bore testimony to the love and sympathy of kindred and friends, she will await the summons: “Child, come up higher and hear the plaudit: Well done thou good and faithful servant.
Hummer, G. W. F. - 22 Jan 1914 M. J. - The late Washington papers published the obituary notice of the death of G. W. F. Hummer, who was fatally injured by being struck on Sunday, the 11th, by a hospital ambulance. No truer or better man served in the Civil War than G. W. F. Hummer. He was well known throughout the Army of Northern Virginia and was Colonel Hunton’s orderly at Gettysburg and conveyed his colonel from the field when wounded there.

Just as our ranks were being formed for the charge on Cemetery Ridge a horseman came dashing from our left and stopping his horse by General Garnett said: “The order is to dress to the left on Pettigrew.” Then wheeling his horse he disappeared in the direction from which he came. Hummer, who was with Colonel Hunton close by, said: “Colonel I don’t think General Kempe has received that order; had I no better let him know that the order of dress has been reversed from right to left?” Hunton said “Yes; go tell him,” and General Kemper said, I have not received it, but I will obey it. Tell Hunton I will dress on him.”

We had proceeded but a short distance in the charge when sharp-shooter’s ball pierced Colonel Hunton’s leg and entered the side of Hummer’s little dun horse, one of the five horses that went into the charge and who only lived long enough to bear the colonel off the field before he fell dead. A few days before the evacuation of Richmond, I received the following order from General Lee: “Lieutenant-Colonel Edmund Berkeley with __ man of his own selection, is detailed to go into the counties of Loudoun, Fauquier and Prince William for the purpose of procuring cavalry arms and will report to my chief of ordnance Colonel Baldwin for instruction------

Humphrey, Bertie - 09 Apr 1915 M. J. - Mrs. Bertie Humphrey was found dead in her home near Nokesville on Monday. Landes and was well known throughout the Nokesville neighborhood. She leaves one sister and her father. Funeral services were conducted from the Brethren church, of which she was a member, on Wednesday by Rev. I. A. Miller. Interment was in Valley View Cemetery.

Hunt, Harriett Elizabeth - 27 Jan 1922 M. J. - At her home in upper Prince William, after one week of bad feeling from bronchitis, Mrs Harriet Elizabeth Hunt, beloved wife of Mr. S. W. Hunt, Sr., entered into rest.

She was born March 14, 1843 and was married to Mr. Hunt, March 3 1870. Eight children were born to this union of whom six survive, viz.: S. W. Hunt jr., of Woolsey; Mrs. Harriet Gardner, of Del Ray; Mrs. W. B. Cross, of Arcola; H. H. Hunt, of Portsmouth; Eppa Hunt, of Haymarket, and Mrs. C. O. Bolen, at home.

Three nephews and three grandchildren __ her remains to the grave at Sudley Church- Harry Polen, C. O. Polen, Wade Hunt, Joseph Hunt, Wake Hunt, and Frank Hunt.
In the passing from earth of this good woman another and long cherished friend has departed to be with Christ, which is far better than any earthly portion however good that portion may be.

Mrs. Hunt was not only a faithful wife, a devoted mother and sympathetic neighbor, she also possessed that unpretentious manner and simple, unaffected quality of heart, that wins confidence and commands respect. The writer most sincerely believes that the words of the inspired record concerning David are applicable to the life and work of this dear friend of many years. She, “when she had served her own generation by the will of God, fell asleep.”

Hunter, Lucy - 11 Dec 1914 M. J. - Funeral services were held in Alexandria yesterday of Mrs. Lucy Hunter, who died Tuesday at her home in Occoquan. Mrs. Hunter’s illness was a long one and death was due to heart failure. The burial service was held in Bethel cemetery. She was the wife of Mr. G. W. Hunter.

Mrs. John Thornton, of Kentucky, a sister; a brother, Mr. John Sinclair, of Washington; an aunt, Mrs. Margaret Barbour, Mr. A. W. Sinclair and Mrs. Ada Davis, both cousins, all of Manassas, and her husband survive Mrs. Hunter. The deceased was a life long resident of Prince William and well known.

Hunton, Rose Love - 25 May 1917 M. J. - Born November 17, 1839, died April 19, 1917. Early on this morning of April this patient soul was released from the crumbling burden of the flesh, and peacefully made the short flight to the other side of the river. For years and years the billows and waves of suffering and sorrow had gone over her head, only to leave her brave spirit undaunted, her heart blithe and gay. The more her body was racked and tormented, the brighter shined faith and patience, the gentler and sweeter her voice as she changed the subject always from discussion of her ills to the affairs of others. Many of us can endure, few as seeing, and enjoying the things invisible, even as it is given to but a few to suffer the long list of excruciating agonies that were Mrs. Hunton’s lot.

Mrs. Hunton was born in Fairfax County, Va., the daughter of Thomas R. and Anna Moss Love. She was married in 1862 to James W. Hunton, of Buckland, Va. Having no children of her own a large part of her life was given up to mothering the orphan children of her brother, Judge Love, Senior Warden of the church at Fairfax. Lieutenant Moss Love, aviator in the United States Army, who lost his life in San Francisco two years ago, was one of these children.

Rheumatism kept Mrs. Hunton helpless and bed-ridden for twenty years, and all those cruel years of Reconstruction she did her full day’s work while victim of grave and painful diseases, and ever with a smiling, sunny face, and a cheery word for a neighbor.

She died at the home of her sister, Mrs. B. F. Hite, at Gainesville, Va., and was buried in the churchyard at Buckland, beside her husband.
Hutchison, Benjamin Hixson - 25 Dec 1914 M. J. - Although in failing health the death of Lieutenant Benjamin Hixson Hutchison on Saturday night at his home near Aldie was a surprise to his family. He was born in Loudoun county, near Aldie, in 1836 and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Hutchison. Mr. Hutchison distinguished himself for bravery during the Civil War and was promoted for this as a color bearer at the battle of Balls Bluff to a first lieutenancy. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the 8th Virginia Regiment serving throughout the war. At the battle of Gettysburg he was captured in the trenches following Pickett’s famous charge and was carried to Morris Island with 600 Confederate officers and placed in a stockade under the fire of the Union Army. Lieutenant Ben Merchant, of Manassas, was a compatriot with Lieut. Hutchison at this prison. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Annie Rogers, and five brothers, John, Ludwell, and Dr. Fred H., all living near Aldie, and Westwood Hutchison, of Manassas, and Dr. H. G. Hutchison, of Vonore, Tenn. The funeral took place at the family burying ground, near Hickory Grove, on Monday.

Hutchison, Clara - 07 Dec 1911 M. D. - After a lingering illness of tuberculosis, Mrs. Clara Hutchison, 59 years, died Sunday night at Ballston, her home for the last year. For many years she resided near Arcola, and was well known and highly esteemed throughout Prince William county. Mrs. Hutchison was the widow of the late Wilmer Hutchison. A daughter, Miss Virgie, survives them. Mrs. Hutchison was a member of Sudley Church, where the funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o’clock. The Rev. Homer Welch conducted the services. Interment was in Sudley churchyard.

Hutchison, O. Grey - 12 May 1922 M. J. - A telegram received on Thursday morning by Rev. Westwood Hutchison from Chester Pa., brought the sad news of the death of his son, Rev. C. Grey Hutchison, at the Chester hospital. Although our community was aware of his illness, no one thought of a fatal termination, and the news of his death comes with startling unexpectedness.

Mr. Hutchison was born on August 5, 1872, at Prospect Hill, Prince William County, Va., and was at the time of his death in the fiftieth year of his age. In early manhood he decided to enter the medical profession and attended the Richmond Medical College, where he made good progress, until impaired health compelled the relinquishment of his studies; and in 1896 he left Virginia for Colorado.

During the Spanish-American War, he served with the American army in the Philippines, and at the close of active hostilities returned to Colorado, where he remained until improved health justified a return to his native state.

In 1910, feeling called to the Baptist ministry, he entered Crozer Theological Seminary at Upland, Pa., and graduated in 1913.

In 1914, he was happily married to Miss Mabel White, of Upland, Pa. He held pastorates in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and was at his death, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dover, Delaware. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and recently gained the degree of knight Templar.

Mr. Hutchison was a dutiful son, an affectionate brother, a faithful husband, a kind and considerate father. He was singularly free from the infirmity of those natures that cherish resentment, and his impulses leaned to the side of frank and generous treatment of others.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at Dover, Delaware. To the bereaved family circle the sincere sympathy of the community is extended.

Hanso and Thomas Drurah, both of whom died just as they had reached manhood, and those who survive are Mrs. T. Galeo Hutchison, of Loudoun; Mrs. T. Raymond Galleher, of Manassas, and Mr. Geo. Taylor Hutchison, of Washington.

There were twenty-six pieces, including a lovely spray from the Bristow School League, in which Mrs. Hyde took an active interest. Her lovely character and cheerful disposition endeared her to all who knew her. She always had a kind word and a smile for everyone and in sickness or in health she took a sympathetic interest in her neighbors and friends. It has been said by many who knew her that she never spoke unkindly to anyone. She was a sincere and devoted wife, and loved her little home and children. She will be greatly missed by her loved ones and friends, but God in His wisdom saw fit to call her home. She is not dead, but lives in the hearts of those who knew and loved her.

Jeffries, John H. - 25 May 1906 M. J. - On Saturday night last Mr. John H. Jeffries, for several years an employee of the Southern Railway her, met with an accident that resulted fatally within a few hours.

The returning refrigerator cars usually have more or less ice remaining in the ice box, opening on top of the cars, and it has been a custom for the employees along the railway, when these cars are returning empty, to help themselves to the ice as it is simply wasted. Before returning home for the night Mr. Jeffries had gotten a block of ice from one of these cars that had stopped in front of the depot and was evidently descending from the car, when he fell as the train started and was caught beneath the car from which he received injuries resulting in his death.

When found a few minutes after the accident by Mr. Thomas Welsh. Mr. Jeffries was still conscious and said he was fatally hurt, but those about him did not realize the seriousness of the accident and it was not until Dr. Newman made a close examination, after he was taken home, was it known that he was seriously hurt and even then the full extent of the injury was not realized, and his death within two hours after the accident was a great shock to the family and the community.

Mr. Jeffries was an industrious man, a good neighbor and kind husband and father and the bereaved widow and seven little children have the sympathy of all who know of their great loss.

Johnson, Annie Miller - 09 Feb 1928 M. J - Miss Annie Miller Johnson, a life-long resident of Prince William county, died early Monday morning following a week’s illness due to paralysis and complications. Her death occurred at Clover Hill Farm, the old Johnson home where she was born on October 13, 1850, and where she had spent her entire life with the exception of the time that the family “refugeed” south during the war between the states. Miss Johnson was a daughter of Joseph Johnson and Emily Eliza Wheatley Johnson, and was the last surviving member of her immediate family. She leaves a number of nephews and nieces including Mrs. Egbert Harrell and Messrs. Lee and Ralph Johnson, of Manassas; Mrs. G. A. Hutchison, of Aldie, and five children of the late Joseph B. Johnson, of Clover Hill.

Johnson, E. L. - 31 Oct 1912 M. D. - E. L. Johnson, a brakeman on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, was instantly killed last Friday night when he was struck by No. 26, a fast train going North.

The accident happened somewhere about 11:30 near the coalbins, which is about a half-mile from town, and as soon as the body was discovered word was sent to the authorities in town and a number of men went at once to the scene.

It is thought that the man, while flagging on the freight train, sat down on the track while waiting and probably dozed off when the speeding train struck him. When examined few cuts and bruises were found on the body but his neck and back were both broken.

The remains were brought to Manassas in charge of G. D. Baker. Coroner Meredith held an inquest Saturday morning and the body was shipped on a morning train to Johnson’s home in Staunton where it was taken in charge by relatives.

This is the second railroad accident that has happened in Manassas within the last two weeks, the first one occurring near the depot, when a backing freight engine struck a man.

Johnson, George W. - 03 Sep 1914 M. D. - Another veteran has passed from the thinning ranks of the Confederate soldiers, and Manassas lost a lifelong citizen last Friday at noon, when George W. Johnson died at his home near town.

Dating from the Gettysburg reunion last summer, Mr. Johnson’s health had failed as the ravages of brights disease progressed. For seventy years Manassas had been the home of the deceased. His birth place was near the place of his death and home of his forefathers and his life with the exception of four years’ service in the Civil War was spent in this community, where most of his time had been given to farming. He was a man of excellent character and worth, highly esteemed by every one, being well known this section over.

His wife, who was Miss Hannah Lindsley, five children, Mrs. G. L. Hutchison, Mrs. Egbert Herrell, Mrs. R. Lee Willis and Ralph Johnson, two sisters Misses Annie and Sarah Johnson and one brother, Joseph B. Johnson, all of Manassas and this county, survive him.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 o’clock funeral services were held at the home conducted by Rev. Vaughn, of near Lena, Va. Dr. H. L. Quarles, of Manassas Baptist Church, officiating at the grave, were present many members of the Manassas Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy and Ewell Camp, of which Mr. Johnson was a member, who paid final tribute to the veteran. The funeral was a large one and many floral tributes were received which banked high on the grave.

The nephews Messrs. Wheatley, Henley and Benjamin Johnson, his son-in-law Egbert Herrell and G. L. Hutchison, acted as pallbearers. The following was taken from 04 Sep 1914 Manassas Journal - Mr. Johnson was born in this county on October 22 1845, his parents being Col. Joseph Johnson and Mrs. Emily Eliza Wheatley Johnson. In 1868 he was married to Mrs. Hannah Lamb Lindsley, who, with their five children- Mrs. Minnie J. Harrell, Mrs. Maud M. Hutchison, and Messrs. R. Lee Johnson, Willis L. Johnson and Ralph V. Johnson, all of this county- survives him. He leaves also two sisters, Misses Sarah and Annie Johnson; one brother, Mr. Joseph B. Johnson, and eight grandchildren, Misses Mildred and Georgie Harrell and Myrtle and Gladys Johnson, and Maurice Harrell, George and Eugene Johnson and John Julian Hutchison. He was a confederate veteran, having joined the Black Horse cavalry in 1862 and served until discharged on account of failing health in 1864; a member of the Primitive Baptist Church; and a member of Ewell Camp, C. V., and the Manassas chapter of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association, and was treasurer of both organizations.

Johnson, Hannah Louisa - 14 Jan 1921 M. J. - Mrs. Hannah Louisa Johnson died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Egbert Harrell, at an early hour this morning. She had been ill several weeks and death was not unexpected.

The deceased was, before her first marriage, Hannah Lamb, and was born in Onandago county, New York, in 1839, but came to Virginia at the age of fifteen years with her father and other members of the family.

Mrs. Johnson was first married to Luther C. Lindaley, who was killed in the Civil War and in the year 1868, she became the wife of George W. Johnson, at Douglas Hill, near Dumfries. Shortly after the marriage, however, the couple removed to the vicinity of Manassas, where Mrs. Johnson has resided until recently, her husband having died several years ago.

Mrs. Johnson, thought born in New York, was “as of the south, southern” in her sentiments and was a staunch defender of the right and justice of the Confederate cause. She was widely known in southern circles and much beloved by all who were fortunate enough to dwell within the sphere of her friendship.

The funeral services will be conducted by Elder Leffey at the Primitive Baptist Church, Manassas, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o’clock.
Johnson, John - 12 Jul 1918 M. J. - John Johnson, an aged colored citizen, for more than forty years a resident of Manassas, died at his home here, Wednesday of a complication of diseases.

He had worked at his trade of shoemaker continuously until within a few days of his death.

Johnson’s shoemaker shop has been a fixture in Manassas for a long time and most of our citizens will miss the aged man of awl and last. His funeral was conducted from the colored Baptist Church of which he was a member.

Johnson, John F. - 03 Feb 1911 M. J. - Mr. John F. Johnson, eighty-two years old, a former resident and anti-bellum merchant of Manassas, died, after a prolonged illness, in his home in Annapolis, Illinois, on the 15th instant.

He is survived by a widow, three sons, Messrs. B. F. Johnson, of Marshall; John F. Johnson jr., of Hunt City, and Joseph Johnson, of Annapolis, Illinois; and by two daughters, Mrs. J. Johnson, of Lincoln Centre, Nebraska, and Mrs. George Nelson of Annapolis, Illinois. Interment was in the Mount Pleasant cemetery, near Annapolis.

A short time prior to the Civil War, Mr. Johnson came to Manassas from Alexandria, and entered the mercantile business with Mr. William Brawner, father of Mr. Chas. E. Brawner, of this county, under the firm name of Johnson and Brawner, at what is now known as the Catholic Church crossing, then the depot for the old Orange and Alexandria Railway Company.

The business was continued until the outbreak of the war, when Mr. Johnson joined the Prince William Cavalry, commanded by Captain William Willis Thornton, father of Judge J. B. T. Thornton, of the 16th Judicial Circuit, but shortly afterwards withdrew and returned to Alexandria where he entered the mercantile business on his own account, conducting the same until his removal to Annapolis, Illinois, in 1867, where he again engaged in his former business pursuits.

Mr. Johnson was born in the southern portion of Manassas magisterial district, and married Miss Theresa Reece, whose father lived, at the time, on the farm he afterwards sold to Col. H. W. Cunningham, the first postmaster of Manassas after the war, and which is now owned and resided upon by Mr. Jos. F. Lewis. The deceased was a cousin of the late Benjamin Johnson, who owned and resided upon the farm now owned by Mr. W. I. Stere, and was related to the Johnson family now residing near Manassas.

Mr. B. D. Merchant recalls that the first employment he received, after his return from the war, was as agent for Mr. Johnson in having a quantity of cord wood cut on a tract owned by the deceased, near Bradley and in settling with Mr. Johnson at his store in Alexandria, paid 87 1/2 cents per yard wide bleached cotton for shirts and corresponding fabulous war time prices for other purchases.

M. Johnson. Mr. John was the president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and has been a member of the Common Council. He was assistant secretary and treasure of the Portner brewery.

Johnson, Peyton - 16 Feb 1912 M. J. - Peyton Johnson, one of the most highly respected colored men of the county, died of dropsy and old age at his home, near Blooms, on Friday night last, aged nearly 90 years.
“Uncle”Peyton was born on February 22, 1823, and belonged to the Lynn family of Prince William until freed by the war. He was a rather remarkable character, retaining all his faculties until after Christmas. He was always quiet and respectful, a splendid type of his race that is fast disappearing. By his industry he had bought himself a home a number of years ago, but this he sold last fall and had since lived with one of his daughters.
His remains were interred at Manassas on Sunday.

Jones, George R. - 29 Oct 1914 M. D. - George R. Jones, formerly of Front Royal, a brother of Miss Lillian M. Jones, of Manassas, died as a result of taking a dose of barium sulphide, at St. Luke’s Hospital in Baltimore last Friday. An inquest was held and the jury’s verdict was that he came to his death by taking barium sulphide instead of barium sulphate. The substitution came about as a result of writing by Dr. Albert H. Carroll, of the University Hospital staff, of the abbreviation “Barium Sulph.” Harry Leed, a clerk in the branch of the Associated Drug Stores at Park Ave. and Lexington Street, interpreted the note to mean barium sulphide, and furnished that drug.

Mr. Jones had been suffering from stomach trouble, had gone to the hospital for treatment, and was told he had better submit to an x-ray examination. The Doctor advised him to take barium sulphate as a preparation, and wrote the two words on a slip of paper. Dr. Carroll testified that “Sulph.” in a prescription always meant sulphate, and never sulphide. S.
A. Nattans, general manager of the Associated Drug Stores, stated that the best authorities in pharmacy agreed that “Sulph.” might mean sulphate, sulphite, or sulphide. The drug clerk stated that he had never filled a prescription for sulphate, but had filled one for sulphide, to be taken internally.

After taking the medicine, Mr. Jones, who was 26 years old, staggered into the office of Dr. Charles F. J. Coughlin and from there was removed to the hospital. He lived only a few hours. Mr. Jones was employed at Levy Bros.’ hat factory in Baltimore and had been in that city for about a year. He is survived by five sisters, Misses Lillian and Katie, of Manassas, one in Strasburg, and two in Front Royal, and one brother living in Baltimore. The funeral services were held in Baltimore yesterday and the body was interred in that city.

Jones, Jesse M. - 11 Jan 1924 M. J. - Those who remember the visits of Mr. Jesse M. Jones, former director of the Virginia extension division, to Prince William, and the interest he took in the progress of the county, will be grieved to hear of his death. Mr. Jones died in Savannah, Ga., where he had headquarters as industrial agent of the Seaboard Railway. He was buried at Montgomery, Ala., on Christmas Day. His widow and two sons survive.

Mr. Jones was director of the extension division of Virginia from 1916 to 1920, including the period of the world war. Those who worked with him can never forget his untiring efforts for greater food production during that period.

Mr. Jones, although not connected with demonstration work since 1920, has never lost interest in the work. Time and again he has written to the writer, asking about the work and asking advice along the lines of home demonstration work.

Jones, Morris and Alvine - 30 Dec 1909 M.D. - Death claimed two babies as its victims and left a brand upon a third, when fire converted the home of Mrs. Florence Jones, colored, into a funeral pyre, late Saturday afternoon, In a flash death and desolation fell upon a Christmas scene where three happy colored babies had been romping - playing with the toys Santa Claus had brought them. The frame building, the scene of the holocaust, burned to the ground, and was fully insured. The property was owned by Burke Mitchell.
The mother had left the babies alone in the house while she had gone in search of their father. According to Warren Jones, the only one of the trio to escape death in the flames, the tots heard mice gnawing into a basket of provisions. Then, he says, they lighted a wisp of paper and threw it into the basket to frighten the mice away. The firebrand ignited the basket, spread with a flash and in an instant the room was a mass of flame, a fiery tomb imprisoning the babies.

Mrs. Jones had no more than left home when a Western Union telegraph lineman saw a sheet of flame burst from the building. He ran to the scene, sounded the alarm and examined all the rooms, as he believed, but missing the apartment in which the babies had perished.

Mary Tucker, a neighbor was among the first to reach the scene, and it was she who rescued Warren Jones through a window. Not until the the burning building had crumbled into shouldering ruins were the remains of the two babies found. (not copied in whole)

Jones, Paul - 27 Mar 1930 M. J. - Mr. Paul Jones died suddenly on Wednesday, March 19, 1930, at the home of his niece, Mrs. R. H. Harvey at Woodbridge.

He was buried from Mr. L. E. Strother’s home where he lived 33 years, with interment at Woodbridge Cemetery. The Rev. H. H. Hoyt conducted the funeral service.

Jones, Strother S. - 27 Oct 1916 M. J. - The Fauquier Democrat publishes an article signed “A Comrade” on the death of Mr. Strother S. Jones, 86 years old, who died October 12, at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Arthur Hart, at Warrenton. Mr. Jones was the maternal grandfather of Mrs. W. G. Covington, of Manassas. The concluding paragraphs of the article follow:

Mr. Jones was supposed to be the only survivor of the original Black Horse Troop when organized for the State Service during the John Brown invasion and the capture of the Arsenal at Harper’s Ferry and closed with Appomattox. His kind heart, liberality, and congenial nature, won for him the esteem of both officers and comrades, and as a true soldier and companion, there were none held in higher estimation. At the close of the war he returned penniless to struggle for the support of a wife and three small daughters, (two of whom survive) and so tenderly nursed and cared for him in his years of affliction.

Thus another war-worn veteran “has passed over the River to rest under the Shade of the Trees.” As he was true and brave as a soldier of his country, so his effort was to be a faithful soldier of the Cross and he expressed himself as ready and desirous to pass from the troubles and sufferings of earth to the eternal rest in the mansions above prepared by a crucified and resurrected Savior, for those who put their trust in Him.
May his loved ones ever cherish the memory of his record as a soldier, but may they be comforted by the more important assurance that he left them, of being ready for his Master’s summons, is the prayer of a Comrade.

Keys, Mrs. Walter (Anna M.) - 28 Jan 1926 M. J. - The neighborhood of Dumfries, this county, was aroused early Wednesday morning, January 20, when a shooting affray took place at the home of Walter L. Keys, resulting in the fatal wounding of Mrs. Keys, his wife, and her unborn babe. Mrs. Keys died Thursday in a Fredericksburg hospital.

Details of the affair have been meager; all sorts of reports having been circulated in regard to it, and the county authorities have been reticent in giving out information to the public, until certain clues leading to the probable perpetrators of the crime shall have been run down. The Commonwealth’s Attorney and sheriff have been untiring in their efforts to solve what appeared to be a deep mystery and at this writing they feel assured that they have uncovered the main facts in the case, and arrests will probably follow in a short time.

Mr. Keys stated that early Wednesday morning he was awakened by someone calling to him from the front yard of his home. Hastily putting on some clothes he went down, and throwing open the door asked who was there. "You know who I am," came the reply. "Throw up your hands." Seeing a gun leveled at him, Keys quickly stepped aside and slammed the door. Immediately a loud report of the gun and the tearing away of the door panel by a load of shot brought Keys to a realization of the fact that his move had been just in time.

Alarmed by the report of the gun, Mrs. Keys, who had been aroused when the man first called, rushed in and moved across the room towards her husband. Just as she crossed directly behind the door, there was a second report. A full load of shot struck her on the left side, entering her arm, abdomen and chest. Picking up two of her children, who had followed her into the room she rushed upstairs and fell. Three more shots followed in rapid succession, any one of which would probably have killed the children had not the wounded mother carried them with her. The paneling of the door was completely demolished.

Keys says he then got his gun and went into the yard in search of the assailant but had disappeared in the darkness.

Mrs. Keys was given first aid treatment at home and medical assistance was sent for as soon as possible. Dr. Stewart McBryde, of Manassas, answered the call and on his arrival at the home, after giving her necessary treatment, had Mrs. Keys sent to the Fredericksburg hospital.

Weakened from loss of blood and suffering from shock, Mrs. Keys was in a critical condition upon her arrival in Fredericksburg. More than one hundred shot had pierced her body, some having penetrated the woman’s intestines. An operation was decided upon, which was performed by Dr. Barney, assisted by Drs. Scott and Quinn, revealing twenty-five intestinal punctures. Eight shot had entered the body of her unborn infant.

According to Mr. Keys’ statement he has been employed by the Washington Terminal company and has been unable to be at home every evening, but recently on account of illness he has been on vacation. While walking through the woods on his place a day or two before the shooting took place, Keys claims he saw a strange man on the edge of an adjoining farm and two others farther back in the woods. He states that upon asking, in a friendly way, what was going on, the stranger nearest him replied, “None of your d... business,” and disappeared in the timber. Keys says he believes the men were moonshinners and were under the impression that he had or would inform on them, and coming to his house Wednesday morning, attempted to assassinate him in a spirit of revenge.

The alleged facts of the case as stated by Mr. Keys have been given above, but rumors and reports from other sources appear to shed a different light upon the affair. It is reported that a gang of moonshinners operating in the Keys neighborhood had been bringing liquor from the still at intervals and hiding it near a road in a convenient place for loading on motor cars to be carried away, probably to Washington. The rumor is that Keys might have known where the liquor was cached at this particular time, for when the moonshinners arrived to load, the liquor had disappeared. The track of a motor car was discovered to lead from the cache to the Keys home. The rumor is that the moonshinners followed this track to the Keys home where a row ensued, resulting in the death of Mrs. Keys.

Keys, C. R. (Buck) - 05 May 1922 M. J. - Mr. C. R. Keys, of Quantico, died at the Mary Washington Hospital, Fredericksburg, early Monday morning, following an illness of three weeks with Brights disease.

“Buck” Keys as he was familiarly known among his friends, is a son of Mrs. Charles Keys, of Quantico, where he was born on May 2, 1893. Had he lived one more day he would have been 29 years old.

During the late world war he served as a top sergeant in Company K, 318th Infantry, 80th Division, with which company so many of Prince William boys served. He served with this division with distinction through the principal battles in France and was badly gassed in the battle of Argonne Forest. At the time of his recent attack of illness he was taking vocational training in a government school in Washington.

Just before he left for France he married Miss Inez Ashby, who, with a daughter, survives him. He also leaves his mother, a brother, Sigsby, and a sister, Mrs. Richard Stark, all of Quantico.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday at Quantico by the Rev. Wade Johnson, of the Methodist Church, of which the deceased was a member. Interment was made in the family burying ground. Flowers upon flowers, which were sent, showed the high esteem in which he was held by his numerous friends.

Keys, Henry - Much excitement was aroused here last Friday when Ed Fields, a colored resident of Manassas, shot and killed Henry Keys, a white man of this place, at the coal and wood yard of Bennett and Sons.

The tragedy took place shortly after 11 o’clock and was the result of a wrangle between the two men. Witnesses who saw the shooting say that Keys had been drinking, and Fields, who works in the yards, tried to make him leave, which Keys refused to do, and threatened to kill Fields with a scale weight. The threats and cursing of Keys angered the Negro, who went to the office nearby and secured his musket.
Upon coming out he cautioned Keys not to approach him, but Keys approached toward the Negro and received the full load of the gun in his stomach, inflicting a terrible wound, from which he died in a few minutes. Fields, the Negro, who is mentally deficient, was turned over to Sergeant Weir, who placed him in the county jail.

This is not Fields’ first offense of this kind, from what we can understand, and several times before has threatened to shoot, or shot at parties.

Keys, the murdered, was removed to the undertaking rooms of G.D. Baker, and later to his home. Interment was in the Manassas cemetery.

At the opening of court last Monday, Fields was indicted for a felony and the court ordered that he be committed to the department for criminal insane at the central hospital at Petersburg, where he is to be kept until his sanity can be proven.

Keys, C. R. (“Buck”) - 05 May 1922 M. J. - Mr. C. R. Keys, of Quantico, died at the Mary Washington Hospital, Fredericksburg, early Monday morning, following an illness of three weeks with Bright’s disease.

He then took charge of the Chappawamsic farm in Stafford County, Va., in 1873, where he resided for several years, then he moved to Fairfax County, near Alexandria. He then returned to his old native county, Prince William, and purchased a farm where he resided until his death.

Keys, Maggie - 06 Jun 1913 M. J. - The many friends, in this place, of Mrs. Maggie Foley Keys were grieved to learn of her death, in her home in Norfolk, after two weeks of critical illness, last Sunday. Keys, Martha (Bernardo) - 19 Dec 1912 M.D. - Last Friday the marriage ceremony of Miss Martha Keys, the 23 year old daughter of Robert Keys of Brentsville, and Jerry Bernardo, of Washington, was preformed at the home of Rev. J. F. Priest, of Bradley, a Baptist minister. The couple left Sunday morning for Washington where the groom was employed and upon arriving in Washington the couple engaged a room at a boarding house at 410 K Street, which was run by Mr. and Mrs. William Cunningham, who were told by the couple that they had been married only a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Bernardo went out very little. On Monday evening they attended several moving picture shows and returned to their room about 10 o’clock and did not go out after that. Nothing was seen of them all day Tuesday and about 6 o’clock that night Mr. Cunningham was asked by his wife to go to their room and find out if anything was the matter. He called and was given no response, and after several attempts he finally unlocked another door leading to the room occupied by the couple, and upon entering found the bride of three days lying dead upon the bed, her body partially covered with a sheet and the groom lying unconscious upon the floor, breathing very hard.

Gas was flowing from three jets in the room with all the windows closed, and the room was filled with deadly fumes.

The police were notified and the ambulance called, carrying Bernado to Casualty Hospital where physicians stated he had an equal chance for recovery. Later the girl’s body was taken to an undertaking establishment.

John May, a friend of Bernado’s living in Washington, was the only person who could throw any light on the subject. He was shocked at hearing the news and stated he had introduced Bernado to Miss Keys about three weeks ago when he was working in Manassas and that he had witnessed the marriage ceremony at Bradley. He stated that when Bernado visited him at Manassas a few weeks ago he said he wanted to get married and that all he wanted was the girl, and shortly after the introduction they were married.

Last Monday evening the newly-married couple went to May’s house, but remained only a few minutes. As they walked out, Bernardo turned to May and said “I’ll see you tomorrow if I don’t die tonight.”

In the room there was no indication of a struggle and no clue of any kind of drugs. No reason could be found for the death and the whole affair seems to be surrounded by mystery.

John May recently married Miss Emma Keys, a cousin of the dead girl, and Mrs. May resided a few miles outside of Manassas. Little is known of Bernado as he and May just recently came here from France.

She was united in marriage to Mr. Winston Carter Lawler in 1892, who died nine years ago. Six children were born of this union- Mr. Tyler Bronaugh Lawler, whose death occurred February 20, 1922; Mr. Robert A., of Detroit, Michigan; Mr. J. Chesley and Sidney T., of Manassas; Mrs. Clyde C. Moler, of Winchester, Va., and Miss Mildred C. Lawler, of Manassas.

The funeral services were attended by her sisters, Misses Rose and Jennie Bronough and brothers, Mr. Tyler Bronough and Dr. Alfred Bronough and a number of other sorrowing relatives and friends.

Of a rather timid and retiring disposition, it was only those who knew her best who could testify to her faithfulness and devotion as wife, mother and friend.

Lawler, Tyler B. - 24 Feb 1922 M. J. - On Monday morning about 2:30 o’clock, Paul de Verral Barry, twenty-eight years old, of Washington, held up then shot and killed young Tyler Lawler, twenty-three years old, a conductor employed by the Washington Railway and Electric Company.

According to the confession of Barry, who conscious stricken, gave himself up directly after the shooting, he had started out with the intention of holding up and robbing the first person who appeared to have any money.

As a conductor Lawler was changing the car light, Barry slipped up unnoticed and pressing a gun against the former’s ribs, demanding his money. Fearing that Lawler had recognized him, and losing his nerve, Barry fired a shot which entered the chest of the young conductor, causing instant death.
When questioned as to the motive of his crime, the prisoner stated that he had been out of work for several months, and having four young children in an orphan asylum, was compelled to have money to pay for their board.

According to United States Attorney Gordon, speedy justice will be meted out to Barry.

Tyler B. Lawler, the murdered man, was a son of Mrs. Emily Tyler Lawler and the late Winston Carter Lawler, of Manassas, and had many friends here who were grievously shocked and distressed to hear of his untimely end.

He was born at Marshall, in Fauquier county, and was about twenty-three years of age. His body was brought here for interment, being accompanied by a number of Odd Fellows, of which order he was a member. Funeral services were held at Trinity Episcopal Church by the rector, Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, assisted by Rev. T. D. D. Clark, pastor of the Baptist Church, at three o’clock on Wednesday, and the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery here.

The beautiful floral offerings, together with the large crowd in attendance, attested to the high esteem in which the young man was held. His sunny disposition and kindness of heart endeared him to all those with whom he came in contact with.

The deceased is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Marie Heil, of Washington, to whom he had only been married about two months, by his mother, and by two sisters, Mrs. Clyde Moler, of Winchester, and Miss Mildred Lawler, of Manassas, and three brothers, Robert A. Lawler, of Detroit; J. Chesley Lawler and Sisney Lawler, of Manassas.

Lawler, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Walker and Mr. Lewis Walker, all of Marshall; Miss M. J. Chinn, of Front Royal; Mrs. Heil and Mr. George Heil of Washington, mother-in-law and brother-in-law respectively of the deceased.

Laws, Emma Dallas - 28 Apr 1922 M. J. - Mrs. Emma Dallas Laws died last night at her home near Catlett, in the seventy-six year of her life. She is survived by four children. Her husband died last August.

Laws, H. Kinzel - 25 Oct 1918 M. J. - The many friends of Mr. H. Kinzel Laws in this town and county will be grieved to learn of the sudden and tragic death of his father, Mr. E. D. Laws, at Brandy Station on Sunday morning.

Mr. Laws was on his way to church and as he neared the railroad crossing at Brandy Station about one mile and a half from his home, the southbound local passenger pulled out. The view of the tracks both north and south was obstructed by freight cars, and it is supposed that the noise of the outgoing local deadened the sound of a belated northbound train moving at highspeed and Mr. Laws drove directly in its path.
On his way to church and to inquire about the condition of the sick among his neighbors, apparently more occupied with self sacrifice than self preservation, the end came suddenly, overwhelmingly, may we not say gloriously, in the service of God and humanity?

On Tuesday morning at the home near Brandy, his pastor, Rev. G. W. Hurt, of Sevensburg, spoke words of true and tender appreciation and in the late afternoon his body was laid to rest in beautiful McHebron at Winchester, Rev. T. D. D. Clark, of Manassas, officiating at the grave.

Leache, C. Lytton - 28 Feb 1912 M. J. - The many friends of his youth in this county will be pained to learn of the sudden death of Mr. C. Lytton Leache, in Austin, Texas, the state of his adoption since leaving Prince William County twenty eight years ago.
He seemed in his usual health on Wednesday of last week, ate a hearty supper, and had gone into the sitting room when the attack, which the attending physician pronounced acute indigestion, came swiftly and fatally.

For a number of years he was foreman of the composing room of The Statesman. The only visit back to his boyhood home, was in the summer of 1903, when he came as a delegate to the Typographical Union Convention which was held in Washington. He spent several weeks here with his sister, Mrs. A. W. Sinclair. He left with an expressed desire and intention to some day return to his native state and county to spend the remaining days of his life.

He leaves a devoted wife whose grief is accentuated by her having been away from home in a distant town visiting her parents, at the time of his death., and seven children, three of whom are about grown, to mourn the sudden loss of a kind husband and father.

Leachman, Elizabeth A. - 26 Jan 191_ M.D. - Feeble health and the shock of severe injury she sustained Friday when she fell and dislocated her hip, resulted in the death of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Leachman, ninety-one years old, shortly afternoon Monday in the home of her nephew, J. B. Johnson, near town. The funeral was held yesterday noon from the residence. Interment was in Cedar Grove, near Bristow.

Mrs. Leachman was the widow of the Rev. Robert E. Leachman an elder of the Primitive Baptist Church, widely known throughout Prince William County, and who died in 1869. She had lived in the vicinity of Manassas since her marriage in 1841. Before marriage she was Miss Wheatley, of Culpeper. In recent years Mrs. Leachman lived at the home of her nephew, J. B. Johnson.

During the Civil War, the Rev. and Mrs. Robert E. Leachman resided on the property now occupied by J. P. Leachman, near Bristow. Federal troops passing in 1862 took Mr. Leachman prisoner and placed him in Old Capitol Prison, Washington, where he was kept for a year.

General Wood, in charge of the prison, on a tour of inspection, exclaimed; “Where is that preacher, Bob Leachman”? “You don’t look much like a preacher,” remarked Wood, when Mr. Leachman faced him. “You can’t tell people by their looks,” retorted Mr. Leachman, “some one might mistake you for a gentleman.”

Leachman, John Pendleton, jr. - 18 May 1917 M. J. - John Pendleton Leachman, jr. son of County Treasurer J. P. Leachman, died Tuesday morning near Buckhorn, New Mexico. He had been a sufferer from tuberculosis for several years and spent most of the time in New Mexico, hoping to regain his health. Last summer he returned to his home near Bristow, leaving again for New Mexico in January accompanied by his sister, Miss May Leachman, His body will be brought here for burial.

Leachman, John Thomas - 19 Dec 1912 M.D. - Peacefully and in his sleep Mr. John Thomas Leachman, one of the oldest and most widely-known citizens of Prince William County, died last Monday at 8:45 A. M., at the home of Dr. R. C. Buck, near Bristow, where for the past several years he has made his home.

Although failing rapidly in the last year the end came unexpectedly and was a great shock to the community in which Mr. Leachman had spent his entire life.

He was in his ninety-second year having been born on the 25th day of March, 1821, and up until his death was living within a mile of his birthplace. Born and raised in Prince William County there was no one better known or more respected and esteemed than Mr. Leachman. Although he had lived over four-score years in this county he never aspired to a public office or entered politics in any shape or form, but lived a quiet and peaceful life surrounded by a host of friends.

Before the first battle of Manassas the deceased piloted Gens. Longstreet’s and Jackson’s corps into the rear of McDowell, and a painting of him was prominent in the panorama of the Bull Run battlefield which was exhibited in Washington for several years.

Mr. Leachman married Miss Bettie Lewis, daughter of Mr. William Lewis, in the year 1847, and was the father of nine children, three sons, County Treasurer, J. P. Leachman, of Bristow; C. C. Leachman, of Manassas; Thomas R. Leachman, of Lynchburg and six daughters. Mrs. E. May Dogan, Mrs. B. A. Elliott, and Mrs. L. C. Lynn, all of Manassas, and Mrs. R. C. Buck, of Bristow; Mrs. E. L. Carroll, of Charlottesville and Miss Katie Leachman, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Leachman about ten years ago celebrated their golden wedding.

The high regard held for Mr. Leachman throughout the county was apparent by the throngs of people who attended the funeral which was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Dr. R. C. Buck, near Bristow, at 2 o’clock, the Rev. J. N. Badger, officiating. Elder Badger delivered the last sermon that Mr. Leachman ever attended.

Many and beautiful were the floral tributes and the lovely designs and set pieces were banked high on the casket and too numerous to carry to the cemetery.

The following were the pallbearers, all of whom were the grandsons of the deceased; John Elliott, Charlie Lynn, Carlisle Buck, Weford Buck, Thomas Carroll and Sidney Leachman.

The remains were interred in the old family burying ground, “Cedar Grove,” which is located on the farm of J. P. Leachman.

Leachman, Mollie - 19 Nov 1914 M.D. - Peaceful, as if in sleep, Mrs. Mollie Leachman, wife of County Treasurer J. P. Leachman, passed into the great beyond last Tuesday morning about 1 o’clock at her home near Bristow.

Death came to her as a ministering angel soothing her sufferings, but over those left behind, including the entire community, there hangs a pall of the saddest nature. For the past four or five years Mrs. Leachman had been failing in health, her condition gradually growing worse as her strength failed. Two weeks ago she became critically ill, but rallied, and was thought to be improving until last Saturday, when the final attack, to which she succumbed, occurred. Mrs. Leachman was the daughter of William and Margaret Strother, of Markham, Fauquier county, and was born at that place. Shortly after their marriage Mr. and Mrs Leachman moved to their farm near Bristow, where they have resided up to the present time. Besides her husband, there are eight children surviving her, J. P. Leachman Jr., of Mimbres Hot Springs Colo.; William and Keith of Bristow; Mrs David B. Smith and Mrs Allen Laws Oliver, of Cape Girardeau, Mo.; and Misses. May Lillian and Marie, of Bristow. She also leaves three brothers, Messrs. Thomas and Edward Strother, of Markham, and a large number of other relatives in this immediate section and throughout the state.

The funeral services were held from the home this afternoon, Rev. J. L. Burks, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground, Cedar Grove, on the Leachman farm.

A member of the Episcopal church, Mrs. Leachman was a model Christian woman, mother, wife and friend. She was possessed of virtues and graces that commended her to the confidence and affection of those who were privileged to know her. She will be long remembered and greatly missed in this community. She did her life’s work faithfully and has entered upon her eternal reward. Deep sympathy is expressed for the family in their bereavement and the death of Mrs. Leachman is mourned by the entire community.
Leachman, Thomas Keith - 19 Jan 1923 M. J. - A telegram was received by County Treasurer J. P. Leachman on Wednesday morning from New Jersey announcing the death of his youngest son, Thomas Keith Leachman, twenty-two years of age, which occurred at Jersey City Hospital on Tuesday night.

Mr. Leachman not being able to go, his son, William, upon receiving the message left on the first northbound train for the scene of the accident.

The deceased, who has held the position as assistant yard master in the Gates Avenue yards of the Pennsylvania Railway Company for about three years, had recently been promoted to conductor in the same yards.

He was attempting to cross the tracks when he was struck by an engine and thrown several feet, sustaining a fracture of the left arm as well as a fracture of the skull. He was rushed to the city hospital, where every effort was made to save his life, but with no avail.

Keith, who was a great favorite with both young and old in this community, having been born and reared here, visited his home near Bristow only a few weeks ago. In fact, just at the time of the awful railroad tragedy which resulted in the instant deaths of four young men, near his own age, two of whom were his intimate friends, and now, again the town is shocked and grieved at the cutting off this, the fifth young life within a period of three weeks, and each just at the threshold of his manhood.

The remains were brought to Manassas on the train No. 9 this morning, and lie in Trinity Parish hall awaiting the coming of his sisters, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Oliver, of Missouri.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. A. Stuart Gibson of Trinity Episcopal Church on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o’clock, after which all that is mortal of the young man, will be laid to rest in the family lot at “Cedar Grove”, his boyhood’s home, near Bristow.

The following young men, particular friends of the deceased, have been chosen as pallbearers: Peyton Larkin, Percival Lewis, Jennings Davis, Harvey Janney, Rolf Robertson and Marshall Haydon.

Of his immediate family he is survived by his father, Mr. J. P. Leachman, one brother, Mr. William Leachman, of Manassas, and five sisters, Mrs. B. D. Smith and Mrs. Allen Oliver, both of Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Mrs. Douglas Janney, of Occoquan; Mrs. John L. Hynson, of Manassas, and Miss May Leachman, of Bristow.

The entire community feels the deepest sympathy for the bereaved family.

Mrs. Ledman, widow of the late Lycurgus Ledman, who died 13 years ago, was a native of Fairfax County but had resided in Prince William County for 45 years. At the time of her death she was 64 years of age. She was a member of the Occoquan Methodist Church.

Lee, Robert E. - Col. Robert E. Lee, of Ravensworth, Fairfax County, grandson of General Robert E. Lee, and son of Brigadier General W. H. F. “Rooney” Lee, died at Virginia College, Roanoke, the later part of last week at the age of 53 years.

Colonel Lee had been in ill health since last March and was critically ill at Hot Springs during a part of the summer. He recovered sufficiently to be carried to Roanoke in June. About a month ago his condition became worse, and little or no hope was entertained for his recovery.

The funeral services were held in the Episcopal Church at Lexington, and interment was made in the Lee mausoleum at Washington and Lee University on Saturday.

In the death of Col. “Bob” Lee, Virginia has lost an outstanding figure in the social and political life of the State.

He was known far and wide as an orator and was in constant demand for political and historic speeches and memorial addresses.

Col. Lee is survived by a widow. He was married rather late in life to the widow of Gustave M. Pickney, of Charleston, S. C., who was Miss Mary Middleton, granddaughter of the Secretary of the Treasury of the Confederacy.

Lee, William Fairfax - 17 Mar 1911 M. J. - Mr. William Fairfax Lee, a member of a well known Virginia family, died at his home, near Chantilly, Fairfax County, on March 9, 1911, in his 88th year. He was a man of marked intelligence and wonderful memory up to the time of his death. He was a school-mate of Gen. Eppa Hunton, when they attended “New Baltimore Academy,” which was the only high school for young men at that time in this part of the country. At the age of twenty, he married Caroline, daughter of Mayor John Higgs, of Fairfax county, and sister of the late Mrs. Francis M. Lewis, of near Manassas.

Mr. Lee was a direct descendant of Richard Lee, of the Stratford Branch, who emigrated from England to Virginia, in 1642. He was the great-grand-son of Col. George D. Lee, who married Annie Fairfax, the widow of Lawrence Washington.

He is survived by six sons: Thomas, Richard H., William F., Ludwell, George W., Meriwether Jones, and by three daughters: Mrs. Tom Reid, of Round Hill; Misses Bershea and Lilly Lee, all being residences of Fairfax County except Richard H. and William F., who reside in Prince William County. Leith, Williard Smith - 20 Jan 1922 M. J. - Williard Smith Leith, second son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Leith, died at the home of his parents on Sunday night at 9:30 o’clock.

The deceased had been an invalid practically all of his life, having been confined to his bed for about four years. It will doubtless be a surprise to the majority of the people of Manassas to learn that he was in his nineteenth year, for to the most of us he will always remain the affectionate little fellow who was a familiar figure on our streets in the earlier days of his life.

While speaking of the deceased let us not forget the devoted mother, who has given the best years of her life to the care and comfort of her afflicted child and who in the sad hours of her bereavement has this solace: that through all these years she has left nothing undone that could have added to his comfort in any respect.

Besides his father and mother he is survived by two brothers, Arthur and Robert, and one sister, Miss Ruth, all of Manassas.

Funeral services were held at the Primitive Baptist Church, by the minister, Elder Dalton, assisted by Rev. T. D. D. Clark, of the Baptist Church. Those serving as pallbearers were Messrs. Carl Kincheloe, Burchell Leachman, Eugene and Raymond Davis and Bruce Hynson and Walter Hornbaker.

Lewis, Ben - 04 Dec 1913 M.D. - The first railroad accident in many months took place last Saturday, when Ben Lewis, a respected colored citizen of this vicinity, was killed at Rixlew, between Manassas and Wellington, on the Manassas Branch of Southern Railway, when he was struck by a freight train.

Lewis for some time had been employed as a section hand on this division of the railroad, and at the time of the accident, was working with the gang, that was using the lever car. Hearing the approaching train, Lewis left the truck, and then on second thought turned back to the track and in a vain effort tried to drag the lever car from the track before it would be hit by the train. In doing so parts of his clothing became tangled in the machinery of the hand car, and he was unable to free himself before the engine reached him, under the wheels of which he met his death. He was taken to his home, a short distance from the accident. Lewis for some time was employed as a janitor at Eastern College.
Lewis, Daniel Rudolph - 30 Aug 1928 M. J. - Daniel Rudolph Lewis, former owner and publisher of the Manassas Journal and resident of Manassas since 1895 died here yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Lewis had been in failing health for a number of years but stuck manfully to the task of publishing his paper and managing his printing office until July of the current year, when upon the advice of his physician he disposed of his business property and went to Washington for treatment in a hospital.

With his return to his home here a few weeks ago his friends were hopeful that he would regain his strength and soon be about again, but failing to respond to treatment he became worse. His death was sudden, as he died while seated in a chair by a window through which he liked to watch the birds and other beauties of nature which he loved. He died, as he hoped he would, practically in the harness.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Presbyterian Church on Sunday at 3 p. m., with interment in the local cemetery the body resting by the side of his little daughter.

Mr. Lewis is survived by his widow, Virginia Lewis, and one son, Reginald Rudolph, of New York City; six sisters and a brother. They are Mrs. Joseph Houston of Tuscalo, Ill., Mrs. Edward Popkins of Connecticut; Mrs. Levi Cochran, Rockville, Md.; Mrs. William Boyd and Mrs. Frank Smith, of Alexandria, Va., Mrs. Joseph Tribby, Hamilton, and John Lewis, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Lewis, Francis Waring - One more courteous and true old Virginia gentleman passed away at his home “Portici” May 12, 1913.

He was born at “Portici” December 13, 1822, being a son of ev. John Tolfero Lewis and Fannie Tasker Ball, and Great grandson of Councilor Robert Carter, of Nominy Hall, Westmoreland County, Va., who was sent here from England by King George III to take up land.

“Porici,” the farm on which he was born and died, was part of the land then taken up and it has never been sold, but according to old English law has been handed down from father to son.

In 1849 he with a company of 42 men drove mule teams to the goldfields of California and met with success while there.

Shortly after his return he was married to Fannie Adaline Stuart, daughter of Dr. Charles Baynes Stuart, and granddaughter of Gen. Philip Stuart of Revolutionary fame. At the time of his death he was the last surviving member of his company.

Many hardships were endured by him during the war and his handsome old colonial home was taken from him by Joseph E. Johnson for his headquarters. He then with his wife and three small children went to the home of Dr. Stuart, his father-in-law, where his family remained four years. During his absence from home it was used as a hospital and afterwards burned.

At the age of 17 he united with Sudley M. E. Church, South, of which he has ever been a faithful and consistent member, attending services regularly until the infirmities of old age prevented his doing so. Speaking to those around him before he passed away, he said: “Old Sudley is one of the dearest spots on earth to me.” He was father of eight children, three of whom survive him. They were: Mary Stuart, Charles Baynes, Fannie Tasker, John Beauregard, Robert Lee, Francis Warner, Charles Stuart and Rose.

He was conscious to the last and made many beautiful remarks showing the strength of his faith and his willingness to cross the valley of the shadow, speaking often of the many dear ones waiting on the other side.

Ere his spirit took its flight he said, “As my life fades away my faith increases: all is well, all is well.” He was an ideal husband and father and his entire life was an example well worthy of emulation.

The pallbearers were members of his immediate family and very dear friends, all of whom were selected by himself: W. F. Lee and D. H. Pugh, sons-in-law; W. A. Henry, grandson; Dr. J. C. Meredith, his family physician, who was faithful to him to the last; A. H. Compton and J. D. Wheeler.

He was laid to rest at “Stepney,” his boyhood’s home, by the side of his wife who predeceased 13 years. Many beautiful floral offerings were sent by friends that more than covered his last resting place, and his wife’s grave was also made bright with roses and carnations intended for him with whom she had walked side by side for nearly fifty years.

Mr. Lewis was a man whose sterling qualities caused him to be held in the highest esteem by all who knew him; and his genial nature endeared him to a host of friends and relatives by whom he will be greatly missed.

The deceased was born at Rosemont, the old Lewis home near Manassas, in 1857, and would have been sixty-five years of age in May.

Lickle, J. Abbey - 27 Nov 1913 M.D. - J. Abbey Lickle, well known in Manassas and vicinity, died in a Philadelphia hospital last Thursday, after a long illness. His many friends in Manassas, were severely shocked when the sad news was learned, not knowing of his illness.

Mr. Lickle some time ago accidentally received a burn on one of his arms, and went to the hospital for treatment. Because of the peculiar healing of the injury he had to remain there, during which time he was stricken with acute kidney trouble and died last Thursday. The burial took place on last Sunday with interment in a Philadelphia cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Lickle are three sisters, Mrs. R. W. Merchant, formerly of Manassas, who now resides in Richmond; Miss Ida Lickle, of Manassas, and Mrs. Maggie Windsor of Baltimore, and one brother, D. E. Lickle, of Baltimore.

Lightner, Virginia Lee - 14 Jul 1911 M. J. - Miss Virginia Lee Lightner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Lightner, died in the home of her parents, “Maple Spring” near Haymarket, of meningitis on Wednesday of last week in her thirteenth year.

The funeral took place from St. Pauls’ Episcopal church Thursday afternoon, Rev. Grinnan, rector of the church, assisted by Rev. See, of the Presbyterian church, conducting the obsequious and interment was made in St. Paul’s church-yard. The youthful pall-bearers who bore the remains of this amiable young girl to their last resting place within the shadow of the church in which they had worshiped and studied in sabbath school together were: Marion Hutchison, Don Rector, Albert Utterback, Ross Bragg, Edward Carter and Thurston Brown.

The numerous floral tributes together with the large concourse of relatives and friends who gathered to pay their last tribute of love and esteem, bore evidence of the firm hold which this lovely associate and companion had upon the affections of the community.

When the angel of death enters a home and removes there from one whose earthly race has covered more than the allotted span the grief is great but when the family chain is broken by removing a link just budding into womanhood with every promise to swell the parents’ heart with joy and pride, no consolation save that emanating from a divine Providence can fully assuage the grief and heal the wound of bereavement. This hitherto happy home is saddened, the circle broken and a heavy pall of gloom hangs over the community in which the deceased has lived since her early childhood.

Let those who mourn take comfort in the scriptural text: “What I do now ye know not, but ye shall know hereafter.”

Limstrong, Gray - 22 Dec 1910 M.D. - Without regaining consciousness from the moment he was felled and terrible wounded by an iron bar in the hands of a Negro, Wednesday afternoon last week, who with others created a riot on a street car in Washington, Gray Limstrong, 29 years old, a native of Prince William county, conductor on the car, died in Emergency Hospital shortly after 10 o’clock Friday night. Linton, Rose Catherine Retzer - 13 Sep 1918 M. J. - Passed to her rest Sept. 4, 1918, at 5 p. m., at her home in Independent Hill, Rose Catherine Linton, in the twentieth year of her age. The deceased was the eldest daughter of Robert and Harriet R. Linton (nee Retzer.) She leaves her father, mother, one brother, Charles B., and two sisters, Bertha G. and Ruth E. Linton, to mourn her untimely death.

She was a Christian of the truest type, having joined the M. E. Church at the age of 10 years. All through her long months of suffering, she gave evidence of Christian faith by her patience and hope of everlasting life.

She was buried from her home on Sept. 6th, in the Woodbine cemetery, her many friends testifying to their love and regard for her, by their presence at the funeral.

Lion, Sarah Somerville - 04 May 1911 M.D. - Friday last Mrs. Sarah Somerville Lion closed her eyes and slept, her soul passing into eternity as gently and peacefully as it had dwelt on earth. All day long she had lingered, and when evening came she gradually entered rest. She died at ten o’clock.

Death had forewarned visitation for several days, and little, if any hope had been held out for the recovery of Mrs. Lion when the week before, she was fatally stricken by the malady from which she had suffered intermittently for more than a year. But preparation for the separation could not lessen the grief of those who knew and loved this noble woman.

Beautiful Episcopal funeral ceremonies, conducted by the Rev. Kennedy, touched tender responsive chords in the hearts of the mourners in Trinity Church and at the grave in Manassas Cemetery. Fragrant floral offering were eloquent tributes. The Pallbearers were C.E. Nicol, A.W. Sinclair, C.A. Sinclair, John A. Nicol, F.E. Ransdell and W. M. Rice.

A Deep-abiding Christian faith, love of her fellow-being evidenced in deed as well as word, these were characteristics of Mrs. Sarah Somerville Lion. her gentle life inspired good in all who came within its influenced. As wife, mother and friend she was an example of noble and lovely womanhood. She was a member of the Episcopal Church.

There are those to whom the life of Mrs. Sarah Somerville Lion ever will be an inspiring and ennobling memory. They never will forget her sweet presence, and the influence of her simple, pure ideals. Her counsel has removed distress and her charity has relieved suffering. Such lives are a blessing and a benediction. In grateful remembrance they live on after translation.

The love of her children for her was not less than worship. True in the highest sense is this characterization of the love of Miss Flora Lion for her mother, and the sons, Tom, and George, loved her just as deeply. But Miss Flora was with her more in the home, watching over her, and the bond of devotion, made them in life inseparable. During the last hours, Miss Flora kept constant Virgil by her mother permitting from none a service that her own hands might preform. And when slowly from her consciousness others had passed, a smile of recognition remained for the daughter, with her even to the borderland of eternity. And with their sister the sons, Tom and George lovingly ministered to their mother.

Had she lived until August Mrs. Sarah Somerville Lion would have been 74 years old. She is survived by three children, Thomas H. Lion, George J. Lion, and Miss Florence Somerville Lion. She was the widow of Major Thomas William Lion and at the time of her marriage was living in Washington with her father John Williams. She is the last of twelve children. Major Thomas William Lion was an Englishman born in London.

Peacefully and in his sleep, the Honorable William E. Lipscomb, clerk of circuit court of Prince William County, died shortly after six o’clock last Sunday morning in his seventy - eighth year. For two days he had been unconscious and the Friday evening preceding death was stricken with paralysis in his left side. Alarming symptoms of his malady, developed two weeks ago, and ten days before the end he was confined to bed with little hope held out for recovery. Late Saturday night the visitation of death was apparent, and through the night he gradually passed away, breathing his last on the morning of the Sabbath.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at three o’clock from Grace M.E. Church, South, of which Judge Lipscomb had been a devout and consistent member for many years. In touching terms, the Rev. W. T. Grover, who conducted the services, paid eloquent tribute to Judge Lipscomb as an exemplar of Christian faith, his model career as public official and citizen, his unblemished life as a man. Sweetly the choir sang “Lead, Kindly Light,”“Rock of Ages”, and “Jesus, Lover of My Soul,” There were many beautiful floral offerings, and among them were tokens from the Masonic fraternity. The official career of Judge William E. Lipscomb stands monumental to his sterling integrity, his exalted sense of justice and his high ideals of public service. He has been invaluable to Prince William County, his official service covering a period of sixty-three years. When fifteen years old he entered the office of county clerk as deputy and became a veritable encyclopedia of facts in this county. Rarely was it necessary, save for minute detail, for him to consult records for information. During his leisure he studied law and when the war broke out in 1861 he was in charge of the office of county clerk.
With patriotism he took up arms in defense of his native soil, enlisting in the Confederate service in Company F. of Fourty-ninth Virginia Infantry in the spring of 1861. He was promoted to the grade of first lieutenant. But there were official duties in Prince William County.

Lipscomb, W. N. - 19 Apr 1918 M. J. - W. N. Lipscomb, a life long resident of Prince William County, and a man prominent in county affairs, died at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, in Washington D. C., at 4:20 o'clock Tuesday morning, after a brief illness. The primary cause of his death was diabetes.

Mr. Lipscomb was carried to the hospital a few weeks ago for treatment for what, at the time, was thought to be an acute attack of ear trouble. It was not realized by the community that the general condition of his health was not good, and therefore, the announcement of his death came as a distinct shock to the town and county.

The deceased, who was fifty-seven years of age, was the eldest son of Judge William E. and Mrs. Henrietta Lipscomb. His mother is still living and is now in her seventy-eighth year.

Mr. Lipscomb had been prominent in the business affairs of Manassas and Prince William County for a number of years.

When a young man he established a mercantile business here and conducted it with success for a long period. He disposed of his business some twelve years or more ago to devote all of his attention to his thriving cross tie and fire insurance business. At the time of his death his fire insurance agency was the largest in the county.

He held the office of commissioner of accounts for this county for a number of years. When the peoples National Bank of Manassas was organized in 1903, Mr. Lipscomb was made one of its directors, and had been elected a member of each succeeding board.

He has also been a director of the Manassas Journal Publishing Company since it was incorporated.

Mr. Lipscomb took an active interest in politics, and was a member of the county electoral board and chairman of the county democratic committee.

Before automobiles came into such general use, Mr. Lipscomb was a great fancier of horses; and it was largely through his efforts and interest that the Manassas horse show came into such prominence in Virginia and adjoining states.

In 1908 Judge J. B. T. Thornton appointed Mr. Lipscomb examiner of records for the 16th judicial circuit of Virginia, and this important office he held at the time of his death. The duties of this position carried him into the adjoining counties of Fairfax, Alexandria and Alexandria City and he made many warm friends throughout the entire district.

When his death was announced, the circuit court for Alexandria county was in session; and a resolution of the Alexandria county bar was immediately passed requesting Judge Thornton to adjourn his court out of respect for his memory. This resolution was made a part of the court’s records. The work of his office necessarily brought him in contact with the lawyers in the circuit. The high esteem in which he was held by the practicing attorneys was evidenced by a resolution passed by the Alexandria County bar that the members attended his funeral in a body. His popularity was abundantly attested by the many floral tributes laid upon his graves.

Funeral services were held at Trinity Episcopal Church at 2 o’clock yesterday afternoon, the pallbearers being Messrs. O. D. Waters, R. Weir Waters, D. M. Pitts, H. Thornton Davies, George J. Jennings, Aubrey Clark, Senator R. E. Thornton and Judge Wm. C. Gloth.

Mr. Lipscomb is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary W. Lipscomb; two children, Mrs. Howard W. Jamison and Lieut. W. H. Lipscomb; his mother, Mrs. Henrietta Lipscomb; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Weedon and Mrs. F. E. Garrison, and two brothers, Messrs. Chas. E. and Phillip A. Lipscomb.

Among those out of the county attending the funeral were: Geo. H. Rucker, H. R. Thomas, Howard Fields, Harry Crack, and Wm. Duncan, of Alexandria; Frank Mulhall and wife, Mr. Herrle, R. R. Tompkins, and Aubrey Clark, of Washington; R. Weir Waters, of Culpeper, and Senator R. E. Thornton, of Fairfax.

In Mr. Lipscomb’s death Prince William County has sustained the loss of a valued citizen. He was a staunch democrat, true to the best interests of his county, state and nation; he was loyal to his friends and fair and just to his enemies; he possessed the courage to express his convictions, without fear or reservations. Such a man a community can ill afford to lose. His epitaph might well be written in the words of one of the many sorrowers at his grave “He was the poor man’s friend.”

Flags were flying from many business establishments and private homes as a tribute of honor and respect.

The body was accompanied to Manassas by Private Offendorf, of Wisconsin, a soldier at Camp Meade. A guard of honor, composed of six former service men, remained with the body at the church after its arrival the evening before the funeral.

He received his education at Manassas High School and Eastern College and is remembered as one of the best athletes in Manassas track squad ever produced. Lynch, Margaret A. Kehoe - 28 Oct 1921 M. J. - On Tuesday night at 9:45 o’clock, Mrs. Margaret A. Lynch passed into her peaceful sleep at her home near town after a prolonged attack of bronchitis aggravated by a severe attack of influenza and double pneumonia, she suffered about three years ago, which resulted in a weakened heart. While Mrs. Lynch was known to be in a serious condition, the end came unexpectedly and without the remotest indication of a struggle.

Mrs. Lynch, who was a daughter of Patrick and Mary Kehoe, was born in July, 1852, near Clifton Station, and spent her whole life in this section of Virginia. Fifty years ago she married the late Martin Lynch, well known to many of the older citizens of this community, who died about twenty-four years ago. She had been a life-long Christian and consistent Catholic and led a sweet Christian life, which endeared her to her friends and neighbors.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Margaret E. Nealon, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. J. E. Hixson of near town, and one son, Mr. Martin D. Lynch, of this place, with whom she lived and between whom no parental love was more sincere, nor family ties and deep affection stronger.

The funeral was held this morning at All Saints Catholic Church with requiem mass at 11 o’clock after which the remains were shipped to Fairfax Station on train No. 10 for interment beside the body of her beloved husband.

Lynn, Edith - 18 Oct 1918 M. J. - Miss Edith Lynn, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Miss Lynn was 25 years of age and was a teacher at the Rockwell school. She was a graduate of New Britian High School several years ago and later took a special business course. Two years ago she decided to take up teaching and attended the New Britain State Normal School from which she was graduated last June. This was her first term as a teacher. Both at the high school and at the normal school Miss Lynn was regarded as an unusually brilliant pupil and during the present school year she had become recognized as a capable teacher.

Her father is employed as a motorman, by the Connecticut company.

The above article is a clipping from a Connecticut paper. Miss Lynn was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Lynn, who formerly lived at Catharpin, this county.

Lynn, Ezekiel - 02 Nov 1911 M.D. - Stricken with paralysis last Thursday and then attacked by pneumonia, Ezekiel Lynn, 79 years old, a highly respected citizen of Prince William county, died Monday morning at 6 o'clock, in his home near Independent Hill, where he had passed all his days. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the home. Interment was in the family burying ground.

Lynn, Henry Fairfax - 08 Oct 1914 M.D. - The county and especially Manassas was shocked last Monday, when news reached here of the death of Henry F. Lynn, president of the Nathaniel Bank of Manassas, and a wealthy citizen of much prominence in Prince William county and this section of the state.

After a year of declining health, due to his advanced years, the end came Monday noon at “Lawnville,” the Lynn home, located near Catharpin, death removing from this section one of its life long citizens whose many years had been spent in the upper part of the county, the place of his birth.

The famous Prince William cavalry of the Civil War also loses an honored member, as Mr. Lynn belonged to that organization and saw four years of service in the war between the states.

Surviving him are his widow and one daughter, Mrs. S. W. McCarthy, of Delaplane, and five grandchildren.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon, were attended by a host of friends from the entire countryside, who came to pay final tribute to one whose charitable and sincere friendship had endeared him to everyone. The beautiful floral offerings were numerous. Rev. Coe of the Southern Methodist church at Gainesville, officiating during the ceremony. The remains were taken to Little Georgetown, near Broad Run, for interment. Mr. Adams, of The Plains; Hon. T. H. Lion, of Manassas; Chas. R. McDonald, Dr. C. F. Brower, F. H. Sanders, of Catharpin; and W. N. Tiffany, of Fauquier, were the pallbearers.

Mr. Lynn was a gallant soldier in the civil war and was always loyal to the cause. Since that time he has taken an active part in all the Confederate reunions. Soon after the war he became actively engaged in farming and stock raising and was very successful. In later years he became connected with several banking institutions in Virginia and the District of Columbia. He was the first and only president of the National Bank of Manassas. Soon after launching in business in early life he became recognized as a man of rare qualifications, and he secured and maintained the esteem and confidence of his business associates and the community. For a man who never aspired to or held an elective office, he transacted more business for others, by reason of the confidence reposed, than any other resident of the county. His presence will be greatly and deeply missed throughout this section. - the following was taken from 09 Oct 1914 Manassas Journal - Mr. Lynn was seventy-one years old. He was born November 8, 1842, near Leesburg, Loudoun County, and when about seven years old came to this county with his parents, William Lynn and Mary Fairfax. He was married to Miss Mary Holmes, who with their daughter, Mrs. S. W. McCarty, of The Plains, survives him. He also leaves five grandchildren, Messrs. Walter Holmes Robertson, Bowling Lynn Robertson and Rolse Robertson and Miss Rita Fairfax Robertson, children of Mrs. McCarty, and Mr. Henry Fairfax Lynn, of Stonecastle, son of the late Fairfax Lynn.

Mr. Lynn has been prominently connected with the growth and progress of Prince William County. When the Prince William court house was moved from Brentsville to Manassas he was one of the commissioners who selected the site now occupied by the present structure. He was a Confederate soldier, having served in the Prince William Cavalry from 61 to 65 and has since been identified with the Ewell Camp, Confederate Veterans. He was for a long time the chief official of the National Bank of Manassas, which was draped in mourning in tribute to its departed president.

In the passing away of Mr. Lynn another of our beloved Confederate veterans has answered the call of the highest commander.
After the war he married Miss Teenie Nixon, of Fauquier, a sister of Miss Humphrey Lynn, and resided at “Oak Shade”. Some years later she and an infant child died, leaving only one son a few years old.

For the past several years he made his home with his youngest brother at Catharpin, where he was tenderly cared for during his declining years.

For about a year he had suffered from heart trouble, and for the past few months had been confined to his room the greater part of the time.

While his death was not unexpected, he seemed somewhat brighter during the afternoon. The end came as he was sitting in his chair, as suddenly as peacefully, and apparently as painlessly as though he had fallen asleep.

Mr. Lynn was a man of congenial and courteous personality, which won for him many lasting friendship. In the writer’s memory there will always be a vivid remembrance of the many happy hours we have spent singing with him to the accompaniment of his violin, those sweet old songs of the Sunny South, so dear to the heart of every true follower of Lee.

He saw active service throughout the war and at one time was captured and imprisoned in the jail at Fort Delaware for sixteen months.

Mr. Lynn was a son of Captain John Thomas Lynn, of near Aldie. His mother, before her marriage, was Nancy Diggs Currell, also of Loudoun.

His late illness, borne with resignation, lasted only from Tuesday until late Friday. Mr. Lynn was a kindly disposed and generous neighbor, an unfailing friend and a ready helper to all who were in need. His Christianity was manifested by his consistent life and his generous deeds.

He leaves his aged widow, one brother, Humphrey Lynn, of Manassas; three sisters, Mrs. Edgar Ish, of Aldie; Mrs. Luther Reid, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Beverly Adams, of Manassas; a devoted friend, Dr. A. Lynn, L. Oscar - 26 Dec 1919 M. J. - Mr. L. Oscar Lynn died on Monday at his home in Alexandria. Although Mr. Lynn had been in failing health for some time, his death came as a great shock to many friends and relatives in Prince William, where he had passed all of his life with the exception of the last few years.

Mr. Lynn was employed as an engineer at the plant of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation. He was in his sixty-ninth year and was a son of Luther “Langdon” Lynn and Mary Frances Currell Lynn, who have been dead many years, surviving him is his widow, who was Miss Belle Grayson, of Fauquier County; a son, Mr. L. Lynn, Lewis C. - 17 Mar 1910 M.D. - Lewis C. Lynn died at the emergency hospital, in Annapolis, Md., on last Thursday evening, following an operation which developed no possible hopes of recovery, in the sixty-sixth year of his age. Up to a short period before going to the hospital, although not feeling in his usual health, Mr. Lynn attended to his daily business routine, and manifested a cheerfulness which indicated a freedom from any serious physical infirmity.

When the disclosures of the operation were made known it came as a shock to his family and his numerous friends in this section of the County. Just nine days after the surgeons knife disclosed the hopelessness of the case; away from his home and children but in the presence and under the soothing administrations of his devoted wife and his faithful medical attendants, the soul of Lewis C. Lynn passed to the Great Beyond.

He was conscious up to a short time of his death, and with that calm resignation, born of Christian fortitude, he arranged his business affairs and gave directions as to the selection of pallbearers and the hymns to be used in his in his funeral service. He selected, to be read, the Twenty-third psalm, and the following hymns: “He Leadeth Me,” “Guide Me, Oh, Thou Great Jehovah,” and “We Shall Not Always Sleep.”

The body arrived here Saturday morning, and conveyed to their last resting place in the Sudley Church cemetery beside the loved ones who preceded him to the better world.
The pallbearers, relatives and near friends of the deceased, were Henry F. Lynn, F. S. Sanders, Jos. F. Lewis, J. P. Leachman, Clarence Lynn and William M. Wheeler.

The large concourse of friends and relations who stood with bared heads, around the grave of the deceased, while the solemn burial services were being performed, by the Rev. Homer Welsh, pastor of Sudley Church, spoke in silence, of the love and high esteem in which Lewis C. Lynn was held. When the last sad rites had been performed by placing upon his grave the many floral tributes of loving hearts and hands, the thought most uppermost was that in his death his wife had lost a faithful and devoted husband; his children an affectionate, indulgent father, and the community an exemplary citizen.

The deceased is survived by his widow, who is a daughter of Col. J. T. Leachman, and by two sons, Charlie by his first marriage with Miss Bonham, of Clarke County, and John P. by his last marriage, and also by three brothers, Messrs. Currell, Oscar, and Clarence Lynn, and four sisters, Mesdames Addie Cushing, Laura Sanders, Nannie Wheeler and Hattie Pattie.

Lyon, George T. - 30 May 1929 M. J. - George T. Lyon, a prominent resident of Manassas for the past 16 years, died on Tuesday afternoon, at the home of his son, J. P. Lyon, where he had been living for many years.

Mr. Lyon, who was an interior decorator and mural painter, had not been active in his vocation for several years due to a heart malady which required him to take things quietly. He did, however, continue his work as an artist, and many charming paintings came from his brush from time to time.

Mr. Lyon was born in Nova Scotia, 71 years ago, and moved to the United States when 22 years old, becoming a citizen of the country in which he lived up to the time of his death.

Funeral rites will be held at the residence of his son, J. P. Lyon, today, Thursday, at 2 p. m., with Rev. A. Stuart Gibson, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, officiating. The local lodge of Masons will conduct the burial service, Mr. Lyon having been a Master Mason for 52 years.

Lywood, Annie R. - 10 Jan 1913 M. J. - Miss Annie R. Lywood, 54 years old, died of tuberculosis, in her home on Portner avenue, at 7 o’clock Wednesday morning. Macrae, R. B. L. - 29 Jan 1915 M. J. - In the death of R. B. L. Macrae in the Hospital at Lee Camp Soldiers Home, in Richmond, on Saturday afternoon Prince William County lost its last inmate in that institution.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon, from the Home’s chapel, and interment was made in the soldiers’ section in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mr. Macrae was a sufferer from cancer for a number of years and every effort was made by the Home’s medical staff to stay the progress of the disease and to render his declining days as comfortable as possible. To this end he was placed under the care and attention of specialists in Kellum Hospital in Richmond, for a period of more than a year.

Mr. Macrae was a native of Prince William County and was a member of Company A, 4th Virginia Cavalry; taking part in the first encounter with the enemy on Virginia soil, at Fairfax Court House and serving throughout the war with distinguished gallantry.

He entered the Home on February 17, 1909, and when the summons came to “cross over the river” and bivouac with his comrades on the shores of time, he had attained his 74th year.

Mr. Macrae’s only near surviving relative is a brother, John Macrae, whose residence is 681 Fifth Avenue, New York. He also has other more remote relatives in his native and adjoining counties.

Mr. Macrae was a member of Holy Comforter, Protestant Episcopal Church of Richmond, was a regular attendant at Sabbath morning services so long as he was physically able. He was of courteous and engaging manners and made friends with all with whom he came in social contact.

Maddox, William - 11 Apr 1929 M. J. - What promises to be one of the most interesting trials conducted in Prince William County in a number of years will result in the bill found by the grand jury this week in an investigation into the death of William Maddox, of near Dumfries, in January.

Following an examination of numerous witnesses summoned by the Commonwealth’s Attorney, which occupied three days, the grand jury brought in an indictment for a felony, the murder of William Maddox, on January 16, 1929, against Coleman Davis, Willie Davis, Richard Davis, John Davis and Caton Carney, all said to reside in the vicinity of Dumfries.

William Maddox died on January 16, presumably from natural causes, but there were some who were not satisfied that all had been regular, and for some time an investigation has been going on during which time it was learned that Maddox had engaged in an altercation with several other men and had been roughly handled. The body was exhumed last week and an examination developed that the deceased had suffered a concussion of the brain caused by a blow and other injuries any one of which might have caused his death.

All of the parties against whom the indictment was brought furnished bond in the sum of $1000 each, pending further investigation and fixing of a date for trial.

Maloney, John - 06 Jun 1912 M.D. - News reached here late yesterday of the death, yesterday of John Maloney, in the home of his father at North Garden, this date of Bright’s disease.

Mr. Maloney, who was about 50 years of age, has been in ill health for several months; scarcely able to attend to his large business interests at Swetnam, Fairfax county, where he has been engaged in the mercantile business for several years, succeeding Chas. Swetnam.

The condition of Mr. Maloney became so alarming a week or so ago, that it was thought best to remove him to the home of his father where he would be free from business annoyance and where it was hoped he would recuperate by the change in his environment.

The body was taken to his late home on train No. 10, today and interment was in Fairfax Courthouse cemetery, this afternoon. The deceased is survived by his widow; two sweet and interesting daughters, Misses Louise and Julia, and by one son, John, besides other relatives.

Our hearts go out in deepest sympathy for the family in this hour of their sad bereavement.

Mantiply, M. F. - 16 Jun 1911 M. J. - Mr. M. F. Mantiply, a highly esteemed citizen of Clifton, died in the Georgetown Hospital, last Friday morning, of appendicitis, Manuel, Johnson - 10 Jul 1913 M.D. - Mr. Johnson Manuel, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Prince William County, was found dead in his home near Nokesville at an early hour Saturday morning, death resulting, it is supposed, from heart failure. The funeral took place from the home Sunday afternoon, Elder Jas. T. Flory, of the Church of the Brethren, officiating, and interment was made in the old family burying ground on M. T. King place. The pallbearers were an intimate and close friends of the deceased.

Mr. Manuel, who was in his 83rd year, arose, as was his custom, soon after the break of day Saturday morning, and was apparently well and hearty when he ate his breakfast as the usual hour. When he had finished his morning meal he gave orders to one of the farm laborers concerning some repairing needed about the place, himself assisting in a portion of the work. About 7:30 o'clock one of the children of Squire W. T. Allen with whom Mr. Manuel had made his home for several years, came running out of the house and stated that “grandpa” was lying across his bed and would not move. When an investigation was made it was found that the old gentleman was dead.

Mr. Manuel, who is survived by only one brother, J. Peyton Manuel, was at one time one of the most prosperous farmers in Brentsville district. His entire life was spent in celibacy in the neighborhood where he first saw the light of day and where the spark of life went out so suddenly at the ripe old age.

One of his chief delights was in the solitude of the forest with his trusty fowling piece following wily game or watching in the turkey blind which he maintained at one particular spot for the past thirty years and from which he bagged many handsome birds.

Mr. Manuel was of that kind and jovial disposition which won him many warm friends, and perhaps there are few persons who had fewer enemies than he. The large procession of both white and colored people who followed his remains to their last resting place bore mute testimony of the high esteem in which he was held.

When the last sad rites had been preformed and the large assemblage turned away from the fresh mound, there were many expressions that in the death of Johnson Manuel the county of Prince William had lost a good, upright and honorable citizen, and the community a kind hearted and sympathetic neighbor whose latch-string was always at the disposal of his numerous friends at all times and under all circumstances.

Manuel, Rosie - 24 Mar 1916 M. J. - Shortly after two-thirty o'clock Tuesday afternoon the Bristow neighborhood was horrified to learn that at the Southern Railway bridge over Broad Run, a short distance north of Bristow, the Chesapeake and Ohio train No. 4, had instantly killed Miss Rosie Manuel, aunt of Everett P. Robertson, of Bristow, and has seriously injured Miss Esther Dickens, the twenty-two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. H. Dickens, of the same neighborhood. John Harris, colored, an employee of Mr. J. P. Leachman, was an eye witness of the accident.

From the most authoritative accounts available it appears that Miss Manuel, accompanied by Miss Dickens and Miss Francis Griffith, 15 year old daughter of Mr. W. T. Griffith, of Manassas, who was visiting in the Bristow neighborhood for the day, set out from Bristow to visit the bridge over Broad Run. When they reached the bridge they started to cross it, apparently unaware that the C. & O. passenger train was coming on the northbound track, on which they were walking.

The engineer, while yet south of Bristow, saw that there were people on the track but at the time thought i was a force of section hands. When he came past the depot, however, he saw that there were three women on the bridge and at once cut his engine off and applied the air brakes, at the same time blowing his whistle.

Miss Griffith had the presence of mind to run to the side and wrap her arms around one of the upright iron standards. Miss Dickens, it is said, also grasped one of these standards but fainted before the train passed, and was consequently struck by the side of the engine. But in the case of Miss Manuel, who was 51 years of age, it is thought that she kept running right in front of the train and perhaps had a foot caught in between the ties, thus throwing her just before being struck. Anyway, Miss Manuel was thrown through the side of the bridge and horribly mangled, the remains hardly bearing any points of recognition. Miss Dickens was hurled out on one of the abutments and seen to be seriously injured. Miss Griffith, outside of the nervous shock, came off unharmed.

The train, after quite a stop at the scene of the accident, brought the remains of Miss Manuel to Manassas, and Miss Dickens was carried to the Alexandria Hospital in charge of a physician who happened to be on the train. At the hospital it was learned that Miss Dickens had suffered the breaking of one arm in two places, the other arm in one place, a broken collar bone and shoulder blade and several cuts about the head. Her condition was pronounced favorable provided there were no internal injuries.

LATER- As we go to press we learn that Miss Dickens had to suffer the amputation of her right arm Wednesday afternoon. Since the accident Miss Dickens has been kept constantly under opiates. Her condition, while still very serious, was more hopeful this morning after she had spent a restful night. Mrs. Dickens is at the bedside of her daughter-----

McCleary, Conway - 03 Feb 1911 M. J. - When Conway McCleary kissed his little wife and prattling child good bye, in his cozy home in Washington Tuesday morning, and boarded passenger train No. 9, as its flagman, a more perfect picture of health and vigorous manhood could scarcely be imagined.

His faithful wife, with little thought of impending sorrow, was busy with her household cares and with pleasurable expectation of her husband’s early return, when the message came telling her of his tragic death. It requires no stretch of imagination to realize the cruelty of the blow which destroyed the charm of home and rendered her heart the tomb of blighted hopes.

When Flagman McCleary reached Manassas, the day upon which he died, he complained of feeling languid and jokingly remarked to the porter that he felt like changing places with him and take a good nap. He gradually grew worse and when the train reached Gilbert’s Station, he left train No. 9 and boarded passenger train No. 10 for Washington in the hope of reaching home before the crisis came.
From Conductor Parker, with whom the dead man talked, it is learned that McCleary had a premonition of impending dissolution and his only hope was to reach home before he died. This proved a vain hope for when the train reached Calverton his soul had taken its flight, as he sat, apparently sleeping, in his seat with head bowed.

A passenger, who sat in the seat in front of the unfortunate victim, stated that his attention was called to the man’s heavy breathing just before the train reached Calverton, but thinking that he was sleeping, paid no further attention to him until the train stopped, when he discovered he was dead.

The deceased’s wife was Miss Maude Irby, daughter of engineer Jack Irby, a former resident of Manassas, and who at the time of his residence here, was running on the Manassas branch of the Southern Railway.

McCuin, Rosie Belle - 25 Oct 1918 M. J. - Rosie Belle McCuin, the 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lacey McCuin, died Tuesday last of pneumonia. Her remains were interred in the Manassas cemetery Thursday afternoon at 2 o’clock, the service being conducted by Rev. T. D. D. Clark.

Though not a member of the church, she was a regular attendant at the Baptist Wednesday night prayer meeting. Like Samuel of old, she was a child of the sanctuary.”

Sometime before breathing her last she spoke of having had such a good time playing with her cousin, Clay Arnold, who died several years ago. As she was about to pass away, lying in her father’s arms, she pointed upwards; then taking his hand, she pointed it upward. Belief in immortality evidently is based on the reality of a continuous existence.

Merchant, Belle Pridmore - 14 Nov 1913 M. J. - Mrs. Benjamin N. Merchant passed away last Sunday morning after a brief illness in George Washington Hospital, in Washington. While her condition had been critical nearly ever since she entered that institution, her death comes as a distinct shock to the many friends in this community.

Burks, conducted the brief service, and interment followed in the cemetery near town. the pallbearers were Dr. Carter, Dr. Merchant, and Messrs. Bernard Trimmer, W. H. Surviving members of the family are her husband, Mr. B. N. Merchant, who has been in business for some time in North Carolina; a son, Benjamin Warren Merchant, aged twelve years, who is in the McDonogh School in Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. W. H. Cather, of Manassas.

Merchant, Benjamin Dyer - 21 Mar 1913 M. J. - Lieutenant Benjamin Dyer Merchant, seventy-four years old, died of pneumonia, following several months illness of a complication of diseases, in the home of her son, Harry, in Baltimore, at an early hour last Friday morning.

Arthur, rector of the Church officiating and interment was made in the family lot in the Manassas Cemetery under the auspices of Manasseh Lodge No. 182, A. F. and A. M. of which the deceased was a charter member.

Dr. W. Fewell Merchant, B. N. Merchant, sons; W. C. N. Merchant, brother; J. Edward Dunnington, son-in-law, and James Merchant Dunnington, grand son, of the deceased, were the pallbearers.

The deceased is survived by four sons- Dr. W. Fewell Merchant, of Manassas; B. N. Merchant and Harry N. Merchant, of Baltimore, and R. H. Merchant, Halifax, N. C.; by two daughters- Mrs. J. Edward Dunnington and Miss Elizabeth Warren Merchant, of Baltimore; by two sisters- Mrs. Jennie Adams and Mrs. Amy White, of Washington, and by three brothers- John E. Merchant, of Alexandria; W. C. N. Merchant, of Chatham, this state, and Samuel Merchant, of Accotink, Fairfax County, and by eight grand children.

Lieut. Merchant was among the first to respond to the call for troops to defend his native Southland from the invading Federal hosts and served with distinction in Company A., Fourth Virginia Cavalry, until he was captured at Antioch Church, near Waterfall, on December 29, 1863, and sent to the Old Capitol Prison in Washington. Subsequently he was transferred to Fort Delaware, where he was confined and subjected to trying ordeals of privation until his lot was cast on August 20 1864, with the “Immortal Six Hundred,” who were confined in a stockade on Morris Island under the fire of Confederate guns and where gross indignities, impure food and unsanitary conditions were endured for a lengthy period through stubborn resistance to the oath of allegiance to the Federal government.

Lieut. Merchant, as is not generally known in this community, was entitled to the credit of capturing the first Federal soldier of the war among the states. The prisoner belonged to Co. D., of the New York Light Dragoons. The capture was made, at a small stream a short distance this side of Fairfax Courthouse, at the time the Prince William Cavalry was surprised on June 1, 1861 by a Federal Regiment, while the greater portion of the company were unarmed and retreated to Centreville. The sword taken from the prisoner was placed in possession of a lady friend for safe-keeping until the close of the war when it was restored to the captor and is now in the possession of his son, Dr. Merchant.

When the writer looked down Sunday, upon the still form, clothed in the gray Confederate uniform that had been brushed by leaden hail upon many a gory field, his thoughts turned to the beautiful May morning when the Company to which he belonged, with black plumes in the hats of its members, and the brass buttons upon their new gray uniforms shining in the bright sunlight, marched proudly up the Main Street of Dumfries, where the company had been in camp for a short period, on its way to what was destined to be the historic plains of Manassas.

Partly covering the casket, which contained the remains of the gallant Confederate veteran, was a replica of the Confederate flag, with its red and white bars and thirteen white stars on a background of azure blue, typical of the colors which the deceased had followed through many hard fought battles and which rarely went down in defeat until furled at Appomattox.

If Lieut. Merchant had an enemy it was not known among the citizens of Prince William County with whom he had close business relations as merchant, Commissioner of the revenue, tiller of the soil and traveling salesman for a period of over half century. It was generally accepted that his uniform kindness and courtesy had endured him to and placed him in the highest regard of all with whom he came in social or business contact.

The large number of persons who were present in the spacious church edifice, taking up every available seating or standing room, to pay their last tribute of love and respect, together with the beautiful floral tributes, including a handsome emblematic design from Manasseh Lodge, A.F. and A. M.; the Manassas Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Manassas Chapter of the Southern Ladies’ Memorial Association, told in silence of the high regard in which the deceased was held in this community.

Those from a distance, other than those already mentioned, who attended the obsequies were: Mr. and Mrs. John E. Merchant and sons, Edwin Neale and John Preston, and daughter, Margaret A., of Alexandria, Samuel Merchant, of Accotink; Mrs. Jennie Adams, Mrs. Amy White and Mr. John J. Cowig, of Washington; Mr. H. N. Merchant, Mrs. J. E. Dunnington and Miss Elizabeth Warren Merchant and Mr. and Mrs. Coulbourne, of Baltimore; W. R. Free and Mrs. Laura V. Free, of Nokesville; Messrs. Mark Thomas, John Hall and Peyton Manuel, of Bristow; Major James R. Purcell, of Gainesville; Capt. John R. Rust, of Haymarket, and William T. Monroe, of Wellington.

The deceased was a member of Ewell Camp, Confederate Veterans, and of the Manassas Chapter of the Southern Ladies’ Memorial Associations, and took a lively interest in those societies. He was active in his efforts to aid the memorial Association in creating the funds which made possible the erection of the monument which now stands as a sentinel at the gates of the “silent city” of his comrades who have passed over the river.”

It was within the shadow of this monument that his body was consigned to the tomb, and the mystic circle of his fraternal order, after depositing into his grave emblems of purity, friendship and immortality of the soul, passed to each other a significance of fraternal affection and committed the soul of their deceased brother to the God who gave it.

Lieut. Merchant never missed an opportunity to meet in annual reunion with those who wore the gray, no matter at what inconvenience or expense, and when the thin line, which is growing thinner and thinner with each succeeding year, is drawn up for roll-call at Chattanooga, Tenn. on the 27th of next May, his smiling face and his cheerful presence will be missed from the hoary-headed throngs which nightly gather around the campfires to recant the thrilling incidents of the four long years of privation and bloodshed that tried men’s souls.

Merchant, R. Berry - 08 Sep 1916 M. J. - R. Berry Merchant, one of the city’s most highly respected citizens, county librarian and former business man, passed away suddenly this morning, death occurring at the North Wheeling hospital. Fatty degeneration of the heart is attributed as the cause of his sudden demise.

Mr. Merchant was on duty yesterday at the county library, and conversed with friends during the evening. Becoming alarmed because of his absence from his boarding house and from the fact that he was not seen on the street last evening, several people went to the library at 11 o’clock, and found him sitting in his chair. He was immediately rushed to the North Wheeling Hospital, and at 4 o’clock, despite the efforts of a corps of physicians, he passed away.
Deceased was born in Dumfries, Va., 57 years ago, and came to his city when a mere lad. He mastered the painting trade, but when comparatively young engaged in business. For a number of years he conducted a grocery at Eleventh and Market Streets with his brother George, later going into the livery business, which he successfully conducted for several years. He was also proprietor of the White Front restaurant for several years, and for some time traveled for the Schumacher Brewing company.

Six years ago he was chosen county librarian, which office he had since held in an able manner. Having a disposition that peculiar fitted him for a position of this nature, he soon won the friendship of every visitor to the library, and local attorneys have united as one in expressing deep sorrow over his passing away.

While never an office aspirant, deceased was a typical southern Democrat, and he has been a faithful worker for his party. However, his fairness and integrity won for him the friendship of men of opposite political faith, and this morning a prominent Republican officeholder paid him the following tribute: “While of opposite political belief. I have always found Berry Merchant one of the most upright men in politics that it has been my pleasure to come in contact with. Frequently as judge of elections, I have known him to take a stand against moves that would have been advantageous to his party, when he was certain that he was right.”

Deceased was a member of Wheeling Lodge, No. 14, Knights of Pythias, and was also a member of high standing in Wheeling Lodge, No. 28, B. P. O. E. His parents preceded him in death years ago. He was never married. Surviving are one brother, George W. Merchant, clerk of the Grand Central hotel, and two sisters, Mrs. B. F. Higgins and Mrs. Ella Holiday, both of this city.

Meredith, Alice Payne - 20 Jul 1906 M.J. - Miss Alice Payne Meredith died at the home of her brother, Dr. J. C. Meredith, last Friday afternoon. Miss Meredith had been in bad health for several months, never having recovered from a fall in Washington over a year ago and her death was not unexpected. The deceased was 54 years of age and had been a consistent member of the Greenwich Presbyterian church since her childhood. Her remains were laid to rest on Sunday in the beautiful family burying ground in Fauquier county.

Meredith, Thomas S. - 21 Jul 1922 M. J. - Thomas S. Meredith, a leading citizen of this county, and a justice of the peace of Gainesville Magisterial District, was shot and instantly killed near his home at Gainesville Wednesday afternoon of this week by Alvin Harris, a Negro. The news of the tragedy, which occurred about 2:30 o'clock, spread like wild-fire, and posses were at once organized to search for the murderer, but were not successful in catching up with him.

Harris, a young Negro, was causing a disturbance at the home of his father-in-law, John Lane, near Gainesville, and his wife, who was at her father's home, sent for Mr. Meredith. Responding to the call, Mr. Meredith hastened to the Lane home and found Harris in the county road in an ugly mood. He is said that he advised him to behave himself and suggested to him that he leave the place. Mr. Meredith then turned and started up the pike in the direction of his own home, when Harris whipped out a revolver and shot the officer in the back. Mr. Meredith fell, and Harris then approached the prostrate man and emptied four more loads into his body. One of the shots took effect in the head causing instant death.

Harris then turned in the direction of the Stone House, made his way into the woods and disappeared. His wife, who no doubt feared for her life after the officer of the law had been killed, fired a shot through a screen door at the fleeing Negro, but without effect.

Dr. T. G. Brown, of Buckland, who was on his way to Manassas, was the first white person to reach the scene of the shooting. Finding that Mr. Meredith was beyond medical assistance, he hastened back to Gainesville and notified the Commonwealth's Attorney by phone. In an effort to apprehend the murderer blood hounds were brought from the work house at Occoquan, but they failed to pick up the trail.

Feeling, especially in the upper end of the county where Mr. Meredith was so well and favorably known was at high pitch all of Wednesday afternoon and late into the night, and it is very likely that the murderer would have met summary justice had he been apprehended, Commonwealth Attorney Thomas H. Lion was on the scene with special officers until late in the night.

Mr. Meredith leaves a widow, Mrs. Rose G. Meredith, and the deepest sympathy of the entire county is hers in the hour of her bereavement.

Mr. Meredith was sixty-three years of age and the last surviving brother of the late Congressman E. E. Meredith.

The funeral services were held at the home this (Friday) morning at 11 o’clock, and interment was made in the Manassas cemetery this afternoon.

Article from 02 Feb 1923 M. J. - Alvin W. Harris, having been declared sane by the commission appointed to inquire into his sanity, will be electrocuted on Tuesday, February 6, Governor Trinkle has refused to grant further reprieve.

It will be recalled that on July 19, Harris shot to death Thomas S. Meredith, a justice of the peace, in the public road near Gainesville. Giving himself up, a week later, after the whole county had been aroused and had joined in his search, he was taken to Richmond.

He was sentenced to death at the October term of the circuit court here and his electrocution was to have taken place on December 5, but he was granted a reprieve of two months, there being some doubt of his sanity.

The funeral was held from Trinity Episcopal Church, Manassas, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Rev. F. L. Robinson, the former rector conducting the services. Interment was in Manassas cemetery. Mrs Metz leaves her husband, Murry Metz, of Washington; her sister, Miss Eugenia Osbourne, of Manassas; her brother, George Osbourne, of Washington; and two aunts, Miss Hilleary and Mrs. Maynard both of Baltimore.

Mrs. Fannie Osbourne Metz was the daughter of Dr. Richard Keene Osbourne and Miss Eugenia Hilleary Osbourne residents of Upper Marlboro, Md. She died in Providence Hospital in Washington Sunday, January, 21 at 3 A. M.

Her life work was that of teacher. As such she had few equals and no superior. She prepared boys and girls for the best colleges of the land and her pupils ranked with the best in their preparation as certified by the best college authorities. Her ability was only limited by her physical strength. Manassas and Prince William county owe her and her sister, Miss Eugenia H. Osbourne a debt that can never be repaid.

Mrs. Metz received her preparatory training in private schools of Washington and graduated at the State Normal School of Maryland. She took a three year course also in French and German in the Berlitz School of Modern Languages in Baltimore and had also an extensive musical education in the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

After teaching for a time in Towsontown, Md., she found it necessary to seek lighter duties where a change of climate could be secured and on the recommendations of State Supt. Newell, of Maryland, she came to Manassas. Here she has been prominent factor in the life of our town for a quarter of a century.

After teaching for a time in the family of John C. Weems on what is now the Portner place, she came into town ------------ continue - the following was taken from an article in 26 Jan 1912 Manassas Journal - Miss Fannie Osbourn was the daughter of a prominent physician of Prince George’s County, Maryland, Dr. Richard Keene Osbourn. Her mother was Miss Eugenia Hilleary. When she died last Sunday in Washington, she was 55 years of age. She received her preparatory training in private schools of Washington and studied several years in the Berlitz School of Modern Languages and the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore. She graduated with honor at the Maryland State Normal in Baltimore and taught for a time with success in Towsontown, Md. but her health made it desirable to seek a change of situation and climate. How she was providentially called to her life’s work in Manassas is interesting to recall. It shows how God works his plans among the children of men.---- In 1898, she was married to Mr. Murray G. Metz, but with her sister, still carried on the institute with growing success. (For complete obituaries check the Manassas Journal 26 Jan 1912 and 25 Jan 1912 Manassas Democrat.

He leaves a widow and five children and a large number of friends to mourn his death. - (also check Manassas Journal 27 Feb 1914) - the following was taken from 06 Mar 1914 issue of Manassas Journal - Robert Lee Molair was born in Prince William County, Va., April 4, 1856, and died after a lingering illness of tuberculosis, February 25, 1914.

He spent the greater part of his life in the neighborhood of Brentsville. When twenty-one years old, he was married to Miss Martha McCuen who, together with five children, survive to mourn his loss.

Mr. Molair was an industrious and frugal man and though possessed of little means when he entered the married relation, by industry and economy, aided by a faithful wife he accumulated considerable property.
About six years ago he united with the Baptist Church, which he generously supported till the time of his death. His brethren honored him in electing him a deacon and a trustee. He loved his church for what he believed it had done for him. He loved it also for what he hoped it would mean to others and his kindred and his friends.

The sympathy of this entire community goes out to this sorrow-stricken widow and her family who, only last November were bereft of their lovely young daughter and sister, Mollie (see Manassas Journal 21 Nov 1913) and now, another breaking of the home ties, the husband and father says his last farewell to earth and earthy scenes.

Moran, William Henry Wadsworth - 13 Mar 1913 M.D. - William died at his home near Manassas Tuesday afternoon, this week, in his fifty-third year after a lingering illness.

Mr. Moran was born in Loudoun county, September 8, 1860. On December 21, 1882, he married Miss Bessie Atwell, of Loudoun county. Of this union were born nine children, seven of whom, with his widow, survive him: Grace B., Irvin H., Portia I., Gordon H., Preston Willard, Mary Lanier Moran, and Mrs. J. R. B. Davis.

His first venture into business was in the late eighties when he launched The Loudoun Enterprise at Hamilton. After several years of prosperity with this paper he looked for a larger field and came to Manassas, established the Manassas Journal, bought out a contemporary, The Manassas Gazette, and for about fifteen years he was editor and publisher of that paper. The Journal, under his able management and capable pen, soon took a high place among the State papers. He made the Journal a paper that was ever an honor to the community and a credit to its editor. There never appeared anything in its column that could offend the finer feelings of its readers or that was in any way untrue or the “yellow journalistic” type.

In the town and its neighborhood Mr. Moran and his paper were always held in the highest esteem. His patrons and readers were confident that his influence on political, educational and social matters would always be on the right side and gave him their confidence and patronage accordingly. It was a matter of regret to his friends when he disposed of his interest in The Journal and started The Review in Orange. He was then in failing health and his experience with a fire that consumed his entire plant probably hastened his end materially.

Possibly no man in Virginia had higher ideals as an editor than Mr. Moran. Certainly few newspaper proprietors had as strict a conception of their duty to the reading public, or made more fincinal sacrifices to maintain their ideals. As a tribute to his original researches he was elected an honorary member of the National Geographical Society.

In the death last Friday afternoon of George Muddiman, seventy-eight years old and fifty-two years a resident of Manassas. Prince William loses one of her oldest artisans. After stricken with apoplexy on Thursday, March 3, when watching the funeral procession of the late O. H. Evans pass the Catholic Church railway crossing, Mr. Muddiman lingered between life and death until the final summons came.

Jacob and Esther Muddiman, natives of England, embarked in 1843 for America. They brought with them their two children, David, now living in Manassas, and the deceased George. The former was then three years of age and the latter six weeks old. At that early day steamships were not plying the Atlantic and the trip had to be made in a sailing vessel, six weeks being required to effect the voyage.

After arriving in this country, the Muddiman family settled in Alexandria, in 1869 moving to Manassas. Their son George learned the stonemason trade making this and bricklaying and contracting his life work. He continued active in such work up to suffering the stroke of paralysis. The stone houses adjacent to Grace M. E. Church South, stand as examples of his handicraft.

When a young man, Mr. Muddiman was married to Miss Margaret Jane Wolverton, of Manassas, who died about eight years ago. To this union was born four children, Samuel, who died several years ago; Mrs. Ernest Shirley, whose death occurred about a year before that of her mother, and two surviving daughters, Mrs. A. N. On Monday afternoon Mrs. Florence was summoned by wire to the bedside of her brother and left here for Roanoke on train 41 Monday night. Although the deceased was considered very ill by his physicians, at the time his sister was summoned, there was no thought of such early dissolution. Mr. Muddiman was a man of quiet demeanor, generous to a fault, an affectionate and devoted husband, a kind neighbor and a good and useful citizen, who will be missed in the community in which he has so long resided. His many friends in Manassas will sympathize with the widow in her sad and sudden bereavement. Messrs. George and David Muddiman will leave here tonight to attend the obsequies.

For a score of years Mr. Mulholland kept a store on Main Street, just below the town hall, until within the past few months.

Myers, Etta C. Sandey - 20 Aug 1914 M.D. - A sad and Pathetic death occurred here last Tuesday when Etta C. Myers, wife of D.J. Myers, died at her home on Main street after a short illness of a little over a week. Her death was caused by typhoid fever and at the present time four other members of the family, all children, lie stricken with the malady.

Mrs. Myers had reached the age of thirty-nine years. She came to Manassas last December with her husband and children, and shortly after locating here she was taken to a Washington hospital for treatment. Up to the time that she contacted the fever her health was bad. Mrs. Myers was a native of Rockingham County and the remains were shipped to Harrisonburg today for burial.
Surviving the deceased is the husband and five small children. The sympathies of the community are with the husband and family in their recent sickness and death.

The residence occupied by the Myers family has for a long time been regarded as a source of typhoid fever, and the contaminated water there has caused cases of fever among members of almost every family that has resided there. The water supply will, undoubtedly, be condemned and closed by the health authorities. The Myers children who are victims of the fever are doing as nicely as could be expected, none of them being critically ill at this time. - the following was taken from 21 Aug 1914 M. J. - She was born in Rockingham County in 1875, and lived there until eleven years ago, when her husband she went to Illinois. Nelson, Bettie - 23 Feb 1911 M.D. - Heartbroken over the death of her husband, Lieut. Edwin Nelson, less than a fortnight before, Mrs. Bettie Nelson. has followed him into the beyond. She will be laid to rest beside him in the Confederate cemetery tomorrow afternoon. Less than a month ago both had planned the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary on March 26.

Mrs. Nelson died Wednesday morning at 11 o’clock. Physicians say death was caused by collapse resulting from overtax on her strength during the last illness of her husband, but it was grief, more than she could bear, that brought the end. Death, to her, came as a ministering angel, soothing in sleep the suffering of separation. But to those left behind the dual death visitation is the saddest ever witnessed in Manassas.

Mrs. Nelson was stricken shortly before the death of her husband, when she realized the approaching of the end. Hope at first held out for her recovery was given up early in the week when it was apparent that she gradually was passing away, and death momentarily was expected all through the night of Tuesday and the morning of Wednesday.

Mrs. Bettie Nelson was the daughter of Judge John C. Weedon and was born in Springfield, Prince William county, October 14, 1838. She was married March 26, 1861. Had they lived but six weeks longer Lieutenant and Mrs. Nelson would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. Nelson was a model Christian woman, a consistent member of the Primitive Baptist Church and a prominent member of The Daughters of the Confederacy.

The funeral will be from the Primitive Baptist Church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o’clock. Elder Dalton, of Front Royal, probably will conduct the services. The pallbearers, all near relatives, will be Jno. C. Weedon, Charles Weedon, Washington; William J. Chapman, John C. Wroe, Baltimore; P. P. Chapman, Manassas; T. A. Weedon, Washington; James Hood Weedon, Bristow; George M. Weedon, Dumfries.

Deep Sympathy is expressed for the family in the double bereavement of a fortnight. The death of Lieutenant and Mrs. Nelson is sincerely mourned by the entire community.

Adding to the distress of the family, the little daughter of Paul Nelson, is ill at Charleston, W. Va., while Mrs. A. O. Weedon on and little daughter, Elizabeth, are ill at New Baltimore.

Nelson, Chancellor Alexander - 21 May 1915 M. J. - Capt. C. A. Nelson, for many years prominent in business in Fort Scott, but for many years retired, died Sunday afternoon, May 9, after having suffered a stroke of apoplexy in the bathroom at his home earlier in the day.

Capt. Nelson arose as usual and seemed in his usual state of health. After breakfast, as was his custom, he retired to the bathroom to shave and bathe. Failing to come from the bathroom after it was thought by the family he had had ample time to finish his bath, and failing to respond to a knock, the room was entered and he was found lying on the floor unconscious. He was removed to his bed and a physician was called and found him to be suffering from a very severe stroke of apoplexy from which there was no hope of his recovery. His spirit lingered until 2:30 in the afternoon and then took its flight.
Chancellor Alexander Nelson was born March 21, 1834, in Rappahannock County, Va. He was married March 11, 1858, to Jane Nelson, and in 1871 he came to Kansas, locating in Fort Scott. For some time he was associated with his brother-in-law, Charles Nelson, in the wholesale grocery business, later engaging in the retail business by himself.

Many years ago Mr. Nelson retired from active business and since then has been living with his wife, son and daughter in Fort Scott, Kansas, enjoying fairly good health, but had become somewhat feeble of late.

Mr. Nelson was always known as Capt. Nelson, the title having been earned by him through service in the Confederate Army. He was captain of a company in the 4th Virginia infantry and his company was of Gen. Stonewall Jackson’s corps, with whom Capt. Nelson was acquainted and of whom he was a great admirer. Capt. Nelson was a typical Southern gentleman and a man of fine personal traits. He is survived by his widow, two sons and one daughter.

NOTE: Capt. Nelson was a brother-in-law of the late Edwin Nelson of this place and had many friends in the county, some of whom are veterans who will regret to hear of the passing away of another old comrade-in-arms.

Nelson, Edwin - 16 Feb 1911 M.D. - Lieutenant Edwin Nelson is dead. Profound sorrow bowed anxious hearts, hoping against hope, when this sad message was borne to them on the Sabbath morn. With the dawn of the new day he departed, peacefully, without suffering, closing his eyes in sleep. Gradually he had approached the end; with strength ebbing away, but retaining his faculties, preparing loved ones in home, in town and county throughout the end was marked by shadows of fleeting hours, then minutes, love overpowered with grief their fortitude in the moment of farewell. The grief is personal to every man, woman and child who knew and loved this noble, gentle, brave, kind man. All feel they are bereaved. He will be mourned long as memory recalls his service and sacrifices for his native land and his fellowmen. Lieutenant Nelson died on the eve of his golden wedding anniversary, which was to have been celebrated on Sunday, March 26. Fifty years ago he was married to Miss Bettie Weedon. He was born in Grinstead, Prince William County, Jul 5 1831. For more than forty years he has been in the county clerkship of Prince William County, an eloquent testimonial to his high efficacy and unquestioned integrity.

Death resulted from gradual weakening of heart action. Early in December Lieutenant Nelson contracted a severe cold, which his extreme age made critical. However he recovered partially and was able to appear in his office at intervals until late in January when, stricken by relapse, he was confined home till death. He was last down town three weeks ago, and then but for a few minutes. Then he began to weaken more rapidly and on Saturday the death visitation was apparent. Shortly after four o’clock Sunday morning he breathed his last.

Through the quiet aisles of the Confederate cemetery, where his comrades are sleeping, the body of Lieutenant Nelson was carried and laid to rest by the Confederate monument, Tender tribute was given his memory at funeral services in the little church he had built upon the grounds surrounding his home. There Elder Norton, of Washington, spoke of a life that had been filled with all that makes for noble living with love and with charity. He quickened responsive emotions in the assemblage of mourners, few if any of whom, but had at some time in their lives felt the influence of Lieutenant Nelson’s character. The Rev. T. D. D. Clarke directed the choir. The pall-bearers were judge C. E. Nicol, Alexandria; William G. Iden, Washington; Walter Shannon, Philadelphia; Captain Jas. E. Herrell, Judge J. B. T. Thornton, John R. Tillett, Thos. H. Lion, and George Maddox, Manassas. Many and beautiful were the floral tributes, remembrances from Manassas Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and from Judge and Mrs. J. B. T. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shannon, R. Walton Moore, W. J. Chapman, John C. Weeden, H. A. Robson, Mrs. Geo. W. and Miss Lillian Hixson, M. G. Metz, T. A. Weedon and sisters, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Whitmore.

Lieutenant Nelson’s official career covers a period reaching back before the war, when he was deputy sheriff under William E. Goodwin. During the first year of the struggle he served in that important capacity, which then administered the finances of the County. He was elected deputy county clerk with Lucian A. Davis, clerk in 1871, and was elected clerk in 1887, and had held the office since. He served in the legislature in the session of 1868 - 9. His entire official career was characterized by faithful service, great efficiency and the highest integrity.

Edwin Nelson was commissioned lieutenant in the company of cavalry organized by Captain W. G. Brawner at Brentsville in September, 1862, and was mustered into service at Orange Court House the following November. With conspicuous bravery he fought for the cause his conscience told him was right, to maintain the institutions and traditions of his native land, to protect its firesides from an invading foe. He was at the front in the line of battle, he endured awful hardships and intense suffering in the Yankee war prisons. The company moved and camped at Hixes Hill below Fredericksburg and again at Moss Neck Church, ten miles below Fredericksburg. At noon on December 29 the company broke camp, marched to the battlefield, spending the night there. Early in the morning of December 30 1862, the company was attached to the Fifteenth Virginia Cavalry as Company H. with Lieutenant Nelson in command, and lasted from six o’clock in the morning until two o’clock in the afternoon, Company H. holding the line and repulsing a vastly larger number of Yankees. Company H. sustained a loss of eighteen men killed, wounded and missing. Lieutenant Nelson was also in the charge at Seneca, Md., on June 10 1863, when Captain Brawner and Lieutenant Whitecarver were killed, and he took part in important raids.

While home on a furlough, June 21 1863, he was captured and taken to Point Lookout Prison, transferred to the Old Capital Prison in Washington, then to a Philadelphia prison and subsequently to Officers Prison on Johnson’s Island in Lake Erie, where he was held until the close of the war. His imprisonment covered a period of twenty-two months. At the close of the war and until he was elected deputy county clerk in 1871. Lieutenant Nelson engaged in farming.

On March 26, 1861, Edwin Nelson married Miss Betty Weedon daughter of Judge John C. Weedon, of Prince William county. He is survived by his widow, three sons, John H., attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington; Jas. E., Manassas; Paul, Charleston WV, and two daughters, Mrs. Austin O. Weedon, New Baltimore, and Mrs. Albert Spiden, Manassas. He also leaves a brother, Charles, and a sister, Jane Nelson, Fort Scott, Kans. A sister Mrs. Marshall Weedon, died recently.

The accident occurred at Bull Run bridge, about four miles north of Manassas.

Mr. O’Neil left freight train No. 73, which is said to have been moving at the rate of five miles an hour, to examine a faulty rail and to give directions to a section foreman. As he stepped from the moving train it is said that he lost his footing and struck his head on the northbound track. Rising to his feet, he was struck by the advancing C & O., the second section of No. 2, which was carrying United States troops. It is thought by witnesses that had he remained prostrate between the tracks he might have been uninjured.

Owens, in Hopewell, Fauquier County, last Friday, little two year old Simon Kenton Owens lay dying in an adjoining room. When the cortège had left the new-made mound in the family burying ground, the baby breathed its last. The little one was laid to rest Saturday in a tiny grave beside its grandfather.

Mr. Owens died last Thursday at the age of 85 years. His funeral was conducted by the Rev. Norton, of The Plains. When stricken by his last illness, his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Winter Owens, to nurse him came with her baby boy from Haymarket. The child contracted infantile paralysis, resulting in its death.

J. S. Owens was a former resident of Prince William county and for years lived on Stonewall farm of 700 acres near Haymarket, which he sold to his son, Winter Owens about five years ago. His late home, Hopewell is near the Prince William county line. He was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him and his death is widely mourned.

Pattie, L. Frank - 12 Jul 1918 M. J. - Mr. L. Frank Pattie, cashier of the National Bank of Manassas, died by his own hand at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. R. S. Hynson, Sunday night. His death came as a severe shock to his family and friends.

Mr. Pattie was operated on about two years ago for appendicitis and his health has not been of the best since then. Of late he has had trouble in the region of the appendix and had been heard to remark that he did not believe the operation had been altogether successful. His sufferings, together with the confinement attendant upon the duties of his position, made even more arduous on account of the recent Liberty Loan and War Savings campaigns, broke down his nervous system with the terrible result mentioned above.

On Sunday last, Mr. Pattie, not feeling even as well as usual, passed practically the whole day in his room, lying down for the most part, and about nine o'clock p. m., he complained to his wife, who with their little daughter, was with him, that the room was close and he was going out on the porch for air. Donning his dressing gown, he left the room presumably for the porch, but he never reached it. On the way down the hall, he entered Mr. Hynson’s room and took from its holster a pistol, which was hanging near the bed and sent a bullet into his own brain. The ball entered near the center of the forehead and, passing through the brain, made its exit at the top and rear of the skull, finally lodging in the wall of the room.

Death was instantaneous. His wife, on hearing the report, went to him, and found him dead, with the gun clutched tightly in his hand, so tightly that her efforts to release it were unavailing. Mr. D. J. Arrington, a neighbor, hearing the sound of the pistol, went immediately to the house, and with some effort disengaged the deadly weapon.

L. Frank Pattie was born at Catharpin, August 19, 1885. He received his education in the public schools and also attended a college at Alliance, Warren County. He came to Manassas in 1904 to enter the service of the National Bank of Manassas. Beginning at the bottom rung of the ladder, by his efficiency, his loyalty and his unimpeachable integrity, he was advanced rapidly until he finally held the important position of cashier.

In September, 1910, Mr. Pattie was married to Miss Ann Stewart Hynson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hynson, of this place and one child a four year old daughter, Esther Warren Pattie, survives the union.

The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Pattie, of Catharpin, and his family name has long been one of prominence in the annals of upper Prince William. Besides his widow and the little daughter, he leaves a father, mother, three brothers and one sister who have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

Mr. Pattie was a member of the Manasseh Lodge, A. F. and A. M. and also belonged to the Manassas Chapter, Royal Arch Masons.

The funeral services were held from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Tuesday afternoon and the body was interred in the cemetery here with Masonic rites. The immense crowd that attended these ceremonies betokened the high esteem in which he was held.

Mrs. Payne, who before her marriage was Miss Augusta Payne, was born at Clifton Station May 16 1857, where most of her life was spent.

Though her death was sudden, it was not unexpected, as she had been in poor health for sometime, and knowing her days on earth were numbered, she was spiritually prepared to go.

Of her immediate family the deceased is survived by three sons, Messrs. Harvey, Julian and Archie, and two daughters, Mrs. A. M. Shaver and Miss Iola Payne, all of Washington, and one daughter, Mrs. Pearl Hutchison, of Eckington, all of whom attended the funeral with the exception of Mrs. Hutchison, who was unable to be present.

Interment was made in Clifton cemetery with the following serving as pallbearers; Messrs. A. Hart, W. H. Mathers, C. Mathers, V. Wright, George Kidwell and M. Simpson, all of Clifton.

At the close of the war he entered the service of the Richmond and Danville railroad, now the Southern Railway, by which he was employed for about thirty-five years, spending most of the time in the South. He retired, returned to Manassas and conducted a hotel until his health began to fail and about eight years ago moved to his farm near town, hoping to recuperate.

Payne, Jackson - 03 May 1918 M. J. - Mr. Jackson Payne, a long time resident of the neighborhood of Independent Hill, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Friday last from which he died Wednesday morning without having regained consciousness.

In the early part of the Civil War he served in a company commanded by Capt. Brawner, which was later ordered to join the command of Col. Mosby. Since the war he has been engaged in farming and was a member of Ewell Camp, Confederate Veterans.

Married twice, he was a widower at the time of his death. His first wife was a Miss Arnold, the second, a Miss Keys. He leaves a son, Mr. Rosier Payne, and two daughters.

Mr. Payne was kind and genial in manner, and numbered among his friends many of our citizens, who will regret to learn of his death.

What greater tribute can be paid to a man than that he served faithfully under the immortal Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

Payne, John Lewis - 07 Sep 1917 M. J. - John Lewis Payne died of Paralysis Saturday at his home near Buckhall, at the age of seventy years. The following tribute to his memory was written by a friend of the family: “An honest man is the noblest work of God.” My friend Mr. Payne was a man of industry, integrity and honesty toward himself, his family, his neighbors and his god. He was born near Buckhall in Prince William County, October 11, 1846, and for over three score and ten years had his home in our neighborhood and for thirty-five years was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Buckhall.

My intimate association with Mr. Payne began September 20, 1890, when he became a school trustee in the Manassas district board, on which he served with the writer for twenty years. During that time our Manassas village school grew from a two room to an eight room school and to include in addition a high school and public library and then an agricultural high school with a normal training class, aggregating a dozen instructors.

In 1899 we enlarged the Ruffner Building and rededicated it January 1, 1900, and his name appears with Col. Jno. T. Leachman’s and my own on the bronze tablet at the entrance. Later the large and commodious Bennett Building was erected and dedicated.

August 6, 1907, Col. Leachman retired from the board and from that date for three years Mr. Payne was chairman of the board. During that time occurred the ground-breaking and subsequent dedication of the Agricultural High School of the Eighth Congressional district. Mr. Payne took great interest in the many details connected with this rapid growth and development. The services of this modest gentleman are better known to the writer than to anyone else. I am glad to render this tribute to his devotion and work on behalf of the public.

In September, 1909, Mr. Payne was partially paralyzed, but he continued to serve as trustee until his second stroke about a year later, when he resigned. The third stroke, which came September 1, 1917, at 3 p. m., ended his earthy life.

During his eight years of affliction and suffering he never complained, but bore everything with resignation and patience.

He leaves a widow, who was Miss Sarah Evans, and the following children: Mrs. Arthur Raymond and Messrs. Wilson and Phillip Payne, of Buckhall, and Mr. Robert Payne, of the Washington police force. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. O. H. Evans, and Mrs. Amelia Spittle, and one brother, Mr. James Payne.

While Mr. Payne had been slightly indisposed at times for several months, on Monday he appeared in his usual health, and after eating supper, walked over to Buckley Bros. store, returning a few minutes before 8 o’clock. He picked up a pen to do some writing, but noticing a plate of candy he took a piece and began eating. Before he had finished it, he expired.

For many years he was engaged in the mercantile business at Clifton, but about 12 years ago sold out to Buckley Bros. to enter the lumber business, in which he was eminently successful. He was popular with all whom he met and will be greatly missed. He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Pendleton who for several years was rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, of Manassas and St. Ann’s Memorial Chapel, of Nokesville, will be sorry to learn of the tragic death of his nine-year old son Willie, at his home in Spartinsburg, S. C., on Monday morning last.

The little boy was found suspended from a hook on the bathroom door, which had caught in the collar of his closely buttoned jacket, causing his death from strangulation.

It is supposed the child had mounted a chair in order to reach a towel, and that the chair tilted throwing him upon the hook in the manner in which he was found.

A telegram to Rev. Leslie Robinson, rector of Trinity church of this place, was received Wednesday, from the father of the unfortunate victim, conveying the sad intelligence of the death of his son and asking the prayers of himself and congregation. Perry, Allen - 05 Apr 1918 M. J. - What is generally known as the “Negro Settlement,” near Gainesville, was the scene of a tragedy on Sunday evening when Allen Perry was shot and instantly killed and Stephen Tyler was wounded, in an altercation that arose over a crap game indulged in by several Negroes of the community.

Walter Thornton and Tim Thornton are both in jail awaiting trial, they having been indicted on Monday, the former for killing Perry and the latter for the wounding of Tyler.

The shooting took place at the home of George Moore. It is said that liquor was freely indulged in by the members of the crap shooting party, and it is supposed that this, in a measure, contributed to the double shooting affair.

Thos. S. Meredith, a justice of the peace, of Gainesville, heard of the murder shortly after it was committed and went to the scene of the crime. After searching several houses in the neighborhood, he found Tim Thornton and placed him under arrest. He however, could find no trace of Walter Thornton, but was notified later that this man had been seen below Gainesville going in the direction of Manassas. Mr. Meredith, feeling confident that Thornton would make for this place in order to board a freight train and escape, took the branch train and came to Manassas Sunday night. Upon arriving here after consulting with the local authorities, he in company with his brother, Dr. J. C. Meredith, started from Manassas in the direction of Wellington, along the railroad track. At Rixlew, about two miles west of Manassas, they met Thornton coming in this direction. The man was placed under arrest and brought to Manassas by the officers and lodged in jail. (the following was taken from a later issue of the Manassas Journal - Walter Thornton, who was indicted on the first day of the April term of the court for the killing of Allen Perry, near Gainesville, on Sunday, March 31st, entered a plea of guilty in the circuit court on yesterday, and upon such was sentenced by the court to serve fifteen years in the penitentiary.

Thornton and Perry engaged in a fight over a crap game at the home of another Negro, George Moore, and the trouble resulted in the shooting and killing of Perry by Thornton.

“Tim” or Clifford Thornton, who was indicted at the same time charged with the shooting of Stephen Tyler, was acquitted by the jury empannelled to try the case against him.

Perry, Henry Clay - 08 Jun 1906 M.J. - Another old Confederate soldier answered the last roll call on Sunday morning, June 3, after a very long and painful illness. Mr. Perry was born in Charleston S. C., April 27, 1845. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was in England and immediately set sail for home to aid in the defense of his native State. When he reached Charleston he found his older brother William, had been the first man to enlist in the Confederate Navy, a fact which the subject of this sketch always justly considered an honor to his family. Henry being too young for a commission entered the same branch of the service as a midshipman and was engaged in running the blockade until near the close of the war. After the war the most of his life was spent in this county.

He never married, but made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Bettie Ashby, near Orlando and was most kindly cared for during his long suffering. Mr. Perry possessed an excellent education, served as school trustee and justice of the peace for a number of years and was a great aid to the community in which he lived. His remains were lovingly laid to rest in the churchyard at Orlando.

Andrew Pine, of Washington, who was in attendance upon the funeral.

Pope, Lawrence E. - Feb? 1913 M.D. - Mr. Lawrence E. Pope, a well known and highly esteemed citizen of Manassas, died suddenly at his home here on last Sunday evening at about 7 o’clock. His death was wholly unexpected and came as a great shock to his many friends. Previous to his death he had contacted a deep cold and for several days had been feeling badly, although continuing his duties out of doors. Sunday he remained in the house and in the evening became worse. A physician was called in, but he soon passed beyond all medical aid. His death was due to congestion of the lungs. He had reached the age of 47 years.

Mr. Pope was born in Clifton, Va., and his early days were spent with his Aunt, Mrs. Lizzie Buckley, of that place. His parents died when he was a child. Later in life Mr. Pope became an engineer for the Southern and for some time served in that capacity. He was married to Miss Mary Lynch, eldest daughter of Mr. M. Under charge of all these Masonic brethren the body was taken to Union cemetery in Alexandria for burial. The services at the grave were beautifully conducted by the Rev. H. L. Quarles, acting worshipful master.

As showing the high regard held for Mr. Pope the Southern railway issued passes to all attending the funeral.
Many and beautiful were the floral offerings among them being a wreath of American beauty roses, presented by the medical profession of Manassas: a floral square and compass, with A. Porter, Willie - 07 Nov 1929 M. J. - Robert M. Weir, the popular commissioner of revenue of Prince William County, on Sunday night, while acting as a special officer at Manassas shot Willie Porter, colored, who died instantly.

Mr. Weir, who was at the Southern Depot station-------in the rear of the station said one of them was wielding a razor. Weir at once went to the spot indicated where he found that one of the combatants, George Berry by name, colored, had scurried to safety, but that Porter was still in a fighting mood and proved stubborn about surrendering his weapon.

Calling to Porter to throw down his razor the officer approached him but met with a torrent of abuse and a warning that he would be cut if he touched him. Procuring a stick Weir attempted to knock the razor out of Porter's hand, but lost the stick while striking at him. Weir was slashed on the coat in two places and other cuts inflicted on his vest and at this point he fired the shot which ended Porter's turbulent career, as the victim went down the officer received a nasty cut on the leg.

At the hearing before Mayor Harry P. Davis, on Monday night, all witnesses completely exonerated the officer of any blame in the matter, and all seemed of the opinion that without shooting when he did Weir would have been mortally wounded. The Mayor ruled that the shooting was done in self defense and fully justifiable, an opinion which met with the hearty approval of those in the crowded council chambers, white and colored alike.

Witnesses appearing all of whom testified favorable to Weir, were H. Elmer Metz, William McIntosh and the following colored citizens, Joe Foster, Wesley Buchanan, John Chapman and Vincent “Bub” Johnson.

Portis, Cora Viola Bonner - 12 Jan 1923 M. J. - Mrs. Cora Viola Portis, wife of Mr. Charles R. Portis, died on December 28, at a hospital in Hewit, California, after an illness of three weeks, her death being the result of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Portis, who will be remembered here as Miss Cora Bonner, was the eldest daughter of Mrs. Mary Caroline Bonner and the late Luther D. C. Bonner. She was born on February 26, 1879, at what is known as the Goode... farm near Manassas, and spent the early years of her life here, having only moved to Braddock, Va., where her mother still lives in 1912. Two months later she went to Riverside California, to be with relatives and while there met Mr. Portis to whom she was married March 24, 1917.

The deceased, who was a woman of strong Christian character, was a zealous worker in the cause of missions in the Presbyterian Church of which denomination she had been a member since childhood.

Besides her husband she leaves twin children, Norman Edward and Mary Elizabeth, four years old and Edna Mae, twenty months old; her mother, Mrs. Mary C. Bonner; one sister, Mrs. Norman Evans, of Braddock, and a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

Portner, Anna Valaer - 18 Jul 1912 M.D.- Mrs. Anna Valaer Portner, widow of Robert Portner, founder of the Portner Brewing Company, of Alexandria, and owner of a large real estate holdings in Manassas district and in Washington, who for many years has been prominent in social and charitable circles both here and in Washington, died at 3:30 o’clock Friday afternoon at “Annaburg,” her country estate within the corporate limits of Manassas.

The funeral, which was private, took place from the home, at 6:30 o’clock Sunday evening, Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, chaplain of United States Senate and pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church of Washington, officiating, and interment was in the family lot in the Manassas cemetery in which Mr. Portner and his two sons, Robert and Edward and daughter, Clara Louise, are buried. The Pall-bearers were Mrs. Portner’s five sons: Edward G., Alvin O., Paul V., Oscar C., and Herman H. Portner: her two son-in-law, William Payne Meredith and Lorimer C. Graham, and her private secretary, Robert M. Heth.

The interment was delayed fully one hour by one of the most severe electrical storms that ever passed over this section. The funeral cortege, soon after it left the house, was in a heavy downpour of rain until it reached the cemetery. At the grave the attendants stood with bared heads and dripping umbrellas during the obsequies. Two automobiles, heavily laden with beautiful floral tributes, and which preceded the funeral cortege about a quarter of an hour, experienced some difficulty in making the trip on account of depression in the road having become small lakes.

Mrs. Portner had been in failing health for nearly a year and ten days prior to her death was stricken with a fourth attack of paralysis from which she rallied but slightly.

When the dread summons came the dying woman was surrounded by her five daughters: five sons: her two son in laws, and her bosom friend, Mrs Contee Meredith, together with Drs. Bowen, of Washington, and Iden, of Manassas. who did all that human skill could accomplish to make the last hours of their patient comfortable.

With her five daughters, Mrs Portner took a prominent position in society in the national capital, and for years was one of the most extensive entertainers in Washington. she was also deeply interested in charitable work. She had served on the board of governors of the George Washington University Hospital, the Washington Home for Foundlings and the German Orphan’s Asylum. To all these institutions she made substantial donations.

Mrs. Portner was born in Switzerland, sixty-four years ago, and came to America during her early girlhood, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johann Jacob von Valaer, where she became acquainted with and married Mr. Portner on April 4 1872. According to Acting Mayor, O. E. Newman, of Manassas, Mr. Portner met Miss Anna Valaer while a guest at the home of Christian Mathias near the same spot where her life ended. It was the acquaintance at this meeting that ripened into ties stronger than friendship and bond the young couple together with bonds of unselfish love and devotion during each other’s life, For the past twenty-five years Mrs. Portner has spent the summer months at her beautiful home in Manassas, spending the intervening winter months in her handsome abode, 1104 Vermont avenue, northwest, Washington, until two years ago she leased the Vermont avenue premises to the Clilian Minister to be used as the Chilian legation, when she removed to 1623 New Hampshire avenue.

Beside the five sons named, Mrs. Portner is survived by five daughters: Mrs. Jules H. Koehler, of St. Louis; Mrs. Doriner? C. Graham, of Washington; Mrs. William Payne Meredith and Misses Anna and Hilda Portner, of Manassas. She is also survived by three brothers, Peter Valear, of Winston-Salem; Christian Valear, of Charlotte, N.C., and Hanes Valear, of Cuer, Switzerland.

During Mrs. Portner’s residence in Manassas she gained many warm friends by her kindly heart and sympathetic nature. Her acts of charity are indelible inscribed upon the hearts of many who came within her knowledge of the need of assistance and to whom she extended a helping hand.

It was not necessary to draw aside the curtain and peer into the sanctity of the Portner home to become acquainted with the devotion and happiness which reigned within its sacred precincts. A shadow now hangs like a pal over the Portner home. The charm of a mother’s voice is hushed in death, and the comfort of a mother’s presence will be felt no more on earth.

Let us draw the curtain and await the coming of that consolation, which only He, who knows the secret of all hearts and who has promised to be a father to the fatherless and to the motherless, can give to the grief-stricken family.

Robert Portner was born March, 20 1837, at Rahden, Westphala, Prussia. His military education was received in the Prussian school of Annaburg, Saxony. He came to this country in 1853 and he held various clerical positions and was also engaged in the manufacture of tobacco, inventing a new cigarette paper. At the beginning of the war he moved to Washington to establish a wholesale grocery business but not finding the field a likely one, he moved to Alexandria, Va., where he established a grocery business. Mr. Portner always took an active interest in the growth and development of Manassas and was a liberal contributor in all beneficent undertakings. The magnificent hotel here, The Prince William, is an illustration of his kind interest in the town and the people of this section.

ammonia expansion was invented by him in 1878. He was the founder of three building and loan associations in Alexandria, of the Alexandria shipyard, and

Mr. Portner’s summer home, “Annaburg,” a part of which is in the Prescott, one of our most prominent citizens, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Goode, Wednesday, at about noon, of diabetes. worse, and early Tuesday morning he became unconscious, never rallying from that time until he breathed his last Wednesday.

Quinn, Lewis and Susan - 08 Feb 1912 M.D. - Struck by a train and ground to death under the wheels. This was the terrible fate of Lewis Quinn and his wife Susan, colored, last Saturday afternoon while they were walking on the Southern tracks from their home near Nokesville to a church meeting in Catletts. - the following was taken from 09 Feb 1912 Manassas Journal - Lewis Quinn, a respectable colored man of the Nokesville neighborhood, and his wife, Susan, were struck and instantly killed by southbound passenger train No. 43, about three miles south of Nokesville, on Saturday afternoon last. The couple were walking on the northbound track, and in stepping aside to avoid an approaching freight, were struck by the fast passenger train, which they evidently did not see, and their horribly mutilated bodies were thrown a number of feet from where they stood. The crew of No. 43 knew nothing of the distressing accident and it remained for a passing freight to discover the bodies.

Dr. J. C. Meredith, county coroner, learning of the fatality, started to the scene, but he found that the dead did not come within his jurisdiction. The accident, it seems, occurred practically on the boundary line between Prince William and Fauquier Counties and while it took place in this county, the bodies were thrown into Fauquier.

Quinn and his wife were known as honest, industrious citizens and were generally respected in the community. They were buried at Nokesville on Monday.

The fatality occurred on a curve two and one-half miles south of Nokesville. Upon the approach of a freight on the northbound track, Quinn and his wife to get out of the way of threatened danger, walked into the path of sure death in front of the fast mail train. The curve hid the view and the rumble of the passing freight muffled the sound of the swiftly approaching mail train. The locomotive crushed the man and women down into the track to death.

The curve prevented the engine crew witnessing the fatality. But an hour later, shortly after 1 o’clock, the engineer on a Chesapeake and Ohio train saw the mangled remains beside the track.

The remains were taken to Nokesville where the funeral was held Monday. Quinn was 70 years old and his wife 50. They had resided in the vicinity of Nokesville for about 50 years.
Ramey, Oscar L. - 06 Jul 1917 M. J. - Oscar L. Ramey, aged thirty years, was killed by lightning at Ben Lomond farm about 7:30 o’clock during the third of a series of storms which visited this section Monday afternoon and night. Henry Carrico, Mr. Ramey’s fellow employee at the Bruch place, is recovering from the shock.

Both young men were seated on a box in the horse barn at Ben Lomond directly underneath a projecting tube from the hay fork which is operated on a track in the ceiling. Lightning struck the track, entered the young man’s back and, moving downward, tore off the soles of his shoes. When discovered by other persons on the farm, young Carrico, suffering from partial paralysis, is said to have been making an attempt to fight the flames which surrounded his dead companion.

Mr. Ramey is a son of Mr. C. C. Ramey, of Kimball, Page County, a former resident of the Bristow neighborhood. He is survived by his young wife and one child and a half brother who lives in Page County.

The body was shipped Tuesday to Elgin, Page County, for burial. Funeral services took place Wednesday.

Randall, Ivan E. - 11 Dec 1913 M.D. - Ivan E. Randall, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Randall, of Manassas, died at children’s Hospital in Washington, last Saturday morning. The exact cause of its death has not been made known, although for some time previous to its death the baby remained in an extremely nervous state. Growing worse a consulting physician was brought in and it was decided to take the boy to the hospital, where it was learned that no hopes could be held for recovery and early Saturday morning death claimed its own.

The remains were brought to Manassas and the funeral held Sunday afternoon from Asbury M.E. Church, the Rev. Slick officiating. Interment at Bradley.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall have the deep sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

Reading, Miller K. - 31 May 1918 M. J. - Dr. Miller K. Reading of Aden, Prince William County, came to Virginia in 1881 and has honored his adopted state for thirty seven years by a life of good citizenship and Christian character. He was born in Flemington, N. J., January 7, 1840, and died at his farm on Cedar Run, Saturday last, May 25, and consequently was in his seventy-ninth year when he passed away.

He was a man of superior abilities and good education, received in the public schools of his native state. His medical education was at Syracuse University, where he stood at the head of his class. His course in school was however interrupted, as was the case with most of the students of that period by his army service in the 3rd N. J. Cavalry in the Civil War. He retained a nominal connection with the Phil. Kearney Post of the Grand Army at Richmond, although he could meet with them seldom. Like all Jerseymen, he had a high regard for General Kearney. He also was attached to the Manassas Picket Post of Union Veterans and with them took part in the reception accorded to the Society of the Army of the Potomac in 1905 by the Confederate Veterans and our citizens generally; also in the Jubilee of 1911 and the Tablet Dedication of 1915, and in every opportunity to meet on friendly terms those who participated in the was of 1861-65.

Dr. Reading was a broadminded man and appreciated the bravery and honor of his opponents, long since become fellow citizens with him of the American Nation, and the cause of international righteousness.

It was fitting on Sunday last that he should be laid away at rest in the Valley View churchyard in the presence of six honorary pallbearers, two of them Grand Army comrades, George C. Round and John M. Young, and Calhoun Colvin, Peyton Manuel, Haywood Herndon and H. A. Herring, comrades of the Confederate Veterans. Each of them esteemed it a privilege to drop an evergreen of hope inside the open tomb.

While in the army hospital at Newark, N. J., Dr. Reading married on the 18th of March, 1865, four months before his discharge from the army, Miss Mary Hannah Young, whom he had known from early school days, and with whom he lived to enjoy a golden wedding, three years since. He leaves, beside his widow, two sons, seventeen grand children and two great grand children.

Dr. Reading was descended from Quaker ancestry, but he himself was a Baptist. He took special interest in the life of the churches and public schools and followed all public questions in current literature with close attention and enthusiasm.
His funeral took place at the Church of the Brethren, in Valley View church-yard, the ceremonies being conducted by his personal friends, Rev. J. T. Flory and Rev. C. W. Mark.

His memory will long be green in the hearts of school children and parents in the Aden neighborhood, where for some years he served as a school trustee, and occupation he inherited from his life in Hunterdon County, N. J.

His example is one to inspire the young men on whom our country is calling for service.

Reiche, Mary Elizabeth - 13 Oct 1913 M.D. - with premonition that the end was drawing near, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Reiche, while mortally ill last Saturday afternoon in the presence of friends by strange fatalism predicted the hour of her death. “I shall be stricken speechless next Monday morning at nine o’clock,” she told them, “and at six o’clock in the evening I shall be dead.” Her prophecy of death came true within the shadow of minutes, as she passed away Monday night in her home near town, but she retained power of articulation until a few moments before the end. The funeral was held this morning from Trinity Episcopal Church, of which Mrs. Reiche was a member. Services were conducted by the Rev. Leslie Robinson. Her death was a shock to the community, although it had been almost daily expected, as some time ago physicians gave up all hope of her recovery. She was a sufferer from cancer, and about six weeks ago was taken to a Washington hospital for treatment, where she remained only a few days, when she was brought home again after it was found that nothing could be done for her recovery.

During the past few weeks everything that kind neighbors and many friends could do was done to give her comfort, and these people deeply regret the loss of an excellent woman.

Not only did she hold fast to the faith, but she lived it and taught it without fear or favor.

As a wife she was thoughtful, harmonious, affectionate, cheerful, consoling; as a mother, she was frank, kind, loving, attentive consideration, and as a neighbor, she was friendly, courteous, peaceful, helpful.

Rhodes, Howard N. - 08 Dec 1916 M. J. - Howard N. Rhodes died recently at his home in Kansas. His wife, formerly Miss Wilma G. Cross, for thirty years was a resident of Manassas. The following account of his death is taken from the Topeka Capitol of November 25:

One of the best known men in Santa Fe circles died yesterday morning when Howard N. Rhodes, assistant cashier of the railroad company, passed away after an illness of seven months. His death was caused by diabetes. He was 39 years old, just in the prime of life.

Mr. Rhodes was born July 11, 1877, and most of his life was spent in Manhattan. He had been in the employ of the Santa Fe company since July 1906. When he became ill last May he was treated by Santa Fe physicians and later went east for treatment at a sanitarium. He returned apparently much improved and resumed his duties. Too close application to work at which he engaged intermittently since his return resulted in his being taken seriously ill last Tuesday, when the end came speedily.

Cross, and who, with her husband, was a graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Mr. Rhodes, as a former member of the city civil service commission and president of the Good Government club, was very active in community affairs up to the time her husband became ill. Rice, Lula - 09 Jun 1910 M.D. - The funeral services of little Lula Rice, youngest daughter of W. M. Rice, who died Friday morning, took place from Grace M. E. Church, Saturday afternoon, and interment was in the Manassas cemetery. The tragic death of little Lula, the pet of the household, has caused a harrowing sadness to fall upon a happy home, and fill the hearts of devoted parents with grief that only time can assuage.

That the innocent and affectionate prattle of this interesting little girl should be brought to a termination in the mysteries which surround her brief illness., intensifies the grief of her loved ones and makes her loss the harder to bear.

Among the conjectures, as to the child’s death, the one based upon a logical diagnosis, is that the little one was poisoned from frequent saliva contact with an indelible pencil as she amused herself in drawing pictures or indulged in childish letter writing unconscious of the tragic fate tat awaited her.

Rice, Wellby March - 08 Nov 1917 M. D. - Mr. Wellby March Rice, well known and highly respected citizen of Manassas, died at his home last Friday, November 2, at 3:40 P. M. He had lived in Manassas for the past twenty-five years, where at different times he was engaged in business, and served for a number of years as justice of the peace, and always showed an active interest in all worthy and progressive causes affecting the community. For forty years he was a loyal member of the Methodist Church, and was at the time of his death Vice president of the Epworth League. Richards, Caleb Litten - 08 Jun 1917 M. J. - Caleb Litten Richards, sixty-six years old, died yesterday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs Alexander H. Compton, near Wellington, where he had spent the last ten years of his life. He was paralyzed fifteen years ago.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at Mrs. Compton’s home by Rev. C. K. Millican, pastor of Sudley Methodist Episcopal Church, and interment will take place tomorrow in Alexandria, the place of his birth.

Mr. Richards is survived by his wife, who lives in Wisconsin; two daughters, Mrs. Carrie Scarbuck, of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Ada Stout, of Wheeling, W. Va., where Mr. Richards lived before coming to the home of his sister, and one son, Mr. George Richards, of Chicago.

Richards, Dick - 19 Jan 1912 M. J. - Dick Richards, an old and respected colored citizen of the Buckhall section, was found in his house frozen to death on Sunday morning last. Richards lived alone in a little cabin on the Adam Young farm, and when he was not seen out about his usual chores on Sunday morning, some of the neighbors made an investigation and discovered the frozen remains of the old man in bed. He was about 65 years of age, and a quiet, inoffensive citizen.

Dr. Meredith, county coroner, was summoned from this town to view the body and gave a certificate of death from cold. He had evidently been dead several hours when found.

The burial was on Monday.

Richardson, Dick - 18 Jan 1912 M.D. - Lying on the floor behind a cold stove in his cabin near Buckhall, Dick Robinson, colored, 80 years old, was found frozen to death last Sunday morning at 5 o'clock. Near by was fuel enough to provide warmth for a week. The condition of the body indicated that Richardson had been dead a day or two. He had been ill for a week, and it is believed that he perished in the intense cold Friday night.

Alarmed by his absence, Tom Williams and Walter Penn early Sunday morning went to Richardson’s home. They found the old man dead. Richardson was employed at farming. The funeral was held Monday.

Riley, J. W. - 03 Mar 1911 M. J. - On February 20, 1911, at 10 o'clock p. m., J. W. Riley quietly passed away at his home, near Greenwich. Though in feeble health for some time the immediate cause of death was an acute attack of la grippe of only a few day’s duration.

Mr. Riley was born December 4, 1831, not far from the spot where his last days were spent and the whole of his nearly 80 years of life had been lived as a citizen of this same community.

In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company A, 39th Battalion of Va. Cavalry and as scout, guide and courier to Gen. R. E. Lee, faithfully served through the remaining years of the war. His was the typical soldier spirit as Tenyson has expressed it in the lines.
And though he had no desire to shed blood and never took a human life in all those days of awful carnage, yet when a courier was needed for any mission of special hazard or responsibility, J. W. Riley was the trusted man and he never failed to fulfill the trust. One of his companions of those days has said: He never voluntarily went into danger, but when under orders, no danger or difficulty was any terror or bar to him.” This doubtless, expressed the whole tenor of his life, modest and unassuming, yet with firm convictions and unbending courage, he led the quiet life of a true man.

For more than fifty years, Mr. Riley had been a member of Greenwich Presbyterian Church and for more than twenty years, a ruling elder in this church. Here, as elsewhere, he was found faithful and doubtless the simple, strong faith of the man was the foundation of those elements of his character that we admire.

Mr. Riley was married in 1866, to Miss Augusta Smith, whose death occurred several years ago. One daughter, Mrs. H. A. Boley, and four grandchildren are the only direct descendants left to mourn his loss, but he was loved and respected by all who knew him and we will all miss his accustomed presence among us.

The interment was in Greenwich cemetery Wednesday afternoon, 22nd instant, funeral services being conducted in the church by his pastor, Rev. J. R. Cooke. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. M. House, Wallace Wood, Chas. Ellis, James Ellis, Wm. Ellis and Oscar D. Ellis, the honorary pall bearers being Messrs. J. W. Hall, John Rollins, James Hall and M. B. Washington.

The deceased is survived by her husband, James Rison, Sr., and eight children. The sons who are left to mourn her departure are Henry, of Baltimore; James, jr.; of Frederick Junction, Md.; William, of Norfolk, and Arthur, of Minnieville, and the daughters. Ritenour, Oscar - 25 Feb 1916 M. J. - A sad death was that of Oscar Ritenour, 26 years of age, about 6:30 o’clock Wednesday morning when he was struck and instantly killed by the northbound Norfolk and Western passenger train. No. 42, just a short distance north of the depot at Bristow. The accident was witnessed by Everett P. Robertson, of Bristow, who for the instant was spellbound.

Mr. Ritenour, who had been working of late at the railway pump house at Catlett, was for a few days reliving his father, Joseph Ritenour, who has charge of the pumping station at Bristow. Young Ritenour had just left his boarding house with his dinner pail in hand and was walking on the northbound track when he heard the whistle of an approaching train. Supposing the train to be on the regular track, he stepped from the northbound track onto the southbound track and was hurled a distance of about 75 yards. The train happened to be running on the track usually used by southbound trains.

By quite a narrow margin Fred Snooks, who was riding a bicycle between tracks saved himself. The engineer saw Mr. Snooks and blew for him, but Mr. Ritenour was not seen by the engineer, who continued right on not knowing that he had been killed a man.

Mr. Ritenour is survived by his father, a brother, Aleck, assistant pumper at Catlett, and three sisters. Funeral services were held yesterday at Buckton, Warren County.

one year ago, July 2, 1913, at the age of three years, seven months and thirteen days.

Robinson, Daisy V. - 27 Dec 1918 M. J. - Mrs. Daisy V., wife of Mr. D. T. Robinson, died on Friday of last week at 6:30 p. m. She contracted influenza on Sunday, the 7th, and pneumonia developed on Wednesday, the 18th, causing death two days later.

Mrs. Robinson was born near Fairfax Station, Fairfax County, on Feb. 17, 1896, being nearly 23 years old. She had lived in Manassas since she was five years old.

The funeral took place on Monday morning in the Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Robinson was a member. The services were conducted by Rev. H. Q. Burr. The interment was at Bradley.

The closeness of sunshine and shadow at times in some lives is illustrated in the family. On Saturday, Dec. 7th, the day before Mrs. Robinson was taken ill, her little daughter, Dorris, was one year old. The event was celebrated by the family, including Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Simpson, the parents of Mrs. Robinson, with a dinner. A cake was baked, having on it the words, “Dorris” and “Dec. 7th, 1918.” In later years, when Dorris has birthday anniversaries, she may think of the following day, the 8th, as the anniversary of her mother’s illness and the 23rd, two weeks after, as the date on which her remains were laid to rest in the grave. Surely we know not what tomorrow may develop.

Robinson, Ellen - 27 Oct 1916 M. J. - Miss Ellen Robinson died suddenly on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lewis, near Manassas, where she lived for the past four years. She was about seventy-six years old.

Miss Robinson was a native of Broad Run and had made her home with members of the Lewis family since the time of the Civil War. She was a member of the Manassas Baptist Church and had been elected an honorary member of Bull Run Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in tribute to her brother, a member of the famous Black Horse troop.

Her nearest surviving relatives are the sons and daughters of her sisters, in St. Louis and Columbia, Mo. Robinson, Emma - 16 Nov 1911 M.D. - Alone in her home at Clifton, Mrs. Emma Robinson, a widow, 65 years old, met death in awful form shortly after 9 o’clock Saturday morning, when her dress became ignited from an open stove, shrouding her with a sheet of flame. Screaming in agony she ran out into the yard, feebly and in vain endeavoring to smother the fire that was burning out her life.

This was the scene of horror that greeted Joe Collier as he came driving by. With rare presence of mind, quickly he seized a blanket, extinguished the blaze and carried the suffering woman into her home. Her body was a mass of deep burns. Suffering intensely she lingered until 5 o’clock in the afternoon when death came and peacefully she fell asleep.

Mrs. Robinson is survived by a son, Lewis, of Indianapolis, Ind., and a daughter, Miss Gertrude of Washington. Her husband died about seven years ago. The funeral was from the residence Sunday afternoon with interment in Clifton cemetery.

The accident occurred on the Centreville road near the home of Mr. John S. Green. Young Robinson was driving the team of William Randolph, colored, who was with him at the time.
It is supposed that the boy was jarred from his seat as the wagon passed over the rough road. “I believe it broke my neck,” he is quoted as saying as he raised up for a moment after the wheel had passed over his neck. He was a son of James Robinson, employed for many years by the late W. N. Lipscomb, and was about fifteen years old.

Mrs. Robinson was born near Greenwich and had resided in Prince William county all her life. Her husband, David Robinson, died in 1907 at the former home near Manassas. Surviving are seven sons and two daughters; Maurice, Henry, Thomas, Anthony, Nathaniel and Nelson, of Manassas, William, of Washington, Mrs. Nellie Chapman and Mrs. Frank Colbert, of Manassas. The family moved here four years ago from Limstrong. Mrs. Robinson was a member of the New School Baptist Church, a devout Christian, a noble loving mother and a true friend.

Robinson, Mary - 05 Jun 1914 M. J. - On Sunday, the 31st of May, the remains of Mary Robinson, a highly respected member of the 19th street Baptist Church of Washington D. C., were laid at rest at Olive Branch Church on Bull Run mountain near Waterfall, the place in which she was born some 70 years ago. She moved to Washington when quite young and joined the church there, Her faithfulness to the duties of her church, her sweet amiability that was one of the strong traits of her Christian character endeared her to all who knew her, all who came in contact with her, willing and ready always to do whatever she could to uphold the cause of Christ. she loved the house of God and whether at home or away she sought to be attendant upon the service of the church. She would oftimes be found there when her physical condition demanded her being at home. Her beautiful Christian life has been as a beacon light in her family and her wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Truly she lived the life and died the death of a saint. She served in the family of Senator O’Gorman for some thirty-five years and nursed his daughter, Maude, from infancy, by whom she was always called Mammy and who accompanied her remains from Rochester, N. Y., to their final resting place, being joined at Washington by her uncle, Mr. Clark. Mary’s father was a servant of the Berkeley family a hundred years ago, some of the members of which attended the funeral. The funeral sermon, which was a very fine one, was preached by the Rev. Mr. Brook, of Washington, her pastor, and some appropriate remarks were made by the Rev. Mr. Smith, who has been the pastor of Olive Branch for nearly forty years. The floral tributes were very handsome and numerous, and the attendance a very large one. She is survived by two sisters, two brothers and an adopted daughter, a beloved niece, Rosetta Nalls. Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord for they rest from their labors.

Robinson, Regina Virginia Austin - 09 Feb 1923 M. J. - On February 3, 1923, at her home near Buckhall, Mrs. John H. Robinson, nee Regina Virginia Austin, entered into rest in the seventy-third year of her age. She was born near Brentsville, Va., on December 28, 1850, and was married to John H. Robinson on February 4, 1875.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o’clock, funeral services were conducted at the house by Rev. T. D. D. Clark, a friend of many years, and at the grave he was assisted by Rev. J. Murray Taylor, pastor of the Manassas Baptist Church. Mrs. Robinson was a faithful and consistent member of this church, of which also her deceased husband was an honored deacon for some years. Surviving her are five children, H. M. and C. A. Robinson, Mrs. E. E. Molair and Mrs. Wm. Hottle, all of Manassas, and Mrs. W. W. Davis, of Bridgeton, N. J; also ten grandchildren.

A life of unselfish and unpretentious devotion has been withdrawn from the church and community to the felt loss of both. Earnest and sincere in spirit by nature and grace, diligent in all things belonging to faith and duty, she was rewarded by that “good name which is rather to be chosen than great riches. All that love and friendship could do to prolong her life was at her service, but proved of no avail. “God’s finger touched her and she slept.”

Mother, sister, friend we bid you hopeful farewell “Till the day break, and the shadows flee away.”

Roe, Anna Elizabeth - 4 Aug 1910 M.D. - Death won in a race against time, a last desperate effort to revive the tiny, flickering spark of life, when little Anna Elizabeth Roe, three years old, died in the arms of her mother in the Southern depot in Manassas shortly after noon Saturday. The child was being hurried in an automobile from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. J. B. Metcalf, in Catharpin, to a hospital in Washington, for an operation for appendicitis. The child had been ailing for several days, but developments were not critical until Saturday morning. Dr. Shackelford, who was summoned, decided that an operation was necessary. The child’s condition required hospital service, and an automobile offered the only means of immediate conveyance. While waiting for the train in Manassas the child died. The body was taken to Barclay, Queen Anne county, Md., the home of the parents Mr. and Mrs. Dudley G. Roe.

Rorabaugh, Frank - 06 Dec 1918 M. J. - Mr. R. O. Bibb has just received word of the death in action in France, of his nephew, Private Frank Rorabaugh, son of Mr. C. M. Rorabaugh, Savage, Md., formerly a resident of Bradley.

Young Frank was raised at Bradley and lived there until three years ago, when he moved with his family to Savage, Md. His many friends in the county will learn, with regret, of his death. He was killed Oct. 27th. A shell struck his kitchen and blew it up, killing him and wounding others. The first news of the disaster came through one of his soldier companions. Mr. Rorabaugh then went to Washington and there learned that the family should have been informed two weeks previously. By some mistake the message had been sent to the wrong person. The family have been receiving letters from him that were written some time before his death, but they were not delivered in America until after his death. This seems so sprang and it is hard to realize that he is dead.

Frank’s mother had been ill and the day, on which she got up, she received the shocking news of her son’s death. Frank’s aunt is Mrs. Ira E. Cannon, of Manassas, who was with Mrs. Rorabaugh at the War Department, in Washington, when the news of Frank’s death was confirmed by the government officials.

Mr. C. M. Rorabaugh is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Rorabaugh of Manassas.

Rorabaugh, Mrs. F. C. - 06 Dec 1918 M. J. - Mrs. F. C. Rorabaugh died at 8 o’clock this morning suddenly. She was taken ill on Sunday, having been shocked by the report that her grandson, Frank C., had been killed in action in France. She rallied on Wednesday and Thursday, when she was about the house again. About 1 o’clock this morning she was attacked by what seemed acute indigestion. Again she rallied and at 7 this morning the family thought it not necessary to call in the doctor. At eight this morning she passed away suddenly from hemorrhage of the brain. She was 79 years old. Two years ago she and Mr. Rorabaugh celebrated their golden wedding having been married 50 years.

She leaves her husband; one son, Mr. Chas. M. Rorabaugh, of Savage, Md., and one daughter, Mrs. Ira E. Cannon. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon in the Baptist Church. The interment will be in the Manassas cemetery.

Rosenberger, George W. - 25 Jun 1914 M.D. - A well known and highly esteemed farmer and citizen of Prince William county, died last Sunday morning at 5 o'clock on the Molair property, near Bradley Church, when George W. Rosenberger succumbed after a stroke of paralysis. His death and brief illness were of sudden nature, and was a great shock to those in this section of the county.

Mr. Rosenberger on Saturday morning had gone to the Molair property, where he was to cut a crop of wheat. He began work about 8 o'clock and had barely started he was stricken ill while riding a binder. James Cooper and Mr. Molair assisted him from the machine to the ground, where he complained of having an awful pain in his left temple. Seeing that he was rapidly growing worse, he was carried to the house and medical aid summoned. Passing into unconsciousness, he grew no better during Saturday and that night, and on the following morning breathed his last.

Mr. Rosenberger had reached the age of sixty-five years, and was a native of this state. For the past twenty odd years he has been a resident of Prince William county, living most of the time in this section. He was a man of integrity, good business sense and worth, and stood high among his fellow farmers and citizens in other walks of life.

Mr. Rosenberger is survived by his wife and seven children, three sons, Messrs. George L., Allen L., and Wellington, and four daughters, Mrs. George Wilson, of Washington; and Misses Nellie, Mary and Sadie. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. R.A. Rosis, Eugene - 19 Dec 1912 M.D. - Eugene Rosis died at “Crystal Springs Farm,” the home of his father-in-law, W. C. Starkey, at Daisy, Wash., on November 18, at the age of 52 years, 10 months and 29 days, after an illness of seven months duration.
Mr. Rosis went west from Washington D.C., five years ago and was stationed at San Francisco, Cal., as Chinese Inspector and after serving there was transferred to Northport, Wash., as immigration inspector, which position he held until compelled by ill health, in July last, to resign. The attending physicians ordered him to the country, thinking the change might prove beneficial to him, but he grew steadily weaker until death released him.

He leaves a wife, a baby daughter, two years of age, and a sister, Mrs. Chas. Frink.

Mr. Rosis has been a government employee since his nineteenth birthday. His home for many years was “Falkland”, in Prince William County, having disposed of that but a short time since to Mr. Gilbert. He was married three years ago to Miss Helen Starkey, of Newport, Wash.

The funeral was held from the Saints Church, with interment in the Daisy cemetery. Funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends and fellow officers of the deceased.

Round, George C. - 08 Nov 1918 M. J. - Lieut. George Carr Round died on Tuesday morning, November 5th, at his home in Manassas, in the 79th year of his age.

An obituary notice ordinarily is an easy thing to prepare because the subject is usually an ordinary individual. Several items compose the sum total of the deceased’s traits, that are worthy of remembrance, and these are often of the common, easily attained variety. Sometimes the writer’s mind is taxed to record anything worthy of imitation. But when a man like Lieutenant George Carr Round is removed from the community, in which there is everywhere evidence, tangible and intangible, financial, physical in grounds and buildings, educational, moral and religious, of his having lived for the general welfare, the biographer is concerned lest one or more of the many important influences exerted by him may be overlooked in the necessarily hastily prepared narrative.

George Carr Round was born at Kingston, Pennsylvania, Sept. 14, 1839, the son of Rev. William and Sarah Round. Mr. Round’s father was pastor of the Methodist Church at Kingston. Two years were spent here after the birth of young George. During short periods the family lived at several points in New York state before going to Windsor, where George grew up as a boy. At Windsor he secured his collegiate preparatory training, at the Windsor Academy, for Wesleyan University, which he entered in 1858, spending three years there.

His ancestors having always been patriotic from the time when they took part in the revolutionary war, he readily and promptly left college one year before graduating and, at the beginning of the civil war, enlisted in the First Connecticut artillery and served three years. He then was transferred to the Signal Corps in which he was made lieutenant and served one year until hostilities ceased. He sent the last signal message of the war from the dome of the capitol at Raleigh, N. C., the words being: “On earth peace, good will toward men.” For many years he has been president of the U. S. Signal Corps Association.
After the war Mr. Round resumed his studies at Wesleyan in order to complete his senior year work. This he did and graduated in 1866.

As a student Mr. Round was a member of Alpa Delta Phi Greek letter fraternity. Graduating with honors he became a member of Phi Beta Kappa and always justly proud of his key, which indicated his admission into that select scholarly circle. Mr. Round always continued his interest in the University and the fraternities, attending, if possible the annual commencement of the former and the various banquets of the latter.

After leaving Wesleyan Mr. Round entered Columbia University, as a student in the Law School. (An interesting incident in this connection is the fact that just forty years afterwards, his daughter, Miss Ruth Althea, now Mrs. A. A. Hooff, matriculated at Columbia as a student in physical education.) At the close of his course at Columbia he spent the year 1868 with a New York City law firm.

During the war Lieut. Round had passed most of his time of service on southern soil, chiefly in North Carolina. He became greatly attached to the southern people, admiring especially their genuineness and frankness, although he had occasion in recent years to experience some of that candor in criticism, to which he, in common with other citizens of the south, including Virginia, was subjected. Having fought on the northern side, Lieut. Round freely and frequently expressed his purpose in moving to Virginia to be his desire to help build up the territory that he, as a soldier, aided to destroy.

Accordingly, Lieut. Round moved to Manassas, where on New Year’s day, 1869, he opened his law office.

Lieut. Round will have, like others departed citizens, a stone to mark the spot where he lies, but he will have many monuments in Manassas and vicinity to indicate where he lived the best and longest part of his life and where he labored so constantly and courageously, notwithstanding criticism, even opposition. Indeed, Manassas itself is his monument.

On the material side of his activities, it should be remembered that he had planted shade trees all over the town. He had survived and he opened Lee Avenue and Grant Avenue planting the trees also on the latter. The courthouse was removed from Brentsville to Manassas in 1894, largely through his efforts, and built on land given by him for the purpose.

With educated ancestors, his father being a minister, it was natural that Lieut. Round should be interested in education generally. He made possible the first public school in Virginia, which was established in 1869 in the rear room of Asbury Church. The Ruffner building was built in 1872 through his activity, the addition being added in 1900, when there was a celebration of the event, like wise by reason of his efforts. In the legislatures of 73 and 75 he did much that bore fruit later n the interest of educational advancement.

Lieut. Round secured the ground, on which the Bennett building now stands, from members of the Bennett family, his own relatives, and other subscribers. Not all subscriptions were paid, so the school board paid the balance. It was through his solicitation that Mr. Andrew Carnegie contributed $1,000 in about 1900 for the town and school library.
The history of the high school is merely a history of Lieut. Round, for he secured it. It was established in the year 1897, after the Act of Assembly of 1906, providing for high schools in the state, by transforming the Misses Osbourn’s private Manassas Institute into the public high school. In 1907 agricultural, domestic science, manual and normal training courses were added. In 1915 a commercial course was established and in 1916 an agricultural extension department. All these additions spell George C. Round.

While much of this progress was accomplished by Mr. Round through his influence with other school officials of prominence in the state, he kept in close touch with local and state scholastic affairs, being clerk of the school board forty years; member of the state normal school board; president of the state school trustees association; trustee of the Manassas Industrial School.

During all this long, successful struggle for better things educationally, Lieut. Round fought on against indifference, some times bitter opposition. But he quietly talked and worked until the public now, through years of discussion and demonstration of the benefits of new courses and new methods, have come to adopt, indeed regard as necessary, what former generations considered useless, if not injurious. As he grew old he yet kept pace with young ideas. He kept informed upon and interested in all educational progress. Every fall he could be relied upon as one of the visitors at the teachers’ institutes. He was always ready and able to discuss every new movement in educational evolution.

As a lodgeman Mr. Round was a Mason. He expressed pride in the fact that he was a charter member of the local Manasseh Lodge, when it was organized in 1875; that the first twenty-five pages of the first record are in his handwriting as first secretary; and that the name by which the lodge will be known in perpetuity (including the scriptural spelling) was suggested by him.

Lieut. Round secured the U. S. Army maneuvers in 1905. he also worked hard through many years to get various companies that engaged in the two battles of Manassas (or Bull Run, as northern people call them) to erect monuments on the battlefield. He succeeded in a number of instances and these markers of positions of regiments, blue and gray, are at the same time memorials of the energy of Lieut. Round. His great ambition in this connection, was to have the entire battle field set apart by the government as a national park. Congress passed a bill for an investigation and President Taft signed it. The War Department, after studying the matter, recommended the carrying out of the plan. A delay, due to the lack of speedy settlement of the financial end of the proposition, prevented the transformation of the field into a park. Had not the present war interfered the project, doubtless, would have been consummated by the present Congress. Many of Lieut. Round’s friends have expressed regret that he did not live to see his hopes in this respect realized. Who knows but that he may still be able to follow the course of events and, when the park is finally a reality, rejoice over the consummation?

Doubtless the greatest monument to the memory of our departed, distinguished citizen is the Peace Jubilee tablet on the courthouse lawn. Like that other illustrations Virginian, General George Washington, Lieut. Round was, in his sphere, “first in war” and “first in peace.” While responding to the call for volunteers when the war started, he has always sought to have harmonious relations between the two camps of veterans of the civil strife.

He was the chief factor in making possible the golden anniversary of the first battle of Manassas, which was celebrated on Jul 21 1911, when a northern President Wm. H. Taft, and a southern Governor, Wm. H. Mann, of Virginia shook hands during the exercises and, like the 1,000 veterans of blue and gray present, symbolized the cementing of the two sections.

This occasion was “the first in history,” as the tablet declares, “when survivors of a great battle met fifty years after and exchanged friendly greetings at the place of actual combat.” A recently published history of the United States records the four great events of the country as follows: 1. Discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.; 2. The signing of the Declaration of Independence; 3. Building of the Transcontinental Pacific Railroad; 4. The Reunion of the Blue and the Gray, the fiftieth Anniversary of the battle of Manassas in 1911.

There was a late reunion of former foes at Gettysburg in 1913, but that was merely a duplicate, on a larger scale, of what might be fairly called Lieut. Round’s peace jubilee was that of June, 1917, when a number of veterans in attendance at the confederate reunion in Washington visited Manassas and, with members of the G. A. R., held another, through smaller, demonstration about the tablet before going to the Gypsy Smith, jr., tabernacle for formal addresses.

Lieut. Round was, as the above narrative will indicate, widely, well and favorably known by prominent men in educational, military and religious circles, many of whom became and continued to be, through many years, personal, intimate friends. He was also prominently identified in all temperance and religious agencies.

In 1877 Miss Emily C. Bennett, of Manassas, became the bride of Lieut. Round. She survives him, together with three daughters, Mrs. W. W. Davies, Mrs. A. A. Hooff and Miss Emily Round; and two sons, Geo. C. Round, jr., of Herndon, and Lieut. Roswell E. Round, of Brownsville, Texas.

The funeral services, conducted by Rev. Alex. Stuart Gibson, were held on Thursday morning in the Trinity Episcopal Church, which Lieut. Round joined late in life through he had been raised a Methodist and had been for many years a member of that denominations.

On Wednesday afternoon delegates from the different classes in the graded school took flowers to the home, and on Thursday they march around the Peace Tablet, with heads uncovered, while the funeral procession wended its way to the church. Later they marched to the church, where they remained while the services were in progress. After the church services the high school students formed a body guard from the church to the station.

The pallbearers were Messrs. W. C. Wagener, Geo. G. Tyler, C. A. McDonald, H. Thornton Davies, D. J. Arrington, C. J. Meetze and H. D. Wenrich.
The interment was at Arlington Cemetery at 1 p. m. At Washington the funeral party were met and driven by government representatives in government conveyances to the soldiers’ cemetery, where our friend lies buried.

“Prince,” is from a Latin word and means “first.” Who will say ought but that Lieut. Round was Manassas’ first citizen? And so we close this history: “A Prince and a Great Man Fallen.” Upon whom will his mantel of greatness descend?

The wreckage took fire almost instantly. Two other brakemen who were in the caboose with Mr. Runaldue when the crash came, escaped injury. Saffer, William Benton - 15 Nov 1918 M. J. - Perhaps never in the memory of the oldest citizen of Manassas has there been such abundant proof of the old maxim, “death loves a shining mark,” as we have had in the last few weeks. This has never been more forcibly proven than on last Saturday morning when death claimed as its victim at Fort Washington, Md., Private William Benton Saffer, of Manassas, Va.

Private Saffer was born at Gainesville, Va., Sept. 8, 1896, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Saffer. Several years ago his parents moved to Manassas, where Willie, as he was familiarly called, as a pupil attended first the graded and the agricultural high school. In the thirteenth year he made a profession of religion under the ministry of Rev. W. T. Gover, who on December 27, 1908, baptized and received him into the church. There are many who bear testimony to the fact that he was faithful and consistent to the end. At the time of his death he was, though young, a member of the board of stewards of Grace Methodist Church, and at the time of his call to the colors was secretary of the Sunday School, where a gold star has been placed on the service flag to his memory.

In a letter to one of his sisters the Sunday before his death he said “this is communion day at home” and wanted to know if his place in the Sunday School had been filled and by whom.

His transparent honesty, deep sincerity, intense earnestness and invariable dependableness won for him everywhere the high admiration of everyone. But now he has gone and the church and community are the poorer because of his going.

As in his boyhood days he heard and responded to his Master’s call in young manhood he heard and responded to the call of his country. On the 21st day of October, 1918, he was called to the colors, and was assigned to Co. 6, Potomac Coast Artillery, and was sent to Fort Washington Md. His soldier’s life was of short duration. In less than two weeks he was seized with the Spanish influenza.

Sanders, Ben - 30 Jun 1910 M.D. - On Sunday morning, Coroner Meredith was notified that a man lay dead beside the railroad tracks, one mile south of Manassas. A jury was summoned and the investigation revealing nothing of the man’s identity, the inquest was adjourned until two o’clock in the afternoon to await further developments. In the meantime it was learned that the fireman on extra No. 1244 freight train south, had seen the body lying by the side of the tracks and had identified the dead man as Ben. Sanders of Alexandria.

Supt. Peyton, of the Southern railway company, was notified of the fireman’s report, but his enquiries failed to elicit any information in Alexandria, concerning the victim. Learning that a man answering the description was missing from Sideburn, agent W. H. Clarke of this station, went there to investigate but found that the Sideburn man had been located in Washington.

At about three o’clock in the afternoon Coroner Meredith and a jury consisting of Ira C. Reid, G. D. Baker, G. E. Maddox, B.C. Cornwell, Walter Rector and Barney Bryant, rendered a verdict that the deceased, unknown, came to his death from a crushed skull caused by a fall from or having been knocked off a train on the Southern railroad on the night of June 25, 1910, and ordered that the body be buried.

Taking a cue from the story in the Sunday Evening Times, of the finding of the body, and giving description of same, the brother of the deceased came to Manassas on a late train Sunday night and having the body exhumed found it to be his brother Ben Sanders, who had left home Saturday night in company with some friends for a trip South. After the body was embalmed by undertaker Baker it was taken on an early train Monday morning to Alexandria for final interment.

Saunders, Nannie - 17 May 1910 M.D. - Although not unexpected, the death of Mrs. Nannie Saunders, wife of W. Henry Saunders, at the home of her brother, John Woolf, near Rectortown on Saturday evening, came as a shock to her numerous friends in this community. Mrs. Saunders had been ill health for several years, and recently returned to her native county Fauquier from a home in the South which she had sought in vain for a restoration of health.

Those who knew Mrs. Saunders will cherish in their memory many kind recollections of her noble Christian character, and extend to the sorrowing husband and daughter their deepest sympathy in the hour of their sad bereavement. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, and the interment was in the family burying ground. The deceased, who was in the 44th year of her age, is survived by her husband and one daughter, Miss Ruth, just blooming into womanhood, and six brothers, John, Robert, Henry, Edgar, Charles, and Ernest Woolf, and by two sisters, Mrs. Rev. Schultz, Louise Hoelscher - 14 Aug 1914 M. J. - Mrs. Louise Hoelscher Schultz, widow of the late Augustus Shultz, died Saturday morning of paralysis after an illness lasting several months. The funeral was held Sunday evening at her late residence on West Street, Rev. J. F. Burks, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, officiating. The remains were shipped to Washington for cremation.

Mrs. Schultz was born in Hilbronn, Wurtemburg, over eighty years ago and was very proud of being a German, being convinced that the culture and traditions that had molded her character made her a better citizen of her adopted country. She considered herself fortunate in belonging to the United States, the most wonderful country in the world, as she liked to call it; and she brought up her son with an exalted idea of his American citizenship. She was a true friend and a kind neighbor: original and fearless in her opinions, full of shrewd common sense, endowed with that firmness of will which never degenerates into obstinacy. For thirty years she was the true helpmate of her husband, supporting him in all the trials of an inventor’s life. (Augustus Schultz, as our readers know, invented the method of chrome tannage, which has completely revolutionized the manufacture of leather.)

During her last illness Mrs. Shultz was surrounded by her nearest relatives, her niece, Mrs. Ferdinand Henrici, of Chicago; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Albert Schultz, of Philadelphia; her adopted daughter, Mrs. J. H. Dodge, of Manassas, and an old friend, Miss Anna Bahlmann, of Paris, France.

Scott, Taylor - 10 Sep 1914 M.D. - Taylor Scott, son of Judge R. Carter Scott, of Richmond, and Warrenton was killed, and Morton Keith, a son of Jas. Keith, of the Virginia Court of Appeals, and A. M. Charrington, son of Mrs. E. Ashley Cooper, were seriously injured in an automobile accident, which took place outside of The Plains last Saturday morning.

The young men were returning from Middleburg, where they had attended a dance. Their machine was running at good speed when a blowout took place in a front tire and the automobile crashed into a tree. Young Scott was found sitting on the floor of the car with his neck broken and his face so damaged as to make him almost unrecognizable.

The other two young men suffered serious injuries, but will recover. They were taken to the home of Dr. W. J. Chewing and the first of this week removed to their homes at Warrenton. The body of Scott was shipped to Manassas and then to Richmond for burial, and was accompanied by a number of relatives from Warrenton.

Fleet Gallaway, well known in Manassas, played a prominent part in the tragic accident. Mr. Gallaway was also returning from the dance and was directly behind the car bearing the young men, and coming upon the scene of the accident a few minutes after it happened. He disposed of the party in his machine and raced back to give all possible aid to the injured, removing them to the home of the closest physician.

The accident was a great shock to Warrenton and that section and in Richmond, where the young men were widely and prominently known.

Selecman, Clarence M. - 14 Sep 1917 M. J. - Clarence M. Selecman, a son of the late Albert A. and Mary Duty Selecman, died August 2. His death is the fourth to occur in the family during the last two years. He is survived by two sisters and two brothers, Mr. George D. Selecman and Miss Gertrude Selecman, of Washington, and Capt. J. T. Selecman and Mrs. W. S. Cross, of Occoquan, and a sister by adoption, Miss Janie Duty, of Occoquan.

Mr. Selecman was a descendant of families prominently identified with the early history of Occoquan. He was a great grandson of Henry Selecman, who settled Occoquan early in the seventeenth century and his mother was a descendant of the Don family, among the first settlers of Prince William County. She was a granddaughter of Major John F. Hedges, who saw service in the American army in the war of 1812, and a great-granddaughter of Asa Davis whose family settled near Boston, Mass., about 1640.

Albert Alan Selecman, son of Mr. George D. Selecman, has enlisted in the signal service of the District of Columbia National Guard.

Selecman, George - 26 Apr 1912 M. J. - Mr. George Selecman, a prominent and well known citizen of Occoquan section, was found dead in bed on Thursday morning of last week. Mr. Selecman had been in rather delicate health for the past year or more, suffering from a valvular affection of the heart, still his condition was not considered serious by his relatives and associate friends. On Wednesday evening he evidenced no symptoms of being otherwise than in his usual health. He retired about 9 o’clock - his lifeless form was discovered about 5 o’clock the following morning. He was in the 76th year of his age.

Mr. Selecman was a gentleman of quiet, unostentatious disposition, yet he took an active interest in all that pertained to the good of his State and community. He was a man of good judgment, and possessed an analytical sense in handling public questions that was valuable not only to himself, but to his friends. He had many admirers, all of whom will deeply deplore his sudden death. He was unmarried, but leaves a number of relatives in the county.

This is the third death to occur in the family within two weeks. The first was that of Mrs. Redmond Selecman, the second that of Mrs. Margaret Selecman, and now this sudden visitation of the Death Angel.

His remains were interred in the Roland Burying Ground on Friday.

Selecman, George - 11 Mar 1921 M. J. - The passing away of Mr. George Selecman, at the home of his nephew, Mr. John Selecman, at Quantico, Va., on Sunday, February 27, at nine P. M., removes from the village one of its oldest and most honored citizens whose entire life was closely associated with Occoquan.

Mr. Selecman was born near Occoquan June 3, 1843, being seventy-seven years of age. His health failed sometime previous to his death.

Within his home circle, where he was much beloved, among his many friends, where his gentle, kindly presence was as a benediction, he will be greatly missed. It may well be said of him, “He leaves not an enemy.” Everywhere he was known as a man of peace.

His funeral services were conducted by Elder William M. Smoot, at the Primitive Baptist meeting house, on Tuesday, March 1st. His remains were laid to rest within the cemetery near the meeting house.

Mr. Selecman was a defendant of the Selecman family, which has been closely identified with Occoquan and surrounding country since before the Revolutionary War, using their wealth and influence for the upbuilding and welfare of the community. He was a son of the late William Rufus and Mrs.
Margaret Selecman, who died at Occoquan several years ago, at the advanced age of one hundred years, lacking a few days.

One brother, Mr. W. R. Selecman, of Washington, D. C., and a sister, Mrs. Janie Lynn, of Occoquan, surviving him.

He was a brother of the late Thomas Henry Selecman, who died at Occoquan several years ago, upon the exact date of years, seventy-seven, of his late deceased brother, George.

In 1861, March 9th, when Mr. Selecman was but eighteen years of age, he enlisted in the Confederate Army, Co. A. 4th Va. Cavalry, and served the stars and bars until the surrender at Appomattox. He took part in the battles of Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania C. H., The Wilderness, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. For a long time he was in that part of the army commanded by Fitzhugh Lee.

After the war he returned to Occoquan, where he lived the remainder of his years.

Quietly, dignifiedly, he lived his life, without clamor or applause. Truly a good man departed. Sadly we feel that another dear land-mark of Occoquan is removed.

Selecman, Thomas Lloyd - 01 Jan 1907 M. J. - The late Thos. Lloyd Selecman, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of Occoquan, Va., died at the home of his niece, Mrs. W. S. Cross, at Occoquan, December 21, 1906, in his 87th year of his age, after a short illness of pneumonia.

Mr. Selecman was born at his old ancestral residence, the present Hotel Alton at Occoquan, Oct. 25, 1819. His ancestry dates back to the earliest history of Occoquan, where he was preceded by many generations. Where his grand-parents, Henry and Margaret Harmon Selecman, lived before the revolutionary war and reared nine children, and where his parents, William and Elizabeth Selecman, lived and reared three children, Catherine, Ann, Thomas Lloyd and Albert Alexander Selecman.

His ancestors, like himself, were loyal citizens of Occoquan, wielding their vast wealth and wide influence for the benefit of the town and surrounding country. Thos. Lloyd Selecman’s life throughout was closely connected with Occoquan, where he was formerly one of the wealthiest, most active and influential citizens, distinguished throughout his life as a man of remarkably fine character, whose truth was un tarnished, integrity unswerving and whose honor was unquestioned. He knew but two sides to a question, right and wrong, and with masterly decision he chose the right. Even when honor claimed all but life, in sufferance of another he yielded up self to the virtue of honor.

When sadly affected and bereft of nearly all that life held dear he was heard to say in discussing the wrongs of an enemy: My adversity is not due to dishonesty; we’ll all receive the same in the end; merely a portion of ground to lay us in.”

Mr. Selecman was formerly a large land and property owner at Occoquan and in the surrounding counties of Prince William and Fairfax. He at one time conducted a large and prosperous lumber trade and mercantile business at Occoquan. He was a very strong man of unbiased judgment and excellent business capacity. He was supposed to be the oldest male citizen of Prince William County. He had filled with distinction the offices of mayor, justice of the peace, magistrate and various other offices. He was ever ready to serve the town in whatever favorable capacity.

His dominant spirit assured itself even when in his later years he sustained great adversity of fortune and was sadly afflicted with blindness and deafness. He was wont to say, “Always look on the bright side and keep a clear conscience, our Master will look out for us all.” He had been a total abstinent since his early manhood, ably defending the cause of temperance. Never since that period in his life had intoxicants passed his lips. Just a few hours before his death, when a stimulant was administered, he shook his head and although speechless refused to do what he believed to be wrong.

He was a loyal friend and citizen, devoted husband and father. He never ceased to lament his early deceased wife Caroline Allen, to whom he was married at Dumfries, Va., in the year 1859 and to whom were born six children, two of whom survive, Miss Mamie Selecman of Occoquan and Mr. T. E. Selecman of Richmond, Va.

One grand-daughter survives, the child of his old age, Miss Ida Selecman of Denver, Colorado.

For some years before his death he made his home with his niece, Mrs. W. S. Cross and his nephew, Capt. J. Thomas Selecman of Occoquan, who devotedly ministered to his comfort in his declining years.

Toward the close of his life his health gradually failed. About a week before his death he sent for his nephew, Capt. Selecman, to whom he said: “Tommie, I feel that the end is near. I know that you know my life as few others know it. I have a clear conscience and a clean record to leave behind me. I have notched a tree by the side of Carrie’s grave and I want you to have me buried by her side.

Capt. Selecman talked to him about meeting his god and said “I know I never lay down to rest at night without thanking God for his goodness to me. I know he is good to me and I am mighty thankful to him.”

Although he felt death was near he was confined to his bed but one day before his death. He seemed conscious to the last, although unable to speak, and recognized his son just a few hours before his death. His son’s name was the last words he was able to speak. He held out his hand and smiled, calling him by name.

Besides the relatives with whom he made his home, he was the only surviving uncle of Mr. G. D. Selecman of St. Louis, Mo., Mr. C. M. Selecman and Miss Gertrude Selecman of Occoquan nearly all of whom were at his bedside.

He seemed to suffer no pain, but passed peacefully away. After life’s fitful dream he sleeps.
His funeral services were conducted by his friend, Mr. Tyson Janney. His remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground at Rolling farm beside his wife.

Sheppard, C. Lee - 21 Mar 1913 M. J. - The short notice we had just before going to press last week of the tragic death of C. Lee Sheppard, a native of this county, induces us to give to the readers of the JOURNAL, especially in lower Prince William, a fuller account of his circumstances of his death in the week’s issue.

Mr. Sheppard, who was 46 years old, was in the employ of the R. F. and P. Railway Company, as linesman and phoneman between Fredericksburg and Washington, was bitten by a mad dog at his home, in Fredericksburg, about six weeks ago, notice of the occurrence appearing at the time in the JOURNAL. He caught the rabid animal, and after choking it to death, cut off its head and took it to the Department of Animal Industry in Washington, for examination. He was informed that the animal’s head gave unmistakable evidence of rabies, and he lost no time in placing himself under Pasteur treatment. The deadly virus had done its work however, and within the period of a few short weeks death relived him from the tortures of hydrophobia.

Mr. Sheppard was a son of the late Richard Sheppard, of Lorton, Fairfax County, and a nephew of the late Mr. Jos. Sheppard, of near Dumfries. He is survived by his step-mother, Mrs. Richard Sheppard, and by one brother, Mr. George Sheppard, of Fredericksburg.

It is said that with other workmen they were going north on the northbound track and left it to get out of the way of an approaching train. They had stepped to the southbound track when Mr. Proctor saw another train coming toward them around a curve just ahead. He was quick to see their danger, pushed two of the men from the path of the train and in trying to save the life of the third, Mr. Shipe gave up his own.

Mr. Proctor was only nineteen years old and had held the position of assistant foreman. His body was shipped to North Carolina for burial.

Shirley, Mrs. G. W. - 29 Sep 1911 M. J. - How very appropriate the above beautiful lines seem in connection with the death of Mrs. G. W. Shirley, which occurred at her home, Oak Shade, near Waterfall, this county, in the early morning of September 18, 1911.

Mrs. Shirley had been in failing health for some months, but her death came as a shock to the entire community. She gently breathed her last, upon the same farm and only a short distance from the old homestead where she was born 60 years ago. It was there she grew from infancy and childhood into attractive young womanhood, with such charming personality that none knew her but to love her.

She was united in marriage to Mr. G. W. Shirley October 7, 1875, and lived a beautiful simple Christian life. True in every relation as wife, mother and friend, ever ready to lend the helping hand in sickness or distress, her three score years have not been lived in vain, and we feel that a void has been created that can not be filled.

Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to her husband and children, who in their grief and desolation, feel the truth of Whittier’s lines: “How strange it seems, with so much gone, Of life and love, to still live on.”

The funeral services were at Antioch on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. T. D. D. Clark. The solemnity of the crowded church as they listened to the patnos? of the service from these words from the 23rd psalm.

She is laid to rest in the cemetery beside a darling son, who preceded her several years ago. just in the dawn of young manhood.

Shultz, Louisa - 13 Aug 1914 M.D. - We regret to inform our readers that there passed away last Saturday morning one of our most esteemed citizens, Mrs. Louisa Schultz. Death came after a long illness of many weeks, which followed a stroke of paralysis. The end had been expected daily for some time.

Mrs. Shultz was born in Heilbronn, Wurlemburg, over eighty years ago, and was very proud of being a German, she being convinced that the culture and traditions that had molded her character made her a better citizen of her later adopted country. She considered herself fortunate in belonging to the United States, the most wonderful country in the world, as she with fondness called it, and she brought up her only son with an exalted idea of his American citizenship.

Mrs. Shultz was a true friend and the kindest of neighbors, original and fearless in her opinions, full of shrewd common sense, endowed with firmness of will which never degenerated into obstinacy. For thirty years she was a true helpmate of her husband, the late Augustus Shultz, supporting him in all the trials of an inventor's life. The late Mr. Shultz, as many of our readers know invented the method of chrome tannage, that has completely revolutionized the manufacture of leather.

Many years of Mr. and Mrs. Shultz life were spent in Manassas, where they enjoyed the true friendship and regard of the community, and now that death has removed the remaining member of the family, the locality feels the loss most deeply.

Funeral services, at which only a few intimate friends and relatives attended, were held at the residence last Sunday evening at seven o'clock. On Monday morning the remains were taken to Washington for cremation and later were removed to Philadelphia, where they now rest beside the grave of her husband.

Mrs. Shultz was survived by an adopted daughter, Mrs. Joseph Howard Dodge of Manassas, and a niece Mrs. Ferdinand H. Henrici, of Philadelphia.

Sibley, Aaron - 25 Jul 1913 M. J. - Aaron Sibley died Wednesday morning, July 23, aged nearly 80 years. He was a native of Otsego County, New York, where his birth occurred November 23, 1833. In early manhood he moved to Wisconsin, which in those days was on the Western frontier, and for several years he divided his time between the West and his native state. He came to Virginia in 1894 and immediately made many friends by his pleasant manner, his quaint wisdom which was very philosophic, and a general desire to find the best traits in everybody. One of his expressions contains a vast deal of truth and is an essay in itself: “A good neighbor will always find good neighbors.”

Very recently Mr. Sibley went to visit his warm friend, Mr. Robert Bibb, near town, where he was seized with the malady which ended his life, and remained with Mr. Bibb until the end.

Sinclair, Arthur W. - 16 Feb 1917 M. J. - Arthur W. Sinclair, Manassas postmaster, vice president of the People’s National Bank of Manassas, and for many years a prominent member of the bar of Prince William County, died Monday at his home on South Main street, at the age of sixty-five years. While he had been in ill health for several years, he was rarely absent from his post of duty at the post office. He was confined to his bed only a few days before his death, which came as a great shock to his host of friends in the community. The funeral service took place Wednesday afternoon at the Manassas Baptist Church, of which he was a member. The pastor, Rev. T. D. D. Clark, officiated in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The many and beautiful floral tributes evidenced the esteem in which he was held.

After a short service at the grave his body was laid to rest in the family lot at the Manassas cemetery.

Mr. Sinclair was born at Brentsville, where he was admitted to the bar and began his professional career. He came to Manassas when the county seat was moved from Brentsville, and since that time he had been a resident of Manassas. He was appointed a commissioner in chancery by Judge Keith, and later was continued in that office by Judge Nicol and Judge Thornton. For a number of years he served as examiner of records.

In May 1913, by presidential appointment, he was placed in charge of the post office at Manassas.

He was a member of Manasseh Lodge, No. 182, ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, and of Bull Run Council, No. 15, Order Fraternal Americans.

His father, who served during the Civil War with the Prince William cavalry, was at one time in business in Baltimore and later owned a store at Dumfries, which was destroyed when the Southern forces fell back from Bull Run.

His grandfather, Modecai B. Sinclair, was the first clerk of the Prince William County court to be elected after the civil war. This office was held by members of the Sinclair family, on both sides of the house for more than a century.

Mr. Sinclair is survived by his wife, who was Miss Ella Armistead, of Warren County; two daughters, Mrs. E. U. Nash and Mrs. E. B. Giddings, both of Manassas; one son, Mr. C. A. Sinclair, who has been associated with his father in the practice of law, and several young grand children.

Sinclair, Eloise Armistead - 11 Nov 1926 M. Mrs. Sinclair was the widow of Arthur W. Sinclair, a well known attorney here who preceded her to the grave in 1917. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Eloise Armstead, daughter of George and Laura Armistead, and was born at Front Royal sixty-four years ago.

She was prominently identified with a number of organizations and held membership in the Colonial Dames, Daughter of the American Revolution, Daughters of 1812, and Daughters of the Confederacy. The greater portion of Mrs. Sinclair's life was spent in and near Brentsville where she grew to womanhood in the love and esteem of all who knew her.

Possessed of a jovial disposition, she carried with her a ray of sunshine that dispels gloom and gave to those around her a brighter and happier view of the uncertain path that lies before us. Truly a lovable and exemplary woman has gone to her just reward.

Sisson, William E. - 20 Jan 1910 M.D. - Struck by a swiftly moving Southern locomotive, William E. Sisson, formerly of Nokesville, was instantly killed Sunday morning at Cameron Crossing, on the outskirts of Alexandria. He had been talking with a crossing watchman, and had stepped out of the way of passenger train No. 16 directly into the path of a light engine.

A coroner’s jury Monday at Alexandria declared that Sison’s death was due to gross negligence on the part of the railroad. Although he says that he shouted a warning, Michael Grimes, the watchman, testified that before Sisson could jump, he was hit. Engineer J. N. Walker and fireman Iverson Miller, of the engine which struck Sisson, stated that the automatic bell was ringing at the time of the accident, and that the engineer sounded his whistle before reaching Cameron Crossing.

The first witness, Eugene Sisson, a nephew of the dead man, testified that his uncle stopped to talk to the watchman and had started to cross the tracks when he was hit by the engine, which was backing at the time. He did not hear any bell or whistle prior to his uncle being struck, he said.

W. E. Sisson had been manager of the Mahoney distillery in Alexandria for some time. He was the first gauger at the Nokesville distillery and served in that capacity for three years, residing at Nokesville. He was a son of F. B. Sisson, of Legato, Fairfax county.

Henry Shoemaker, Boston Steele, Grady Shoemaker, Robert Armentrout and Edward and Bermond Wenkhouse.

The deceased, who has been a consistent member of the Presbyterian church since her early girlhood, was a woman of lovely characteristics, and her many acts of self-denial for the comfort and pleasure of others, will live in the memory of the host of friends who will miss her motherly consolation and her thoughtful care. During the funeral services two of the deceased’s favorite hymns which attests the faith she had cherished through life, “How Firm a Foundation” and “Nearer My God to Thee,” were softly rendered.

Slingerland, Alma - 31 Aug 1911 M.D. - By a strange coincidence death came in identical form and under the same circumstances to two ladies in Dumfries last week Both were stricken within a day.

While conversing with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Amidon, Mrs. Willie Slingerland complaining of a severe pain in her breast, fell to the floor and expired without another word. She was approaching her eighteen birthday, and had been married about four months. Mrs. Slingerland was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Amidon of Dumfries.

The preceding day Mrs. Phenous Love, also of Dumfries, swooned, fell to the floor and died in her home, conversing with friends. She had been in ill health for some time.

Slingerland, John W. - 10 Feb 1911 M. J. - Died at Garfield Hospital, Washington, January 27, at 6 o’clock, a.m., from the effects of an amputated leg of blood poisoning, John W. Slingerland, aged 66 years.

Mr. Slingerland had been troubled with a sore, or bad leg for several years, but it was not serious until about two months before he died. He lived about a month after his leg was amputated.

In the early part of the war, 61-65, he joined a Patisan Ranger Company, being raised by Capt. Wm. Gardner Brawner, the only son of Co. Basil Brawner, of Prince William County, which was composed of men principally from the counties of Prince William and Fairfax. Mr. Slingerland served in this Company until the death of Capt. Brawner, who was killed in Maryland while gallantly leading a charge. He hen joined the 43rd Virginia Battalion, commanded by Jno. S. Mosby and served in that command until the surrender.
He accompanied this command on some of its most perilous fights and raids. He was in the hard fought battle of December 13, 1862. Mr. Slingerland possessed many characteristics that make a good soldier. He was not choice about eating, and could sleep almost anywhere. He was always ready for either camp or field duty. I have often thought that a man who fought through the civil war, and came out with an honorable record, was a pretty good man, and should be entitled to the plaudits of his countrymen. Mr. Slingerland war record was one of which any Confederate soldier might be proud.

After the war Mr. Slingerland worked at the carpenters’ trade, and many buildings now stand as monuments of his work. Several years ago he was employed by the manager of Cabin Branch mines and remained there until his death. His services were highly appreciated by his employers, as was evidenced by their kindness during his sickness and burial, and no cost or trouble in any way was considered that would tend to his comfort.

Besides being a brave soldier, he was a quiet and useful citizen and will be greatly missed in the community in which he lived. He leaves a wife and eight children, three boys and five girls, to whom we extend the sympathy such as the world can give.

His funeral was preached at his late home, in Dumfries, by Rev. A. T. Lynn and he was buried on his farm, near Belle Haven Church. His funeral and burial were attended by a large gathering of friends.

Thus has one more Confederate veteran passed over the river to rest under the shade.” Only a few years more and there will be none left of that noble band who followed the flag of Lee and Jackson, bit their deeds will live and be handed down for generations to come.

Her death followed a recent rapid decline in health, caused in a measure by being a great suffer from a fall received several years ago, which, added to her advanced age, rapidly hastened the end. Her feeble condition was known to everybody in Luray, though the announcement of her death came as a genuine surprise to all. She was a woman of many engaging qualities, highly educated, possessing those rare parts, which after making friends they remained bound as “by hooks of steel” Her many noble inborn characteristics, inherited from a long line of distinguished ancestors has been given a practical and beautiful fruition in her younger days when good fortune and affluence abounded in the Stewart home. To this day many recall the times when the Stewart home was the place from which many blessings emanated for the less fortunate ones. And to this day there can be found those whose lives are still brightened by these fragrant memories.

Her husband died a number of years ago. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. F. S. Brand, of Manassas, Va., and Mrs. Robert Jennings, of St. Louis, Mo.

Her father was Capt.
James Glenn, a native of Jefferson county W.Va., who served in War of the Revolution in General Nathaniel Green’s command.

Mrs. Stewart chief delight was rehearsing her recollections of “Glennburnie” the old homestead in West Virginia, where she occasionally spent many happy hours going over the scenes of her youth.

Thomas was found on the front porch of his home in a dying condition with his face blown off, the wound said to be self inflicted by a shot gun. Nearby, it is understood, was discovered a bloody razor. Members of the household who firmly stated that no one else was concerned in the trouble, say that recently thieves had been stealing chickens and that they thought that Thomas, hearing noises secured his gun, went to the barn and while making a search in a cornfield near house, accidental fired the weapon, the load taking effect under the jaw. It was supposed that the injured man either walked or crawled about three hundred yards through several wire fences to the front porch, where he was discovered in the morning. He lived until about 8 o'clock.

In the cornfield was found the shot gun lying near a small pool of blood, although only a few drops were traced from this spot to the home. Coroner C. Meredith, of Manassas, held an inquest, but a verdict was deferred until Friday, when an adjourned meeting will be held.

When carried downstairs to gaze upon the face of her dead husband she sobbed: “I know I’ll not be many days behind him. They had been married only 18 months.

Joseph E. Much, whose home has been marked by this repeated death visitation said; “There is one incident which the superstitions might regard as significant but I have not attached any importance to it. When the body of Mrs.
Haas was being removed from the house, Mr. Thomasson aided the pallbearers to assist in carrying the coffin down the steps. When he went off duty at 3 o’clock Monday morning he was apparently in good health. He was taken ill at 9 o’clock in the morning complaining of pains in his abdomen. Thornton, J. B. T. - 11 Oct 1918 M. J. - Judge J. B. T. Thornton died at his residence on Grant Avenue yesterday morning at 4:45 o’clock. While the health of Judge Thornton has been precarious for a long time, he having been under the care of a Washington specialist for a number of years, the news of his somewhat sudden death came as an unexpected blow to his many friends and the community at large.

Judge Thornton was the eldest son of the late William Willis and Mary S. Thornton and was born in Brentsville October 26, 1856, and would have at- In 1855 he was united in marriage to Miss Fannie C. Bauder, a daughter of Prof. Ezra Bauder, who also resides in Brentsville.

Judge Thornton succeeded Judge C. E. Nicol on the bench when the latter resigned in 1907 to become a candidate for Congress. At the time of his appointment to the judgeship he was commonwealth’s attorney for Prince William County, which office he had held since 1892. For many years prior to his election to the office of commonwealth’s attorney he was superintendent of schools for Prince William County.

Shortly after his admission to the bar, Judge Thornton went to Yazoo, Mississippi, to practice law and while in that state was the law partner of the Hon. John Sharp Williams. Upon his return to Prince William County he formed a partnership with the late E. E. Meredith and thus continued in the practice of his profession to the time of Mr. Meredith’s death. When Mr. H. Thornton Davies was admitted to the bar Judge Thornton formed a law partnership with him, under the style of Thornton and Davies, and this firm was enjoying a large and lucrative practice when Judge Thornton was elevated to the bench of his circuit.

Judge Thornton was a member of the Constitutional Convention which convened in Richmond in 1901, he having been endorsed for this high honor by both the democrats and republicans of the county.

As a judge he was ever courteous and kind to attorneys, litigants, juries, witnesses and court officers. While insisting that the full measure of respect due his position be accorded him, Judge Thornton was not burdened with that superlative degree of dignity which some judges possess; and those having business in his court were made to feel that in him they had a friend and counselor.

Judge Thornton is survived by his wife, two sisters, Mrs. Mildred H. Davies, of Manassas, and Miss Mary S. Thornton, of Washington, and three brothers, Senator R. Ewell Thornton, of Fairfax; W. W. Thornton, of Spokane, Wash., and B. B. Thornton, of Manassas.

Thornton, Walter - 28 Jan 1926 M. J. - Walter Thornton, colored, about 30 years of age, was the victim of an alleged bootlegger gang about six o’clock Friday evening, when he was shot to death.

The shooting occurred on the Warrenton Pike, about one and one-half miles from Gainesville, and as a result Richard Johnson, Heuser Johnson, and Johnny Corum, all colored, are lodged in the county jail charged with the murder. Nathaniel Peterson, also an alleged member of the gang, is at large and is being sought by the county authorities.

Reports say that these men believed that Thornton had divulged what he knew of their bootlegging activities and they had for some days been trying to see him but he had eluded them. On Friday a part of the gang traveling up the pike from Gainesville, saw Thornton on the roadside talking to Mr. Thos. E. Sloper, who had dismounted from his horse. The gun play soon began and Sloper’s horse was the first to fall victim, having received the first shot in his side. Thornton, who had been trying to keep the horse between him and the enemies guns, was now without protection and a bullet entered his cheek and, passing through his brain, came out at the side and rear of his head.
Deputy Sheriff Partlow pursued the murderers and succeeded in capturing the three named above.

As soon as the news reached here of the shooting, Commonwealth’s Attorney Thos. H. Lion, in company with A. S. Boatwright, left for the scene of the crime. A coroner’s jury was enpaneled, composed of A. S. Boatwright, Arthur Ellis, R. E. Ellis, Haynes Davis, , John R. Sweeney, Jr., and J. F. Clark, and presided over by Magistrate J. L. Rollins. The inquest was held in the Heflin store at Gainesville and the jury was in session until a late hour of the night.

The verdict of the jury was that Walter Thornton came to his death by pistol shot at the hands of Nathaniel Peterson and John Corum. It was not believed that Heuser Johnson was in possession of a pistol.

Walter Thornton had served five years in the state prison for killing a colored man by the name of Ewell. Through a reversal of fate, he himself has fallen before another man’s gun.

The point where the body was found was near Burke Station, Fairfax County, about twelve miles south of Alexandria.

No one seems to know the particulars regarding the death of Conductor Vaughan. Only a short time before he was missed from his train by one of the crew he was seen adjusting a red light. The supposition is that he lost his balance or that he was knocked from his position on the rear of the car by the sudden jolting of the train.

His face was badly mashed. One wrist and several ribs were broken, and the clothes were nearly all torn from the body. from his shoulders to his waist.

Wagener, Howard - 1906 M. J. - Howard, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wagener, died on Saturday afternoon last after an illness of four months, in his sixteenth year.

Soon after he was taken ill he was carried to a Washington hospital where he was treated for several weeks for gastritis; but it was evident that the results were not favorable and he was brought home where in spite of the best medical skill and attention he passed away just as the golden summer of life was dawning fair.

His funeral was held on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Dr. McGill conducting the services, and his remains were laid to rest in the cemetery near town.

It is inexpressibly sad to see one of so much promise of all that is best and brightest in life gathered to the harvest of the great beyond. Those who knew him well know to what a high standard his youth gave promise. Gentle and modest of demeanor, studious and courteous to all, few in the early summer of life had made so many friendship is a prize to be esteemed. In him were all the promises of a courtly gentleman. Untimely and sad as his death is to the bereaved family and friends an untarnished memory remains, and in that beautiful rest all must be well.

John, and sister, Mrs. Kyle, of North Dakota; and by George and Harry

Washington, Hannah Gertrude - __ Dec 1909 M. J. - In loving remembrance of Hannah Gertrude Washington, daughter of S. D. and Lavenia Mercer (colored), of Thoroughfare, who died December 14th 1909. As she was respected in life, even so is her memory treasured in death.

Waters, Theodora Pauline - 25 Oct 1918 M. J. - Another sad death in our community to be recorded is that of Miss Theodora Pauline Waters, who passed away on Monday morning early a victim of influenza and its twin physical evil pneumonia.

Miss Waters was ill only a few days, having joined the large number of sympathetic friends in attendance at the funeral of Dr. J. Marye Lewis, who was buried just one week previously __ Wednesday at 3 p. m.

Miss Waters was aged 43 years, being the second child of Mr. R. M.
Waters and Mrs. Anna Weir Waters, the latter deceased. She had spent all her life in Manassas, but four years ago she established the millinery business, which she conducted until death.

Always bright and cheerful, with a kind word for everyone and an unkind word, even though, for no one, she was attractive in her personality and, therefore, successful in drawing and retaining patrons to her store. These characteristics grew, of course, out of her religious life. Miss Waters was a consistent member of Trinity Episcopal Church of Manassas. Though busy at her regular occupation, she was always able to find time to assist in the church activities. Her presence could be depended upon in homes where there was sickness or death, the artistic talent necessary for her daily employment being of great use in her social and Christian service. She frequently decorated the sides of graves of friends, previous to interment, with fragrant flowers. It was but natural, therefore, that such a service should be rendered for her, as was evidence when relatives and friends reached the cemetery for her burial. Flowers profuse and sweet, lined her grave.

The funeral services—due to the still prevailing epidemic that ended Miss Waters’ useful, modest life—were conducted at the cemetery by her rector, Rev. A. Stuart Gibson. The church choir, assisted by voices from other churches, led in the singing.

Weaver, Mrs. Jas. - 03 Mar 1911 M. J. - Mrs. Jas. Weaver, 38 years old, died at her home near Manassas, Saturday morning last after a brief illness. Weedon, Horace A. - 12 Mar 1914 M.D. - Death, unexpected and without warning, entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin O. Weedon, of Warrenton, Va., on last Sunday afternoon, and removed from the family circle the nineteen year old son, Horace A. Weedon.

Stricken suddenly with spinal trouble while attending church last Sunday morning, the young man was at once removed to his home and three physicians summoned. All possible medical aid was given him, but to no avail, and after an illness of a little over two hours he breathed his last.

Warrenton, New Baltimore and its schools mourn the death of this prominent young man and fellow student. Although being delicate in health, Mr. Weedon has but a few times been seriously ill, and his sudden death is a great shock to the vicinity in which he lived and in Manassas where he has often visited.

For the past several months Mr. Weedon had been a student of the Warrenton High School. Being a bright, ambitious and studious scholar he was held with highest regard and esteem by students and teachers of that institution, and also at the schools of New Baltimore, where he previously attended. He was known in both places for his integrity, straightforwardness, and honorable dealings with his schoolmates and acquaintances and was a popular and well liked young man with everyone. Out of respect, and as a token of friendship and sympathy, the schools of Warrenton and New Baltimore were closed as well as many of the business houses in the former named place.

Surviving the deceased are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Weedon, one sister, Elizabeth, and many relatives in Manassas and this vicinity.

The funeral services were held at the residence in Warrenton, last Tuesday afternoon, they being conducted by Revs. Council and Jackson. A large host of friends gathered both at the home and at the Warrenton cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest. Many beautiful floral tributes were received and placed on the grave.

The pallbearers were chosen from schoolmates and teachers, they being Mr. Smith, Superintendent of Warrenton Schools, and Messrs. Kenneth Hynson, Judson Council, Hampton Skinker, Thurston Brown and Mr. Grant, who is a student at Eastern College.

His touching words of sympathy to the living and commendation of the dead and his earnest prayer came from a heart filled with Christian love, human sympathy and true friendship. Weir, Taylor - 29 Dec 1922 M. J. - A heavy toll of human life was taken by the Southern railroad Saturday night when four youths were instantly killed at the Grant Avenue crossing by a shifting freight train. The dead are Taylor Weir, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Weir; John Goode, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Goode; of Manassas, and George Spencer and Edwin Freeman, of the Plains.

The four young men were riding in an automobile driven by Spencer when they were run down by the freight train at about 11:30 o’clock Saturday night. Southbound train No. 41 was standing at the station and was blocking the crossing at Main, Battle and West Streets. The four boys drove to the Grant avenue crossing to pass, it is supposed, from the north to the south side of the railway tracks. In their endeavor to cross they were caught by the freight, which was backing west on the northbound passenger track to take a siding in order that a northbound passenger train could have the right of way. The automobile was apparently caught fairly in the center of the rails on which the freight was moving. It was carried an approximate distance of three hundred feet and was completely demolished, except that its motor appears to be intact. The bodies of all four boys were found near the crossing and in a lifeless condition. Death was more than likely instantaneous in each case.

The bodies were carried to the undertaking establishment of Mr. Geo. D. Baker and there prepared for burial. The two Manassas youths were buried on the afternoon of Christmas day from Trinity Episcopal Church, Rev. A. Stuart Gibson conducting a joint funeral service. The bodies of Spencer and Freeman were conveyed to The Plains Monday morning and interment was made at that place the afternoon of the same day. The two Manassas boys were each nineteen years of age. Spencer and Freeman were a year or two older.

The untimely and tragic death of the four boys cast a pall of gloom over the Christian holidays here. Both Taylor Weir and John Goode had many friends among both the older and younger people of the town and community. The beautiful floral tributes bore silent but beautiful testimony of the respect and esteem in which they both were held. Among the floral offerings was a huge bouquet of mistletoe sent by friends from Brentsville.

Young Freeman was a kinsman of T. J. Broaddus, and he and Spencer, who had been visiting at the Broaddus home Saturday night had left there but an half hour before the accident.

In an effort to fix responsibility for the accident, Dr. W. Fewell Merchant, county coroner, convened a jury Tuesday morning. After hearing the account of the accident from E. S. Baber, brakeman on the freight train, and such other witnesses as were produced, the coroner’s jury returned a verdict that the accident was caused by the joint negligence of the railway company and the driver of the automobile.

The Witness Baber testified that he was standing on the rear car of the backing freight and that he saw the automobile approaching and endeavored to warn the occupants of their danger, but was not successful in attracting their attention. He said he then signaled to the engineer but that the freight car was then within five feet of the automobile. According to the testimony of the freight crew the train was not moving at a greater rate of speed than four miles an hour when the accident occurred.
